Calera council votes on gas deposit fee

by Ruth Ann Dunn

The Calera City Council last week approved an increase in the gas deposit required for rented houses.

The deposit was raised from $25 to $50 following the trend set by other municipalities. The increase, it is hoped, will discourage the practice of renters moving and leaving a large unpaid gas bill behind.

An increase in the cut-on charge for gas service was also passed making $10 the cost instead of $5. The cost applies to persons whose service has been cut-off originally for non-payment and those wishing to discontinue summer service.

Users not paying their bill at the end of the winter who wait until their service is cut off, will now pay a 10 percent per month charge on late

In other action concerning the gas board, the council voted to contribute $69.10 to the Alabama Municipal Distributors Association. The group lobbies to keep natural gas prices down and is headed by Ed Smith.

John Woodall came before the council to request an open ditch behind his house at the intersection of 16th and 20th Streets be closed. Woodall agreed to follow the city's usual practice in such matters by purchasing the pipe for the project if the city will install the pipe. Councilman Terry G. Snow volunteered to check into the situation to see what type of pipe should be used.

Drainage problems on Jack Martin's property were also discussed.

Councilman Snow suggested a registered letter be sent to Martin requesting a right-of-entry to have a ditch on his property cleared.

Filling a hole and installing drainage pipe on property located at the intersection of 18th Street and 2nd Avenue was also discussed. The council agreed the work should be

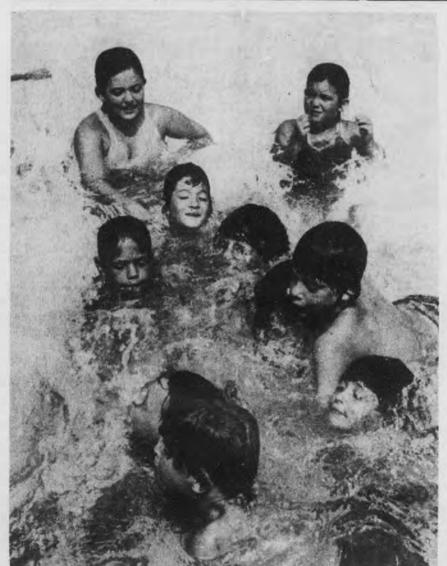

In other action, the council voted to take money out of a city account designated for the gas department to pay the balance on the first payment for the new fire truck.

The $34,006 allotted through revenue sharing to pay for the truck does not match the $38,081.01 needed for the first payment. The difference will be paid from the gas board account and next year's revenue sharing money will be designated to repay the loan from the gas account.

Airport runway project nudged

by Marcia M. Sears

The bureaucracy is moving, although ponderously, on the $11/2 million expansion project at the Shelby County airport.

This week letters went out to interested parties from the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission asking for comments. The project is described as "Land acquisition, runway and taxiway extension, access road and apron construction, runway taxiway lighting, fencing and incidental construction."

First steps were taken several years ago by the County Commission to get a promise of $50,000 from the State of Alabama for the work. The county is planning to put about $91,191 into it, and is asking for a federal grant in the amount of $1,270,717.

will take an estimated 18 months to

If all the reactions are favorable and the project is approved, the runway and taxiway will be extended by 1,800 feet. Those who use the airport have sought this extension for several years, saying it will greatly increase the safety factor of landings and take-offs. It will not be long enough, however, for jet aircraft to use

The project will require about 67 acres 'in fee' and 10 acres in easement for expansion and clear zones.

An access road will be extended and the existing runway will receive an overlay for added strength. Medium intensity runway and taxiway lighting will be installed, and security lighting at the terminal will be added.

principal, Edwin Belue, told the Reporter last week, "I want the school to have a very smooth beginning."

Named by Board of Education representatives and approved by Ernest Douglas who resigned following a dispute over the rehiring of teachers.

When asked how he felt stepping into the position of the wake of such controversy he said, "I feel very comfortable about the job. What is past is past," he said. "I don't like to look back except to see what is relevant to the future."

The 38 year old principal came to Pelham after four years as principal for the Resource Learning Center at Shades Valley High School.

The RLC is a special program for gifted students and Belue said, "It's a totally comprehensive program. Each teacher is specially trained to work with gifted students."

He plans to bring some of the concepts of the RLC to Pelham by helping each student realize his or her potential and how to achieve the optimum from the education process.

Petham High School's new "No two students are the same," he plans for the coming year.

Belue received his B.A. from the University of Montevallo, a masters of divinity from Vanderbilt University, his masters of arts in counseling and trustees of the school, Belue replaces guidance and a Ph.D in educational administration from the University of > Vern Davis, Shelby County assistant superintendent of education, said Belue will meet with him one day this week in a regular training session for new principals.

Davis said there were several applicants for the Pelham principal job, but Belue was chosen because of his outstanding qualifications.

Belue's plans following the meeting include conducting "feasibility studies" of the school's various types of programs. He will be at the school Thursday and Friday "putting the house in order administratively" but will be glad to meet with anyone who drops by.

He plans meetings with the PTO and student council officers as soon as possible to ask for input and make

"There's a lot to be done," he said. "We need to print a student and a faculty handbook. Some teachers need to be hired, also."

"I don't like loose ends," he said. Belue said he would rather wait a week or two to discuss rules and how discipline will be handled at Pelham until he has time to survey the situation. "Rules of discipline need to be tailor-made to the situation," he said. "We will deal with unacceptable behavior appropriately.'

He commended acting principal Ken Tatum and said, "He has done a fine job this summer supervising the redecoration of the building."

Tatum will continue at Pelham High as assistant principal next year, the position he held while Douglas was principal.

Belue, his wife Sally and their two children presently live in the eastern section of Birmingham and eventually plan to move to Shelby County. "I want the parents and teachers to feel very comfortable," he said. "I want to have a very stable situation at Pelham."

Valley Principal in race

Dr. Norma Rogers returned to the white frame house across the street from Chelsea School that was her childhood home to announce her candidacy for County Superintendent of Education last week.

She is the fourth candidate to enter the race.

The Valley Elementary School principal began her career in education as a teacher at Chelsea in 1960. She has been the principal at Valley, the fastest growing school in the county, since 1970.

"People from all over the county have urged me to run for superintendent," said Rogers in her announcement. "They tell me 'we want what you have at Valley for the whole county.'

Rogers promised to encourage communication with parents and teachers, to enlist the advice of parents, teachers and community leaders and to furnish the taxpayers with detailed financial information concerning the multi-million dollar county school system.

In addition to her duties as Valley rincipal she is an assistant professor it the University of Alabama, Gadsden 'enter; president of the District 10 Jahama Council for School dministrators and Supervisors; president of the Shelby County hemals Association; and consultant

ANNETTE DAVIS SKINNER

Annette Davis Skinner officially shows the line this side of the junk announces her candidacy this week for the office of Tax Assessor of Shelby

This is the first time Mrs. Skinner has ever sought public office. She said she is not a politician, and would consider herself a 'working taxpayer' if elected to the office.

Mrs. Skinner has had 25 years of working experience, 12 of them in the legal field. She served for three years as chief clerk in the Shelby County probate office, and set up the record keeping system when she was chief clerk for the Circuit Clerk of Shelby

For the last five years she has been working for private corporations that deal with land descriptions, surveying and title insurance. Mrs. Skinner told the Reporter that the number of land transactions in Shelby County have tripled in the few years she has been working with these records. She has dealt with subdivision developments in all parts of Shelby County, and says she is familiar with all steps of the building and land transaction process.

"I want to work with the people give them an answer to their questions when they call the Tax Assessor's office,", she said.

With the tremendous changes coming as a result of the county-wide reappraisal program, the county needs someone who really understands how to make these changeovers in the tax records," she says.

Mrs. Skinner is a native of Shelby and a graduate of Shelby County High School and Birmingham Business She is secretary treasurer of the

She is the widow of the late John F. Skinner, who was a civil engineer with Southern Cement and Alabama Power Company.

Hospital expansion stalled

by Rhodes Johnston

The Shelby Memorial Hospital Board voted at its regular meeting June 27 to hire yet another consultant to try and get the hospital's $13 million expansion program moving.

The program has been stalled since last November when the hospital hired the Tri-Brook consulting firm to work out a budget for the project. "As chairman of the building committee I am concerned about the progress of Phase II," said board member Ben Grubbs. "We have redesigned the project three times and we are still no closer to construction than we were in November." The building committee was given the authority to hire a financial consultant at $50,000 to establish a budget for the 40 bed hospital According to administrator Richard Lind the problem is not with Tri-Brook, but with architects Dampier and Harris whose estimate on expansion was off by 25 percent. The hospital plans to float bonds to finance the projects, but bids on the bonds cannot be secured until the project has a working budget.

On another matter, the board handed Lind a rare defeat when it voted 4-2 to return his proposal for an administrative assistant back to the house committee.

Lind brought the matter up for board approval after the committe, by a vote of 2-1, failed to make a recommendation of the new position.

"We've spent a right smart of money to raise this administration. Our administration is well paid now. We recently upgraded nursing, finance and personnel to the level of administrative assistant," said Herman Moore, who opposed Lind's proposal in committee.

Lind, who called the decision the worse setback of his administration, said the action effectively killed the proposal for this year, because hospital administration graduates must be recruited now.

The board passed a resolution of 'voluntary cost containment" urged on them by the state hospital association and the American Medical Moore abstained in the vote after objecting that the resolution "doesn't say very much.'

Riverchase teachers consider legal action

by Marcia M. Sears

The uproar over hiring in the new Riverchase school has brought forth strong comment this week from some of the teachers who were turned down by the trustees, as well as from other teachers in the system.

Even though the Board of Education defended the teachers, in effect, and declared that the trustees were not a legally constituted group, the teachers are clearly upset.

Following a meeting last week, the teachers posed the questions, 'What are the charges against these teachers? Why do the trustees object to these teachers being employed at Riverchase?"

They point out that no concrete charges were ever brought against the eight teachers. They add that by casting aspersions and by innuendo the reputations of these teachers are being

They also say that the teachers are in the middle of what is actually a power struggle between the patrons of the schools and the board of ecuation.

After delivering a petition bearing 429 names to Superintendent Elvin Hill last week, the Riverchase School patrons have decided to go ahead with a law suit seeking to get their trustees reinstated.

Trustee chairman Dick Mace told The Reporter that school board chairman Elaine Hughes told the on sewer problem delegation that the board could not discuss a resolution declaring the meeting July 26.

"We feel we have to get the ball rolling," said Mace. "If the board reinstates us and confirms our rejection of the eight teachers we can drop the suit at that time."

The trustees and the board have been feuding since June 14 when the board resolved, after a two hour secret session, that the trustees had not been legally elected since there were no students in attendance at the school and that the action of the trustees rejecting eight teachers assigned to the new school was not legal.

The trustees responded by petitioning the superintendent and the board to rescind their action within ten days or face legal action.

Over $500 has been pledged by study.

Brighthope drama gives audience thrill

by Bert Seaman

Fifty years of history was compacted into two hours Sunday night. But Brighthope, the state's first outdoor drama, managed to include most of the salient details surrounding the history of the Brierfield Ironworks.

The production is being staged every night this week in Brierfield Ironworks Park beginning at 8:30 p.m. Thereafter it will be performed every Friday, Saturday and Sunday through

The emotional impact of the two act drama is heightened by lighting, sound effects and cheorography.

In one of the most realistic scenes, a cannon bombardment, complete with the sound of shells whizzing over the heads of the audience, destroys the ironworks, which explodes and partially crumbles.

Another scene that evokes the feeling of "being there" uses lighting and cheorography to develop the mood. It seems that the Creek Indian Chief Holopatha has arisen from the ground where he once stood as he and his tribe say goodbye to the settlers before they begin their trek westward.

The script was written by playwright Kermit Hunter who authored the well known outdoor drama 'Unto These Hills.' It takes the viewer from the year 1816, when white settlers arrived in the Brierfield area up to 1866, when General Josiah Gorgas makes plans to put the plant back into operation.

Co-sponsors of the production are

The Bibb County Heritage Association and the University of Montevallo. Dr. Charles Harbour is the producer and Dr. John Rude the director.

A vesper service at 7 p.m. will precede the performance every Sunday evening. The first service was conducted by Montevallo Methodist pastor Henry Golson and Montevallo Presbyterian minister, Gary Goodman.

Hotel fire raises questions

by Rhodes Johnston

A jury will have to decide if Paula ale Poe was responsible for her actions when, as she confessed to police, she burned down the People's Hotel in Calera April 15.

Her act of arson, revenge she told police for an insult from a tenant at the hotel, caps a dismal life of abuse and neglect.

The case points up a serious flaw in Alabama's judicial and child welfare systems which routinely release custody, at age 18, of disturbed children who have no means of support and, statistically, little chance of a successful life.

Less than two months after the Shelby County Department of Pensions and Security appeared before District Judge William Hill and asked to be relieved of custody for Poe, she was back in front of the judge charged with arson. According to testimony at the preliminary hearing from Calera officer Reed Smith, Poe took up residence in Calera upon being granted her majority.

Officials at Mt. Meigs have told court officials in Shelby County that the youth is incorrigible. His MPI that he has a psychopathic personality.

Problem adults need program

All objective measurements indicate that this young man will continue to commit the crimes he has committed all his life, yet once he is released there is nothing couunty legal officers can do until he commits another crime.

If, or when, he commits another crime he will be tried as an adult and likely imprisoned.

The cost for imprisoning one inmate for one year is estimated at between $8-$10,000. The cost for any future victims cannot be calculated at

Rural teens drink less says UA researchers

Fewer teenagers in rural Alabama drink alcohol when compared to most teenagers elsewhere - but the ones who do drink have a "more abusive drinking style," according to a study by two University of Alabama researchers.

A "moral tone" that discourages the use of alcohol has something to do with this finding, say Dr. Gerald Globetti and Dr. Majeed Alsikafi, professors of sociology, who have studied the drinking habits of rural teenagers in the state. "Sanctions against drinking in "Was it a resident at the rural communities lead to a less controlled use of alcohol where adolescents are introduced to it outside the home and without parental knowledge and approval," Globetti

"Thus, there is less alcohol use but a more abusive drinking style."

The researchers say this style includes frequent intoxication and disruption of relationships.

Noting that national estimates state that between 71 and 92 percent of high school students drink alcoholic beverages, the Capstone researchers report that 39 percent of the 398 rural Alabama high school students surveyed admitted to drinking. In a similar study conducted by Globetti and Alsikafi in another rural Alabama area last year, 44 percent were classified as drinkers, also well below the national norm. Similar figures were obtained in both studies. In the latest study, nearly two-thirds of the rural students who consume alcoholic beverages were drinking monthly, while nationally less than half of the drinkers reported using alcohol this frequently.

The youth were generally introduced to alcohol outside the home at the age of 13 or 14.

More than one-half drank in parked cars or in other unsupervised settings. Three out of five had been high; drunkenness had occurred among one in five of the students, one-third drank whenever they got a chance.

Almost one-fifth said they usually drank to alleviate such feelings as tension, depression, disappointments and irritants. From 20-to-30 percent drank to overcome inhibitions and to gain self-confidence, while 35 percent reported they usually drank to get high or drunk.

"A significant number of rural high school students are drinking in an irresponsible manner indicative of future problem drinking," Globetti

One reason the researchers give for the irresponsible drinking is the lack of education about alcohol. The youth, particularly the drinkers, showed a general distrust of adult agencies as sources of information about alcohol. "The users said they would seek information from their peers if they wanted to know more about alcohol," Globetti said. "Their peers are usually poor sources, since their knowledge has been inadequately gained."

The study reports that the level of sophistication about alcohol and its effects was "almost non-existent."

'Most young people, regardless of their community or origin, will decide to drink," Globetti said. "The elusive answer is how they can best be prepared for this decision."

training, psychological counseling, half-way houses; but there is nothing for those who have been identified as needing these services, but who don't request them.

While we in no way advocate removing the constitutional guarantees against coercion, we do feel it would be in the best interests of the county and state to provide some alternative to dumping our problem children on

There is nothing magic about the age of 18. Eighteen-year-olds are not suddenly enlightened with the wisdom of adults. Usually they continue doing just what they were doing at 17 or 16.

Would it not make more sense to set up some type of supervised work program for these problem children to give the courts some alternative to all or nothing, to treedom or commitment to a mental institution?

If such a program existed, judges could at least be assured that some attempt was being made to give these children, who are often reacting to abuse of neglect in the home, a chance to join society as productive members.

Enrollment for the five weeks of classes, which included a pre-school group, totalled 114, Smith said.

Students used six classrooms, while the Vincent youths in the "Speedy" (6 week) CETA program did a thorough job of cleaning and repainting the others.

Smith related that the two pre-school classes were taught by Fannie Hinds and Dale Sumners. Other faculty members involved in the summer session, Smith said, were Patricia Arledge, first grade; Eddie Mae McGinnis, first and second grade; and Rosemary Bouchet, fourth and fifth grade.

The principal instructed a class which included second, third and fourth graders.

Despite the intense heat of the past few weeks, classes were conducted in air conditioned comfort due to the efforts of the school's PTA.

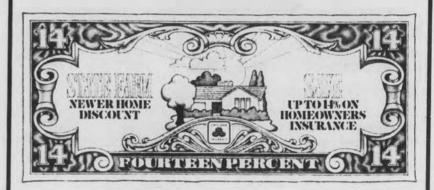

According to Smith, the organization has undertaken a number of useful projects which include putting up curtains in all the classrooms and purchasing TV sets for several of the rooms.

Drainage problems plague subdivision

by Rhodes Johnston

The first two developers sold out, the third is facing bankruptcy and the fourth faces a health department veto and a possible law suit from neighboring residents.

The six acre corner of Cherokee Hills subdivision at the intersection of Caldwell Mill Road and Shelby County 14 has been plagued with drainage problems from the onset.

The present owner, Dale Parker, of Parker Supply Co., "is building at his own risk," according to the county health department's Ron Stutts, who must approve the septic tanks in the subdivision before the deeds can be recorded.

The only house completed in the project was built by Whitling Homes Construction Co. Neighbors report that its septic tank is presently inoperable.

The previous owner, Charles White, of Whitling, reportedly lost the land to Parker during recent financial difficulties. Since March, five judgements have been entered against Whitling in civil court. The Birmingham Trust National Bank has foreclosed on 22 Whitling mortgages. White's attorney says he expects his client to file bankruptcy proceedings.

Residents who bought lots in the original subdivision of Cherokee Hills from developers Carl Street and Emmett Cloud say they have experienced drainage problems since moving in. They have sought legal advice on a suit demanding that the subdivision be halted to prevent further drainage problems in the area.

June Hollingsworth, leader of the neighborhood group, told the Reporter that the Planning Commission approval for the subdivision was made at a meeting at which a quorum was not present; that the Planning Commission had approved a different platt than is recorded in the Probate Office; and that Parker's builder, B & W Construction Co., has stopped work on a half completed drainage ditch

It's time we had a governor who is more concerned about people than politics.

Your state government is a $3 billion a year operation. While it takes more than one man to run it, the man at the top should be a good manager...of people and of money. Maybe that's why Alabama has lagged behind these United States. Lawyers and professional politicians are not trained to manage even small businesses, much less a state. Fob James runs a company he built himself, and he employs 1300 people. He's proven he can manage people and money.

SMALLEY FAMILY HOMES

California law causes concern among county property owners

by Marcia M. Sears

Some Shelby County taxpayers are apparently getting very alarmed over the amount of property taxes they may have to pay in 1979.

The majority are taking it all in their stride, waiting to see how the proposed 'lid bill' that is expected to be passed this summer will affect their

Shelby Countians have already had more tax relief than those in some other counties, because the reappraisal of county property is being completed two years behind schedule.

It is expected, although not certain, that taxes will increase once the new valuations go on the books.

The reappraisal companies, however, do not set the taxes. They only try to determine the market value of property. It is up to local citizens to set the percentage rates of taxes.

Most Shelby Countains are happy to see-that the value of their property has increased. The increases are due largely to the land rush that was set in motion a few years ago when people began moving here to escape the city. When the federal court ordered statewide property re-evaluation, Shelby County took bids from several appraisal companies, and accepted the bid of the Kirby Smith Company of Montgomery for a fixed fee. Smith, in turn, hired the PRC Jacobs Company, a nationally know firm to do the actual work in Shelby County. The Jacobs Company worked with California Aero Topo to do the mapping of the county which was necessary before reappraisal could begin. However, the California company was beset with problems and delays, and finally went bankrupt. The bonding company continued the work and all but the final steps are now completed in Shelby County.

Shelby County could have contracted directly with Jacobs except for the fact that Governor George Wallace insisted all reappraisal contracts be given to Alabama firms.

Since there were no firms in Alabama engaged in reappraisal work, this gave an opportunity for several persons to set up private companies quickly and sub-contract with out-of-state reappraisal firms.

about the valuations assigned to their property until after the so-called Proposition 13' passed in California a few weeks ago. The publicity surrounding it caused some to examine their property taxes more closely, and now the grumbling is increasing.

Those who do not like their valuation can seek adjustment from the Jacobs Company, which is still holding hearings in Columbiana.

After the records are turned over to the county tax assessor, complaints can be directed to the county Board of Equalization.

The Shelby County Commission has seriously considered suing the Kirby Smith Company for its failure to complete the reappraisal on time. But last week county attorney Frank Ellis told the Commission the suit would probably not bring in eough money to be worth it. If the county were to sue for $60,000 and win, costs of the trial (including attorney fees) would probably take much of it, he

The company has suggested that if the county would accept appraisals updated to February 1, 1978 rather than October 1, 1977, and agree not to sue, that the matter could be settled peacefully. The Commission agreed that this was probably the best

from Shelby County

by Richard Crosby

After less than a month on the job, Shelby County High's head coach Danny Ridgeway resigned.

The announcement came last Wednesday morning. Ridgeway explained his decision, saying "There is nothing negative about Shelby County involved in my decision to leave. I had an extremely good opportunity offered which I felt I was unable to

When Ridgeway was named head coach for the Wildcats, it ended a two month search for Robert Fairley's replacement, and now Principal Don Bulger is out searching for another coach again.

On Friday, June 23, Ridgeway formally met his 1978 football team for Shelby County. Now it seems that the squad will endure another change, maybe not unlike that which Pelham experienced last summer.

Don't Compromise..

You'll log for less with Thompson.

Like David Mickle of Opelika, Alabama does. "I bought two Caterpillar 518 skidders from Thompson for a number of reasons. First, the machine. It's built to last longer. I'll get five years from these machines, where I could expect maybe three from other skidders around.

It'll outdo all others in the woods. I don't know another skidder to stay with it.

Second, because of the resale value. I'll get my money back on a Caterpillar. Look around at the used skidder prices. It's smart to buy a machine that'll be worth something when trade-in Thompson Tractor Co., Inc.

And because of Thompson Tractor. Their branch in Opelika is important to me. I get any part in less than 24 hours. And their field service is there when I need it.

Looking at the whole picture, you just save money when you buy a Caterpillar 518 skidder with Thompson."

Don't settle for anything less than the luxury you really want to surround you. It's so easy to have when you deal with the fine folks at...

Choice of oil for frying fish makes a difference to taste buds

by Earl Franklin Kennamer

What do you use for fat when

Your choise is most important because you need a medium that will cook the batter-coated fish or fillets as quickly as possible. This means a fat that will take high heat without burning! You know what happens to

I always thought peanut oil was the last word for fish cooking oil. However, I found out recently that soybean, safflower, and even corn oil have as high a "smoke point" as brands of goober oil. A high smoke point means the oil will get hotter our pioneer ancestors use when frying meat and fish raw. without burning or smoking than a shortening or an oil with a lower smoke point. Olive oil and most vegetable shortenings have lower smoke points. The rating of the oil with the highest smoke point appears. at present, to be a brand of soybean

I checked with Susan Reynolds. Alabama Cooperative Extension Consumer Education specialist, and she gave me these ratings: peanut oil. 446 degrees F.; cottonseed oil, 444; lard, 419; and one brand of solid shortening, 375. She did reassure me I was correct on my statement about peanut oil, although it tops its nearest competitor by only two degrees.

When you use oil to cook fish. you don't want to use the oil for frying meats, but you can reuse the oil later for anther fish fry. The smoke point is lowered a little each time you fry with an oil. While I think of it, don't heat an oil until it smokes! Stay just below that heat. Most cooks strain oil used in deep fat fish frying and store the oil in a covered jar or can in the refrigerator. I often use a few raw French fries or four or five slices of raw white potato to absorb any off-flavor before I cook fish again.

While younger men travel the length of a football field carrying a ball, a 74 year old Shelby man covers the same distance with a push plow.

Some men in their seventies might be content to sit and rock, but Oce Vanderslice, who'll turn 75 in August, still tends two gardens. And one of them has rows as long as the field where gridders play.

What's even more amazing, is the fact that Vanderslice uses only a hoe and push plow in his gardening once the soil has been broken up by Ed

When you do find him sitting on the porch of his modest home, his hands are usually busy shelling peas, snapping beans or cutting up other vegetables in preparation for canning. Produce that he and his wife can't use is given to neighbors.

As he picked okra from a row that rambled the length of the 108 yard long garden plot, the longtime farmer pointed to the dry soil. "If it would just rain," he exclaimed, "I'd have enough here to do Shelby County."

Despite the dry weather, the garden is producing a good yield. Last week, Vanderslice noted that he'd picked 3½ bushels of beans.

home. In it he grows okra, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, pole beans, watermelons and peas.

On four lots across from his home, the prolific gardener raises peas, beans, corn and tomatoes.

In addition to his outside work, Vanderslice also has to look after the home due to his wife's health. So he gets an early start on the day, usually getting up at 4 a.m.

Talking about his own health, he claims that he's seen a doctor only once in his life, and that wasn't till he

By the time winter rolls around, the family should have their shelves filled with preserves. So far, they've canned 130 jars of beans, 57 pints of kraut and 18 jars of cucumber pickles.

Vanderslice moved from Chilton to Shelby County when he was nine years old. He says he's lived on a farm all his life, so he's had a long relationship with the soil.

Indicating that he hasn't slowed down much over the years, the farmer pointed out the tomatoes he's planted. With a hint of pride evident in his voice, he said "I dug the holes, filled 'em with water and put the plants in as

Farmers reminded to report acreages

"Shelby County farmers who have programs, if they will report their planted cotton, corn, grain sorghum, wheat or soybeans are reminded that low is the time to report the sizes and intended uses of their 1978 program acreages," Tommy Baker, chairman of the county agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, said this week.

Final acreage certification date is July 31, 1978.

"This acreage report is a little more detailed than others of recent years because the program assistance for farmers is more extensive," Baker said. "The benefits also are available to farmers who are growing the crops but not participating in the set-aside

- Crops and acreages of set-aside and those diverted for payment.

-- Wheat crops for haying or grazing for payment.

Baker said: "The County ASCS Office will make random checks of farms to verify that acreage reports are accurate and also make aerial photographs available for farmers to identify their fields."

She exhibits a quiet pride in her accomplishments as she prepares for future events.

The hallway of the Murdoch house is filled with medals and trophies won by Sandy and her older leaves her with a healthy appetite. One brother, Todd.

Todd quit because he thought swimming to be a lonely sport. Mrs. Murdoch said, "He used to comment about practicing day after day staring at the black line of the bottom of the

On her final day at Valley, Principal Norma Rogers found out about Sandy's accomplishments and had an announcement made over the intercom system saying, "We have a superstar in our midst."

Sandy said she was so embarrassed she "almost cried."

Riverchase to use recycled waste water

by Rhodes Johnston

Harbert Construction is one company that is doing its environmental homework,

The Riverchase developer has come up with an innovative way around the sewer connection moratorium that has held up development in the Cahaba River basin since September, 1975.

After installing a $1.5 million three stage waste treatment plant near the 22 acre lake on the Riverchase County Club golf course, Harbert will dilute the effluent in the lake and use the water to keep the golf course

Construction of the sector of Riverchase west of U.S. 31 was held Improvement Commission (AWIC) and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) refused to permit additional tie-ons to the Cahaba Waste Treatment Plant until assurances could be given that the water quality in the Cahaba would not be lowered from the present fish and wildlife classification.

Initially the EPA had refused to allow developers to build their own waste treatment plants, but approval of plants at Inverness and now at Riverchase indicate that position is oxidation ditch with a 12 hour retention time (This method has worked well in Trussville and at up when the Alabama Water Turkey Creek); a secondary clarifier and a chemical clarifier.

> As approved at the AWIC meeting in Birmingham last Monday, during periods when the flow in the Cahaba River exceeds 50 cubic feet per second (cfs), the waste water will be discharged into the lake. From there it will flow into Dodd Branch and then into the Cahaba at a point 3.5 miles below the U.S. 31 bridge.

When the flow in the river is below 50 cfs, as it is during most of the summer, the waste water will flow through a 12 acre filter bed providing The Harbert plant will employ an a minimum of four feet of prepared soil, and be retained in the lake for irrigation purposes.

> Riverchase spokesman Leo Moorehouse said Harbert had initially proposed spraying the treated waste on woodlands, but was turned down by AWIC "because of possible leakage into ground faults."

> Commissioner Louis Grabensteder expressed concern that the spray from the watering system might release viruses into the air.

> Commission Chairman Dr. Ira Myers said that effect had not been demonstrated anywhere in the nation. The proposal then passed unamiously.

> The AWIC also approved an increase in the discharge from the Inverness waste treatment plant from 270,000 gallons per day (gpd) to 480,000 gpd. The commission approved an increase in the discharge of the plant from about 90,000 gpd to 270,000 gpd last fall. The level of pollution measuring indicators was not increased in the permit.

The Inverness plant was built after a Jefferson County project to run sewer lines from the Cahaba Waste Treatment Plant to Leeds and Trussville was abandoned after a cave-in near Altadena golf course.

SHELBY H. PATRICK

Commission race gets challenger

Shelby Horton Patrick became the first woman in history to run for the office of County Commissioner when she qualified on July 5.

She is seeking the District Two position on the Commission, which includes Calera, Montevallo, Wilton, most of Alabaster, and adjoining areas. The seat is currently held by Doug Ballard who has announced he will not seek re-election.

Mrs. Patrick has worked in the helby County County Probate Office and the Commission Office. Her husband, Roger Patrick, is a Lt. Commander (ret.) U.S.N.R. They live between Alabaster and Montevallo. Two of their three children attend Thompson High School, and their oldest son is a student at Auburn.

Mrs. Patrick is active in school and community organizations, and takes an active role in the Siluria Baptist Church where she teaches in the youth

In declaring her candidacy Mrs. Patrick said, "I feel that I qualify to run for this position becuase I have had the privilege of working in the Commission office and am familiar with various procedures of that office. I have found serving the people of the county a very rewarding experience and I would like to continue working n this capacity.'

During her campaign she expects investigate thoroughly the county had program saying she wants the est roads for the county and wants ife roads. She would like to see the inty function without borrowing, d she said she would carefully valuate the county's spending policies o see where money could be saved.

Harold Walden, who is now The two veteran office holders District Attorney for the 18th Judicial found that they will not be opposed in Circuit, qualified to run for the new Judgeship created for the Circuit by Mrs. Quick is seeking her third the legislature last spring.

As the courthouse clock chimed five o'clock, the deadline for Democrats and Republicans to file for office passed.

Three persons filed for local offices in the last few days before the deadline. Shelby Patrick signed up to run for the County Commission, Ben Howell of Columbiana filed for the board of education, and Al Chatham of Harnersville became the third person to enter the race for tax assessor of Shelby County.

No Republicans filed for any of the purely local Shelby County offices, much to the surprise of the nervous Democrats who watched the all day.

Three well-known county Republicans however, are seeking positions in the state legislature. Tom Longshore announced as a candidate for the State Senate in District 18, challenging the Democrat incumbent, Lister Hill Proctor.

J. Arthur Jones, former chairman of the Shelby County Republican Party qualified for the House Seat now held by J.T. "Jabo" Waggoner. This district includes much of north Shelby County. Democrats contesting challenging Waggoner are Frances C. Coggin of Vestavia and Jake Vaughn of Bluff Park.

Ray Ledbetter of Vandiver, current chairman of the county Republicans will take on the winner of the Democratic primary, which will see a two-way race between the incumbent, Sonny Moore of Sterrett. and Bill Morris of Alabaster.

"A bank has agreed, subject to certain conditions, to lend us money as it is required," Jack VanPelt III reported to the North Shelby County Fire District trustees Monday. The trustees have been seeking funds to back the fire station and equipment, first applying for federal

The conditions include the submitting of a complete district budget and use of a corresponding bank in Shelby County.

The $400,000 loan would have

"It doesn't detract from surrounding buildings," said Dillard. "It blends in real well.

Trustee John Pruett reported architect Gene Terry would adapt the plans to their needs for no more than $6,000. The fee includes all the architect's usual services such as periodic observation and final inspection of the project. Use of the drawings hinge on the release of the plans by the city of Hoover.

The 4,350 square foot structure with a three-bay garage area cost Hoover $133,000 to build in 1975. Pruett said Architect Terry estimated ths same building would cost $160,000 to construct today. Construction time would be approximately nine months.

The trustees told Pruett to go ahead with getting Hoover's approval to use the plans.

A lengthy discussion followed on the selection process and qualifications to be used in hiring a fire chief. Dillard volunteered to develop personnel

Reappraisal riles some taxpayers

by Marcia M. Sears

What does the new property reappraisal mean to the average Shelby Countian in terms of taxes?

The answer is not certain, because so much depends on what the legislature does by way of a 'lid' bill next month.

If the legislature takes no action at all, property taxes are bound to go up in Shelby County, and the percentage of increase will be high for those persons who find their property is in the high growth parts of the

In other words, a person with this type of home has been paying $46.50 in annual property tax, but wi ll pay $144.50 in the future, unless the legislature changes the law.

This example is for a house outside the municipalities of Shelby County. Every city in the county adds from 3 to 4.25 mills to the 30 mills that the county collects.

His Pop, D. H. Bentley, who lives on Silk Stocking Street, had given them a scare. That's why David Bentley, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Tallassee, was having lunch with his pretty Mom in the cafeteria at Shelby Memorial Hospital. And that was one of the reasons I was there.

David is a big preacher, 6-4 and 230 pounds, and his lunch consisted of a bowl of soup and a small package of crackers. I'm a little guy, 126 wringing wet, and I was having beans and tomatoes and potato salad, followed by a slice of pecan pie. Mrs. Bentley just sat there, nibbling on her food, and listened to us talk.

"It takes a lot for a fellow my unnecessary waste of the taxpayer's size," I said, sprinkling salt on my

David took a swallow of soup and stretched his long legs under the table. "I can see that," he said.

The conversation turned to the weather, 101 outside where an oak tree grew, and 130 in the sun. It had been the same for two weeks. Folks walking around with little depot stoves doing nothing.

"How has the weather been?" David asked.

I pointed at the grass outside. It looked like stubble in a hay field after three frosts.

"That grass looks good compared to my com patch," I said. "The only thing I know that looks like it is a

A man passed with his tray piled high with food. He was middling size, about 150 maybe, with short legs and a bulgy front that might have been a pillow under there. He sat down at a table nearby and pulled his tray up close while a little smile played along his mouth.

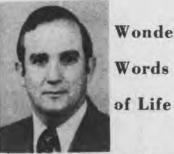

The laugh came back and the little shaking in front and the long legs slipped out from under the table and crossed one over the other.

That was last week. Mr. Bentley is a lot better now and on the way to being well again. David is back in Tallassee eating fresh beans and ripe tomatoes and corn with milk in it. Mrs. Bentley, bless her heart, is humming in her kitchen again. And I'm glad. Because, for years and years, the Bentleys have been pretty special in my life.

Wonderful Words

How are People Made Believers One of the most challenging questions of the ages is, "How are people made believers?" People generally answer in one of two ways. First, one becomes a believer as a result of the direct operation of the Holy Spirit upon the heart of an individual. Or, result of hearing the Word of God. What is God's answer to this question? One, Cornelius became a believer when he was taught by Peter "words whereby he and his household could be saved." (Acts 11:13, 14) The reason for Cornelius's having been taught the truth is explained by Paul in Romans 10:17, which states, "So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God." Two, seed sown by the sower produced faith. "The seed is the Word of God." (Luke 8:11) The devil is very careful to snatch the seed from the Because of the irregular shape of heart, "lest they should believe and be Alabama, certain assumptions were saved." Three, Christ, Himself, stated in John 17:20, 21, "Neither pray I for these alone, out for all them that shall believe on me through their word, that they may be one,...that the world may believe that thou didst send me." Thus, Christ stated that one becomes a believer by hearing the apostles' doctrine in the New Testament. Four, John stated in John 20:30, 31, "Many other signs therefore did Jesus in the presence of His disciples, which are not written in this book; but these are written, that ye may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye may have life in His. name." Thus, faith does not come through a direct operation of the Holy Spirit, but by hearing the Word of God.

RHODES JOHNSTON

Reporter running

in delegate race

Rhodes Johnston, a writer for the Shelby County Reporter, has qualified to run for delegate to the December National Democratic Party Conference

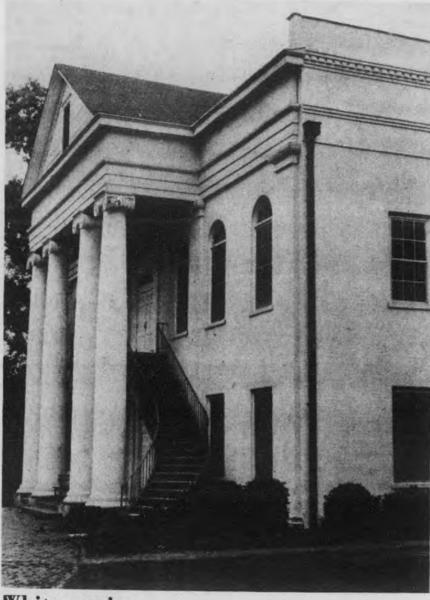

"It is important that the politicians running for national office understand that the people are fed up with an arrogant, wasteful and distant bureaucracy. At a time when party platforms have come to mean only what the head of the ticket wants them to mean, the national party conference offers an opportunity for the people to offer constructive criticism and ideas for change in the party," said Johnston. "I can promise the voters of the 7th Congressional District a strong and articulate voice in Memphis."

The 24 delegates chosen from Alabama will join with delegates from the other 49 states to work on the draft of the 1980 Democratic Party platform. In addition they will be asked to see how well the party is meting the obligations set out in the 1976 platform.

A resident of Columbiana, Johnston has worked in Alabama since 1972 and for the Reporter since October. He has also been a newspaper reporter in Nashville, Tenn. and in California.

He is a graduate of Ramsay High School, in Birmingham, and Vanderbilt University.

Burglars make clean sweep of Alabaster doctor's office

by Bert Seaman

Mrs. Charlotte Davey felt that something was amiss Wednesday as she opened up the Alabaster office where she's a receptionist.

And as she walked into the building occupied by Dr. James Wise, her suspicions were confirmed.

Sometime over the Fourth of July holiday, the office had been ransacked of $5,000 worth of medical equipment, furniture and other office

According to Alabaster Police Lieutenant Leroy Davis, one of the investigating officers, the office was entered through a bathroom window in the rear of the building. He reported that it had been pried open.

The office, located adjacent to Shelby Memorial Hospital, was apparently entered after dark either Monday or Tuesday as numerous used matches were found throughout the building.

In addition to the medical equipment, the burglar or burglars also took such items as the telephone and answering system, a desk set, light fixtures, wastebaskets and potted plants, a typewriter, dictaphone and adding machine.

Puzzled by what was taken, Mrs. Davey noted that even the pillows on the examining tables and half used cans of cleaner were among the missing items.

Since the law went into effect May 1, dog catcher Lonnie Coston has picked up 152 dogs found running loose and delivered them to the county animal shelter.

When the city council voted in favor of the ordinance, they agreed to have Coston patrol on a daily basis for three months so most of the strays could be rounded up.

And while they've eliminated most of the ownerless dogs, Steve Coston, who assists his father, reports that some of the wiley canines have Huckabee was helping a North Carolina man locate the home of a relative in Shelby County between 3:30 and 4 a.m. Fourth of July morning while a hit and run driver in a red vehicle rammed his car.

Police have samples of the assaulting vehicle's red paint and its tire tracks.

Officer Huckabee said he returned to the station, after taking the lost motorist to a motel in Alabaster, to find his car completely turned around. Upon closer inspection, he found the side caved in at several points. Evidently, he said, more than one pass was made at the car.

It is unknown what spurred the act. Police are investigating the

A room's whole character, and your decorating outlood can be changed by a couple of good coats of paint. Some points to remember for getting the best paint job with the least amount of work include, first to paint the woodwork. Start by removing door plates and other hardware. Use a liquid sander on woodwork with a sound surface of semi-gloss paint. If the old woodwork has been stained dark or if the finish seems thin, use white shellac to seal it. Use a small scraper to remove blistered areas caused by window condensation, and feather edges with 80-grit sandpaper. Your choice of woodwork paint can be gloss, semi-gloss enamel, or semi-gloss latex. Use both a short-nap roller and brush to expedite the job. Then, mask the windows and use good sash brush.

Before the law was passed, members of the city council had been plagued with nuisance complaints about dogs at almost every meeting. But the ordinance seems to have eliminated the fussing.

Smog list misses South

Most environmentalists can guess which U.S. ctiy has the worst air quality.

Los Angeles, famous for its smog, was the easy "winner" in a study published by the Council on Environmental Quality. On 318 days in 1975--the year on which the study was based--its air was "unhealthy," "very unhealthy" or "hazardous."

But the list of runners-up contained a few surprises, according to the National Wildlife Federation, which monitors the nation's air pollution in its annual Environmental Quality Index report. The next-worst cities, and the number of days on which their air was "unhealthful" or worse were: Denver, 177; Albuquerque, 150; Philadelphia, 150; New York-New Jersey Metropolitan Area, 149; Boston, 147; Houston, 141; St. Louis, 140; San Francisco, 127; Spokane, Wash., 126; Phoenix, 118; Fairbanks, Alaska, and District of Columbiana, 90; Sacramento, Cal., 88; Louisville, Ky., 72; Steubenville, Ohio, Alabama Development Officer director Red Bambert drove up from his Montgomery office to attend the AWIC meeting.

Bamberg has been pressing to get the AWIC approved as Alabama's water pollution control agency. The ADO head has run into problems from the EPA Atlanta office getting approval for some of the industries he has recruited to Alabama.

The EPA has withheld recognition from the AWIC because of the commission's poor enforcement record.

Commission Director Jim Warr reported "frustration" in the negotiations with EPA for the right to issue federal water pollution control permits in Alabama.

The AWIC will have, with EPA authorization, $93 million to spend on water quality improvement in the state next year. This sum includes $35 million not spent last year.

In connection, with hiring firefighters, the trustees adopted the same pay rates used by the Pelham Fire Deaprtment, VanPelt said, "We've got to pay rates in accordance with those used by the Pelham Fire Department. VanPelt said, "We've got to be in line with Pelham or we're going to have problems." The trustees were concerned about North Shelby firemen switching to Pelham for increased pay.

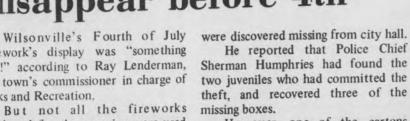

The scale allows for bi-weekly payments for the chief and other fire officers. The chief would receive $537.60 every two weeks. An insurance program, vacation schedule and pension plan are included in the adopted plan.

The trustees efforts in getting a map ready to base billing rates are progressing, with several subdivision owners submitting lists of the names of their residents. Diane Seagle voluntary head of the mapping effort, presented a plan whereby 15 teams of two people could be used to complete the mapping. Seagle submitted a form the mappers could use in canvassing the area collecting the necessary information.

Alabaster police are now able to pinpoint the hot spots in their traffic pattern thanks to a push-pin map designed by two Alabaster officers.

The map of the city area shows the time, location and severity of all accidents worked on city roadways since January 1.

Anderson said, "The map will help us determine where we need to concentrate effeorts in traffic control.'

Red, yellow and blue pins dominate the map and are heavily massed in the area between city hall and Hwy. 119 on U.S. 31 South.

"More than 20 percent of our traffic accidents from January through June occurred in that two-block area," said Anderson.

"We have increased enforcement on stop signs, speed and stop and go signals on main street," he added.

The only white pin, denoting an accident with a fatality, points out the railroad crossing on Hwy. 66 or Industrial Park Road. " Some of our most serious accidents have occurred there," said Anderson. That crossing will soon be marked by a railroad

Columbiana councilman moving to Inverness, resigns office

by Rhodes Johnston

Beautification and neighborhood complaints headed the agenda of the Columbiana council last Thursday. Councilman Clark Dean, who is moving to Inverness, resigned his post.

The council authorized Mrs. Karl Harrison and Mrs. Melville Harlin to reorganize the inactive Community Action Council as co-presidents of the new Columbiana Beautification Board.

Among the first projects of the Beautification Board will be installing islands in the county courthouse parking lot.

The Community Action Council met three times during its year and a half existence and according to ex-officio member councilman W.R. Glenn "talked a lot about cleaning up vacant lots, but never did anything."

In response to a question about the old courthouse from the resigning Dean, Harlin suggested that Sherman Holland donate his lot behind the recently declared historic site so the Beautification Board could create a small park.

A list of nine grievances was presented to the council by Buddy

Roy, spokesman for a delegation of citizens from Billingsley subdivision.

The main complaint of the group was against George Wright, who raises German shepherds at his house across the street from the apartments on Mooney Road.

"Does Wright have a license to operate a kennel," Roy asked the council. Our subdivision regulations say we can only have two dogs per house. We are not after the people who have pets and take care of them, but we don't want to live next to a kennel."

A check of city ordinances turned up no kennel regulations.

Roy said he had obtained a pistol permit. "I don't want to shoot other people's dogs, but we have to live in the neighborhood too."

Another member of the Billingsley delegation, Simon Flournoy said 26 dogs lived on his block.

The council agreed with Roy that garbage service was a problem all over town and said they planned to take the service over when the present contract with L. F.Coston expired.

The council was able to satisfy the group that street lights, markers and the neighborhood was in sight.

Assistant police chief Mickey Kirkland used Roy's complaint about speeders as an introduction to his request for $2500 for a new radar unit. The council agreed by a vote of 4-1, with councilman Frank Owen voting no, to enter into a lease purchase agreement for the new unit, providing city attorney Karl Harrison agrees that lease purchase agreeements are exempt for the state's bid law.

Owen protested that the police already had a usable radar unit.

Kirkland also secured the authorization of $350 to purchase two resuscitators for the police department.

City Manager Buck Falkner suggested that the town's 30 year old business licensing scheduled be revised. Mayor Dick Ozley and clerk Mary Largin plan to attend a seminar on license fees to be held in Tuscaloosa July 12-13.

Dean told the mayor he would see the town's new computer billing program through to completion. He

County football season being prepped for kick off

Special to the Reporter by John Tishler

As preseason football magazines begit to hit the newsstands proclaiming which team will be the 1978 National Champions, who will make All-American and who will be named Coach-of-the-Year, football fans' thoughts are also turned toward August 25--the first night of high school football in Shelby County.

What is happening in high schools around the county? What do football players do between the end of spring training and the beginning of those hot August practices?

For Shelby County, all seven football playing high schools reported informal weight lifting and speed building programs to help players get ready for the beginning of football practice on July 31. While no school can require players attend summer workout programs, every school is keeping its gym open three to four nights a week as football players begin getting in shape.

Shelby County Assistant Coach Don Pouncey, summed up the reasons for the summer workouts. "It is not mandatory," he said. "However, it sure is nice to have a bunch of guys come in here in August in good shape. We can spend more time working on football drills than on conditioning." Pouncey reported the Wildcats had Montevallo senior offensive tackle, Buddy Holsombeck (6-2, 230 pounds) surprisingly voiced a liking for the workouts. "Shoot, I don't mind them that much. I've already lost 11 pounds this summer. I hope to lose ten more before our

"When you're doing these drills, you don't think they're worth it at first. But then, when you start football practice, you see it really

According to Calera head coach Rick Cairns, the Eagles have been able to do almost everything they wanted, despite renovation to the Calera gym. "Some of the boys are lifting weights," he said. "We have our weight room open two or three nights a week, but it's still all lowkey."

Coach Larry Simmons of Thompson is involved with a summer recreation program. "The recreation program is open to the public four nights a week. Not many of the players have been down on a regular basis to work out on weights or run, but a lot of them are on vacation. We won't really get started until July 31."

"Our biggest job this summer is to reline our field and get our stadium ready for our first game," been running since the third week in reported Vincent head man Gary weight workouts and the players are said Chelsea Coach Richard running on their own. Right now, though, we've got lights and goal posts all over the field. There's not a whole lot of room for them to do anything."

Pelham is doing much the same as all other teams in the county. "The gym is open Monday, Wednesday and Friday for anybody who wants to come by," said Assistant Coach Ron Griggs. "We hope the players will be in fairly good shape before our week-long camp at the University of North Alabama begins July 31. About 20 boys have been coming to the gym regularly."

"We're trying to round up some of the players, get them in shape,' Conkle. "We're going about this thing about like everybody else is. The boys are working on their own, lifting weights and doing some running. Of course, we don't do anything officially until July 31."

While no actual hitting has been done, don't be misled. County football teams look like they're doing everything they can to get ready for that first practice July 31. In the meantime, it seems Shelby County football fans will just have to be contented with reading their football magazines--and watching their calendars for that first prac-

Star speaker lineup fills coaching clinic

Fourteenth Annual University of Montevallo Basketball Coaches' Clinic broke its attendance record for the session held this past July 6-

A total of 95 people, men and women coaches from all parts, registered, breaking the old mark of 92 set the year before.

The coaches were treated to an outstanding weekend of fun and basketball learning, participating in golf and tennis tournaments and hearing such noted coaches as Gene Bartow of Alabama-Birmingham, Murray Arnold of Mississippi State, Aided by the attraction of a star- Frank Gourdouze of Southern studded lineup of speakers, the Union State Jr. College, Steve Jefferson of Birmingham's Carver High School, and Butch Stafford of Eufaula High.

The golf tournament was won by Charlie Pridgen of Bay Minette High School, with a 36-hole score of 146. It was the third straight title at the UM Clinic for Pridgen.

The tennis singles was won by UM's own Dr. David Morgan, Chairman of the Department of Social Sciences. The doubles category was won by Bruce Stewart and Paul Sinoki. Bruce was an assistant at Chattahoochee Valley Community College last year, and Paul will be the assistant at CVCC this coming season.

The only sour note to the whole weekend was the fact that UM head coach Bill Elder, the clinic host, came down with a sore throat and couldn't attend every function.

Ready to putt out

Sometimes even a four foot putt won't drop....especially when you use Gene Bartow's golf balls. The 36 hole golf tournament kicked off the University of Montevallo Basketball Clinic last Thursday afternoon. Lining up the putt are Joe Brindley, Executive V-P of UM, Bill Elder, head basketball coach, Gene Bartow, Athletic Director and head coach for the University of Alabama in Birmingham, and Dr. Leon Davis, Athletic Director for UM, (Photo by Richard Playing six different teams, the Shelby Merchants averaged 15 runs a game, and swatted 16 home runs during the tournament. Only two of the six games went the full seven innings, becuase the Merchants pulled ahead early in four of the games.

Coached by James Harris and Mike Woodliff, the team defeated Central Bank of Oxford 16 to 6 for the final victory.

That game ended with a breathtaking three-run homer brought in by Richard Self.

Self, the left center fielder for the Merchants, was voted "Most Valuable Player" of the entire tournament. He hit a total of five home

Other teams in the tournament were Hooper Telephone, West Point Grocery, Pell City, Coosa Valley Merchants and Redmon, from Ft. Payne.

The Alabaster team also won the Clanton invitational tournament on July 4. They are now posting a season record of 53-13 and have won 22 straight games.

Next on their schedule is the state tournament in Cullman, which is scheduled for August 4, 5, and 6.

City tournament draws 10 teams

Two Montevallo women's softball teams wound up in the finish of the tournament sponsored Saturday by the Montevallo Recreation Department Board, but it was the Clyde Turner team from Huffman that finally took the number one place having gone through the daylong tournament undefeated.

The Montevallo Merchants team came in second, and the Montevallo Beavers were third. Names of the Merchants' team are with the photo. Members of the Beavers team who stayed with it during the long hot day were, Liz Johnson, Maggie Breece, Kay Covington, Jan Hart, Debbie Elder, Debra Cain, Carla Jarvin, Jenny Fuller, Rita Harris, Lessie Gaddis, Sharon Cain, Cheryl Culver, Angie Velarde, Barbra Wallace, Christie Perry, Rita Griffin and Kathy Owens.

Billy Joe Holsomback was in charge of the tournament, standing in for recreation director Ott Knight who was in the Bahamas. Holsom-Games began at 9 a.m. and con-back was assisted by Bill Cannon.

Snooze time

Little Ashley England lost interest in home runs and fly balls after watching her daddy, Greg England, coach the winning Clyde Turner team all day Saturday. She couldn't stay with it for the last game, and plenty of spectators at the day-long tournament were envious of the way she coped with the situation. (Reporter photo)

Greg Key, described by University Riesener as "probably the most of Montevallo baseball coach Bob complete player ever signed by us here", has become the third UM baseball signee for the 1979 season.

The 5-10, 160-pound Key, a native of Inverness, Fla., was selected on the 28th round of the major leagues' summer draft back in June by the Oakland A's. He is the first professional draft pick ever signed

At Citrus High School this past spring, Key hit .379 with 3 home runs in 30 games. "Greg has fine home run potential," observed Riesener, "because he has excellent wrist action."

Key joins two other Florida players, both pitchers, as new Falcons for the 1979 campaign. The others, Carlos Ruiz of Miami Springs, Fla., and Bob Hendershot of Auburn, N.Y., were both redshirts last year at the University of Miami.

The addition of these three players should help Montevallo as they attempt to shore up a pitching park located 11/4 miles east of Westover staff that suffered occasional leton old Highway 280 according to downs, and add to a potent offense that batted .291 in leading the Proceeds will go to the Westover Falcons to a 34-27 record and their Youth Baseball. "I just like doing it," the former receptionist said. "I had been working in an insurance office during the day-to which I hope I never return and in a store at night.

"The way I look at it," she said, "there are probably men that would rather be sitting in an office behind a desk. I didn't like that."

"Just because I'm a woman doesn't mean I don't have the right to choose," she said.

Edwards, along with Teresa Pointer of Talladega, said they were learning a a good deal from the course.

"I couldn't even operate a wrench when I started," laughed Edwards.

Pointer commented, "It's fun. We've really got some good instructors."

Overstreet said during the time the course has been offered at the park 126 students have been enrolled. More than 50 percent of the graduates have been placed in jobs related to their training. One woman from a previous class is now employed as an equipment operator in Wetumpka earning more than $8 an hour.

Overstreet said the group has not received word yet whether the program will be funded for the next session. He anticipates the course closing down during that time but hopes funding will be regained.

While watching one of the female students operating a bulldozer, Overstreet laughed and said, "I think they're doing all right."

Another spirited political race is on! The final date for candidates to qualify to run for the various offices has passed, and those who met these requirements will soon be greeting you and asking for your 'vote and influence'.

I believe an eroneous idea has long permeated political races for public offices in that many people seem to be laboring under the impression that if a person is successful in attaining the public office he or she is seeking that the people have rendered them an out right

They fail to take into consideration the preparation needed to equip an aspirant for public service and do not seem to realize that anyone ambitious enough to place themselves under microscopic observation of the people usually have--or believe they have -- certain qualifications that warrant such distinction, in that he or she has something to offer of equal value to the mere monetary reward the office carries.

A conscientious official usually devotes his entire time to the faithful discharge of the obligations he assumes when he accepts the custodianship of a public office. He regards the office as a public trust, one he is responsible to the people who placed him in charge and in return for such recognition, as a rule, keeps every official detail to the best of his ability, in order to merit the faith evidenced by the people's approval of him. When this is done, the official record he makes reflects whether or not their faith in him has been justified.

I believe most of our officers realize these official responsibilities, and give to the people full value in return for the remuneration they receive for honest effort expended.

At any rate, official records are indisputable evidence of a person's fitness for public service and on this factual evidence he should be willing to stand or fall. On these records they should be judged other than on viewpoints of lesser importance.

Therefore, these personal suggestions might be worth thinking over to determine these facts before swinging the lever of the voting machine.

Weigh the evidence and qualification of each candidate-then as a free American proudly vote your individual conviction.

Only when you have done this have you fulfilled the obligation you assume when you express your right

Flip your CB to channel 9 to get help

If you're on the road and have car trouble flip your CB to channel 9 to contact a State Trooper Post. The Alabama State Trooper Post Headquarters personnel has begun monitoring channel 9 due to the heavy use of channel 23.

Col. M. L. Hilyer, Department of Public Safety Director, said "If you are out of range of a Trooper Post, contact should be attempted with Trooper patrol cars on channel 19. If you call for a Trooper and fail to receive a reply, please remember the Department is drastically short of highway troopers. There will be times when you will not be able to contact a Alabama State Trooper directly." From now on, to contact a State Trooper Post use CB channel 9 and to reach a patrol car use channel 19.

County kitchens get eye from Health Department

by Marcia M. Sears

How do Shelby County's food establishments measure up to the health department's scale? All such establishments are subject to regular inspection by health authorities who grade them on a point scale of demerits.

The Shelby County Health Department inspects restaurants and the meat departments of grocery stores about every month. Cleanliness and freedom from insects are the major part of each inspection. However, an establishment can also get demerits for certain faults in the building's construction.

Jim Hollins is the Environmentalist with the Shelby County Health Department who makes the inspections. Because of a heavy work load in the department, it is not always possible to inspect every establishment every four weeks, but every attempt is made to do so, according to Ron Stutts, Environmental Supervisor.

If a food establishment gets from 0 to 10 demerits, it is rated "A" by the Health Department. If the number of demerits is from 11 to 20, the rating will be a "B". When the number of demerits goes up between 21 and 40, the establishment earns a "C"

When the demerits top 40, the Health Department can order the establishment closed.

Stutts said that no establishments have been ordered closed in recent months, but four or five have been on legal notice. He said that traditionally store managers give prompt attention to cleanliness when the Health Department puts them on notice.

The most common violations have to do with general cleaning, Stutts said, and with improper storage of foods and/or cleaning materials.

The grade is posted in every establishment that handles food, for the public to see.

The following list, provided at the request of the Shelby County Reporter by the Health Department, shows the standings of the various county food establishments as of Monday, July 17.

The number listed after the name of each establishment gives the number of demerits the health inspector found on his most recent inspection. Following the demerit score is the grade, the location and the name of the operator.

Both the demerit score and the grade might change on the next inspection.

Peeler told the council he was disappointed in the decision.

"We are spending a lot of money to upgrade our water system and fire department so that the town's fire insurance rating can be lowered from eight to five," explained Councilman Roy Jowers. "I don't want the annexation of Peeler's property to interfere with the rating examination."

It seems likely that Pelham will soon begin growing to the east, since the town is boxed in on three sides.

The recent annexation election claimed land to the Helena border on the west, to Riverchase on the north and to Oak Mountain State Park on the northeast.

Reappraisal based on 75 year-old map

by Bert Seaman

Is anyone planning to build a subdivision in some south Calera cow pastures? The P.R.C. Jacobs Co., who recently completed the county's land reappraisal program thinks so.

And going under that assumption, the company placed, what landowners contend, is too high a valuation on their property.

At Monday's county commission meeting, two landowners from the area, accompanied by County Planning Director Paul Owens, aired their grievance before the panel.

According to Owens, the Jacobs Co. based their land valuation on a map dated 1891 which had been found in courthouse files. The map of the proposed sub-division had been submitted by the South Calera Land and Improvement Company.

After the Jacobs Company's refusal to reconsider the property evaluation on the basis of open land rather than treating it as subdivision lots, Owens was consulted about the matter.

Since the appraisal company insisted that streets and alleys in the proposed project belonged to the county, Owens advised property owners to petition the Commission to relinquish these rights.

Carl Bailey, one of the property owners, told the Commission that a 50 by 140 foot lot was appraised at $700. The land, which is approximately one mile south of the Calera City limits, contains some woods but is mainly pastureland.

Half of the proposed sub-division would have been in Chilton County. The Shelby County section covered 160 acres.

political candidates, County Highway Director Jimmy Ray reported to the County Commission Monday on the latest proposed road projects for the county.

Both Ray and Gubernatorial hopeful Jere Beasley, who spoke briefly to the panel, lamented the condition of the state's highway department.

If elected governor, Beasley declared, "We're going to do something about the road program.'

Explaining that the five road im-

He pointed out that the much needed road work they had approved had also received the go ahead from the state's division and secondary engineers as well as from the state highway director.

As he hasn't been able to round up the necessary amount of money, the County Highway Director reported Tuesday that he's already lopped off one project, bringing the total cost of the improvements down to $359,200. The original figure had been $526,850.

Pointing out that 70 per cent of the funding was federal money, Ray related that the county's share would be $108,000. He noted that he'd been able to secure federal

On the campaign trail

by Marcia M. Sears

Political rallies, dinners and handshaking are quickening the step of life in Shelby County these days, as candidates for dozens of local and state offices begin their campaigning in earnest.

The Vincent Quarterback Club raised $600 last weekend at a cake sale for politicians in the high school gymnasium.

Wayne Sumners, president of the club, presided at the event which was staged to raise funds to re-light the football field.

All the local candidates were there except Elvied Parker and Charles Knowles, who sent a representative. Two running for state offices were Julian McPhillips, running for attorney general was represented by his brother and Bill Baxley, running for governor, was represented by John Tanner of Pelham.

Sonny Moore was the auctioneer when it came time to bid on the cakes that were baked by women of the community. Most of the cakes went for $25 to $30. The biggest price paid was $100 for an Italian cream cake baked by Estelle Sum- Montevallo were hosts at a barbecue

These "educated" parents don't even seem to know why the eight teachers are being rejected, and certainly, they wouldn't mind these teachers they consider unqualified teaching someone else's children. It is interesting to note the board of education is the Shelby County Board and not the Riverchase Board.

I would like to find out if I have renewed my subscription to the Shelby County Reporter. I've had a lot on my mind lately and I don't know if I sent it or not, and I certainly don't want to miss an issue.

I also would like to say that I enjoy the Shelby County Reporter very much. I always have. It is a ray of sunshine in my life and I want to thank all the staff there.

We'd play up there, swinging from limb to limb, huge limbs that spread out in every direction, some of them no more than four feet above the ground. But the hog pen isn't what I'm thinking about tonight. Nor the hogs big as cows that filled up the smoke house later on. The hams and shoulders and sacked sausage that hung above the hickory fire. Nor the fresh sausage and ribs with meat on 'em and backbone that tasted like they ought to taste that a boy could smell cooking all over the house.

Nope, not that. But weeds that grew in a low place, a sort of swamp beyond the pear trees, where the water never quite dried up no matter what the weather. A weed as ugly as any other weed with a stalk as big as a hoe handle and on every inch of the stalk from two to five stickers sharper than Pop's razor.

But there's another thing too. Last summer with the drought in full blossom I decided to use barnyard fertilizer on my garden this year. And so I headed for Royce Morris' farm. Royce lives up the Wilsonville road, past the Hub Gould house and Barnett branch with redhorse minnows under the high bridge and the Will Holcombe place with red plum trees in the yard and the washhole in J.A. Cates's pasture and Bethel Church behind big oak trees.

I turned left at the church and it was just a little ways from there. Royce's house sits on a little hill. Standing in his yard, you can see forever anyway you look. And if you look close enough, you'll see cows, hundreds of 'em, grazing the day

Pop's hog pen was on top of a right. This is where I found the fertilizer.

And so I planted my garden, broadcasting the fertilizer over the ground and hoeing it in. With a little rain in early spring it all came up. What didn't wash away during the two heavy rains in late May. But that was before June got here. June, wi th the temperature never below 90 and the closest rain in Saginaw, Michigan. I buried my garden on the seventh day before June got here. June, with the afternoon. The pallbearers came from far away and wanted to get home before dark.

But the weeds, that came along with the barnyard fertilizer, whipped the drouth. The same old pig weeds we had brought up from the low place beyond the pear trees and pitched ov the fence to Pop's hogs sixty years ago. And they haven't changed a lick. The stickers are still there, sharp as Pop's razor. And if there's one in my garden there must be a thousand.

I thought you might like to know. I knew you would if, when you were a boy, you had to tote pig weeds to your Pop's hogs.

Wonderful Words of Life

How People Are Made Believers People are made believers by hearing the word of God, not by direct operation of the Holy Spirit. Paul stated, "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth, to the Jew first, and also to the Greek." (Romans 1:16) Paul also said, Romans 10:14-17, that believers learn to believe by hearing the gospel preached. It is thus that they are able to call upon the name) of the Lord in obedience. Paul told the Corinthian Christians, "I begat you through the gospel." (I Corinthians 4:15) When religionists set aside this basic principle, they also set aside the following:

First, the mediatorial work of Christ is disregarded. John 14:6 states, "I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the father except by me." Christ is the truth. In Christ's prayer to the Father, He prayed. "Sanctify them through the truth; thy word is truth." (John 17:17) Thus, Christ sanctifies through His word.

Second, the work of the apostles is disregarded. In giving the Great Commission, Christ commanded His disciples, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them into the name belief in the average man because he of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded ledger was balanced the evidence you; lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the world." (Matthew 28:19, 20) It was through the gospel revealed by the inspired apostles that men were

Third, the work of the church is disregarded. The church is to preach the gospel to the lost. Paul stated, "But if I tarry long, that thou knowest how that thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the church of the Living God, the pillar and ground of the truth." (I Timothy 3:15)

Indeed, the gospel is God's power to save, for it is the sword of the Spirit (Ephesians 6:17) and it is the seed of the kingdom. (Luke 8:11)

Is more staff needed?

Anticipating that the move to the sometime in September, the Sheriff's Deputy Tom Barnes asked the County Commission Monday, to appoint a committee to work with him on discussion for staffing the facility.

Agreeing to Barnes's suggestion, the panel asked Commissioner "Jake" Morris, Commission Assistant Carlton Franks and Planning Director Paul Owens to work with the deputy.

A parade of political candidates filed through the Commission chamber during Monday's meeting. And gubernatorial hopeful Jere Beasley, commenting on the prison system, termed it "pathetic." However, he complimented the county's governing body on their new facility.

Commissioner Doug Ballard questioned Barnes about the state loading their prisoners in the new jail. The deputy replied that the jail would be filled to capacity when the county moves in eliminating the possibility of having to take any more state prisoners.

Barnes pointed out that the move across the street would not take place before September because all the furniture has not arrived and communica tions work is incomplete.

Close by, Savata was soundly asleep, unaware of the upcoming tragedy. While playing with the different fixtures of the camper Charles Allen came across the door knob of the camper. In the past the door knob had been hard to open and presented a challenge.

The family was headed north on stunned and held on to the knob as sudden he was there in the middle of Sunday night marked the end of Interstate 65 in Chilton County, in it flared, throwing him like a slingshot onto the rough asphalt. The young boy was grinding against the roadway while his unsuspecting parents drove on into the darkness. Bleeding and terror-stricken, Charles Allen picked himself up from the road after a seemingly endless roll on the asphalt. Though he miraculously escaped serious injury from this fall, three trailing cars had narrowly missed him while he was tumbling down the interstate. In a vain effort to catch his parents, Charles Allen broke out in a sprint in the middle of the road. At this point he recalls thinking he'd never see his parents and sister again.

Quickly approaching the frantic youth was a car driven by Jim Lammon of 929 Ferro Avenue, Bessemer. Jim, along with his wife ably snuggled between her two door suddenly flew open with a Sharron were also returning from a

The Lord must have stopped our car. We ran into a ditch to avoid him. When we stopped the boy was standing beside my husband's door."

The Lammons quickly wrapped the boy in a blanket and headed north on I-65 in search of help after numerous cars had passed their car despite waves of distress. Continuing north the Lammons noticed a transfer truck parked on the southbound lane. The Lammons told the truck driver of their plight, who in turn got on his citizen's band radio and pleaded for help.

Calera policeman C.P. Martin heard the distress call but could not reply on his mobile unit. Martin notified the police dispatcher Bob Barefield to reply to the trucker on the department's base station where a definite location was obtained.

Martin picked up the injured 7year-old at mile marker 227 just north of the Chilton County line and brought him to the Calera

Charles Allen's parents traveled closer to home.

With 12:30 a.m. closing in, they thought they would stop and check on their boy and passenger to see if all was well. Pulling his pickup over on the side of the road near Green Springs, Charles Bartee walked around the back of the camper and pulled the ajar door open. What he didn't see sent tremors of fear through his body. Mr. Bartee quickly told his wife that Charles Allen was missing from the camper. "I first thought he was just joking. But when I got to the back I went into hysterics. I just knew my boy had climbed out and was lying dead on the side of the road somewhere."

"My husband and I went crazy. We were praying to God that our boy was all right."

Alabaster lass scores in two state pageants

A willowy young miss who will be entering eighth grade at Thompson Middle School this fall has been proving her talent with a baton for the past three years.

Since she entered twirling competition, Kelli Wyatt of Alabaster has won 314 trophies. Now she's being recognized for her looks and dancing

At 5' 101/2", Kelli stands out in any contest she enters. And recently, judges in the state's Ideal Miss contest put their stamp of approval on her looks and talent by presenting her the Alabama Ideal Teen floating award.

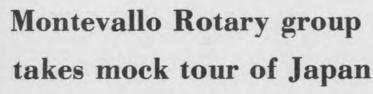

Prior to entering the state contest, Kelli copped Jefferson County's Ideal Teen award and in another Jefferson County pageant, she was named Cinderella Teen.

For her talent in the Ideal Miss contests, the 13 year old attracted the judges attention with her character dance routine from Thoroughly Modern Millie.

The competition also entailed modeling and an interview with the judges. Making her mark in these categories too, Kelli had the best overall interview in the Cinderella contest and was voted the most original photogenic.

Right now, Kelli is playing drums in the band, but when she's eligible she has her sights set on being a THS

As for entering twirling and beauty contests, she plans to keep on and to better prepare herself for the latter, she's now beginning private

Decorating TO THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERT

Now that we're all becoming more sports minded, the problem of where to store our gear can be a challenge, instead of tripping over the trappings of our athletic hobbies, storage for tennis rackets, skis, jogging shoes, skates, and golf clubs to mention a few, requires creative planning. Built-ins, modular units, shelves and closets can be converted with ingenuity to hold bulky items. A large trunk or cabinet is must for home storage. Heavy peg board and hooks it neatly arranged will keep rackets, skis, and small items off the floor and in order. It makes sense to protect your investment in expensive equipment by planning clean, dry storage space.

When you need decorating ideas for your home, come in and talk to us at BECKY'S INTERIORS, Main St., (P.O. Box 22), Calera, 668-0249. We cary the finest selection of quality carpeting from most major manufacturers with some in stock. We carry all types of wallcoverings, custom draperies and bedspreads (made locally), woven wood shades and the latest in modern venetian blinds. We are your key to good decorating services. BECKY'S INTERIORS is open from 8 until 5 Mon. thru Sat. and from 8 until 8 on Thurs.

Confronted by a delegation of concerned citizens, Harpersville Mayor J.W. Donahoo revealed the own and water board's plan for lealing with the present water crisis. Donahoo at first explained that his was not a water board meeting, out when the delegation persisted nd after councilman Thomas Green read from title 37 section 441 of the state code empowering nayors to take responsibility for public utilities, he answered the group.

According to the mayor, the well driller, American, predicts that the new well will be grouted and ready to begin test pumping this week.

As to when the well will be able to supply water to the system, that is in the hands of state environmental health administration director Joseph Downey.

Downey must certify that the turbidity in the well is less than 2. before it is accepted by the state. When he halted testing of the well to require proper grouting, the test reading was between three and four.

Donahoo admitted that neither he nor the water board contacted the state about grouting the well. This had caused the present delay in

The mayor also said that the 600 gallon per minute pump Harperville placed in the last well probably caused it to cave in.

Harpersville is also planning to tie nto the new six inch main that the own of Vincent is extending past 'incent Elementary School.

Many trucks weighed found in violation

During the month of May, Alabama State Troopers working on truck weighing and random vehicle inspection details made 1,200 arrests.

There were 1,405 trucks weighed during May," said Colonel M.L. Hilyer, Alabama Department of Public Safety Director. "This resulted in 402 arrests for weight violations and 37 arrests for other violations. There were 19,791 vehicles checked at random vehicle inspection points resulting in 761

"Troopers arrests and warnings totalled 2,221 during May this year compared with 1,732 during a similar time period last year," said Captain N.W. McHenry who coordinates random vehicle inspection activities. "Although there is no significant change in the precentage of arrests resulting from inspections, the percentage of total arrests for driving without a license has gone down while the percentage of total arrest for license plate violations has increased."

"About 40 percent of the trucks weighed during May last year were in violation of state law setting the maximum permitted weight for trucks," said Sergeant W.R. Applin who coordinates the truck weight teams. " During May this year, 29 percent were in volation. The greatest changes were among trucks hauling lime, with the percentage overweight dropping from 64 percent during May last year to 46 percent during May this year, and among trucks hauling steel, with none of these overweight during May last year and 24 percent The troop made the trip out west overweight during May this year."

Policewoman patrols Pelham

Chief C.C. Watson and the latest member of the Pelham police force, Lois Spradlin, paused before the new officer went out on patrol. A former policeman in Arkansas, Spradlin began patrolling for Pelham this week.

Policewoman hired by City of Pelham

The Pelham Police Department has hired a new officer. She is Lois Spradlin of David Drive in Pelham.

Spradlin comes to Pelham with one and a half years service of police work in Arkansas. She moved to Alabama four months ago and has been employed as a dispatcher for Montevallo for the past month.

According to Police Chief C.C. Watson, Spradlin was hired two weeks ago and placed on the reserve list. She has been riding with other officers during that time, learning the ropes and getting her bearings in the city while she worked out her notice at Montevallo.

Spradlin said she never encountered any real problems during her time as an officer in Arkansas and added, 'I don't foresee any here."

When asked what he thought of having a female policeman on the force, Watson laughed and said, "I think it's alright or I wouldn't have hired her." He seconded Spradlin's sentiments on the future saying he saw no problems ahead.

The 22 year-old blond began work this Monday at 8:30 after being sworn in. She patrols in the same manner as her male counterparts and is currently working day shift. But, according to Watson, she will participate in the shift rotation with the other officers.

So if you get stopped in Pelham and a blond steps out of the car, it isn't Angie Dickinson. Check the nameplate, it's Lois Spradlin.

Sparkman assesses U.S. relations with U.S.S.R.

Relations between the United States and the Soviet Union cover a broad spectrum of attitudes, according to Senator John Sparkman (D-Ala.), Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

In broadcast media interviews during the weekend, Sparkman assessed these varying relations.

"Our relations with the Soviet Union range from delicate to normal, to strained to blustery, to magnanimous to hard-nosed," he said. 'They zig and zag, we might say, and are up or down, depending on the matter being discussed and the viewpoint of the person doing the discussing.

"Societ policy toward the United States is almost a mirror image, up and down, zigging and zagging. At the moment, unfortunately, the image is blurred and many of the doomsayers are predicting that this blurring is the beginning of another period when frictions will increase, tensions will rise, and cold war rhetoric will fire new fears.

"We undoubtedly do have serious disagreements with the Soviets over new issues, such as human rights, old issues such as the conflicting claims of world domination and arms questions.

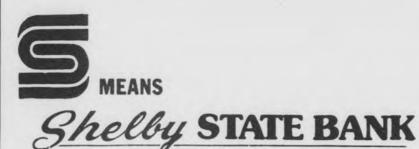

"These disagreements are a dangerous problem for us and for the and China could push us back toward

"The more pessimistic commentators also fear what appears to be a dramatic increase in Soviet military strength and adverturism through the use of Cuban troops as their surrogates in Africa."

Scottsboro trade day origin a mystery

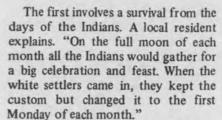

by Henry Willett On the first Monday of each month, and on the Sunday preceeding, thousands of people gather around the Scottsboro, Alabama Court Square to buy and sell produce, craft items, antiques, and junk, and to trade knives, dogs, swap stories, carve wood, listen to old-time string music, or just plain hang around. This is an old-fashioned town trade day, and part of a longstanding tradition of such trade days.

No one can remember when Scottsboro had its first First Monday. It has just always been there, much like the group of old-timer whittlers who pass the day sitting around the courthouse even on second, third, or fourth Mondays.

Most of the older residents remember First Monday as being primarily a horse-trading day back at the turn of the century, and early newspaper accounts seem to bear this out. It was a day when horse-traders from all over the county would converge on the courthouse grounds to buy, sell, and swap horses.

Several years later farmers joined the horse traders and came to the courthouse to sell their produce on the first Monday of every month. Now everyone sells anything and everything and the horse-traders have disappeared.

Why the first Monday? This seems to be as much disputed as the subject of when the first First Monday occurred. There are two favored explanations.

Another resident favors a different explanation. "You see, circuit court used to come through here on the first Monday each month, Everyone from the county would come in to the courthouse to see what was going on

Annual Blessing of Fleet attracts thousands to Bayou la Batre

in Bayou la Batre on Sunday, July 30 spotlights that area as being one of the most important seafood ports and trawler building centers in the world.

Although Bayou la Batre is a small place on the map, 25 miles south of Mobile, at the gateway to the Gulf of Mexico, its seafood and Bayou built trawlers make it a significant name the world over.

Many of these people at the generous invitation of boat captains, board the trawlers and make the ride down the Bayou, into Mississippi Sound and back to the mouth of the Bayou.

Then, the Bishop of Mobile performs the blessing. Each vessel as it passes the official boat, is blessed by the Bishop. "... May God ... fulfill abundantley the prayers which are pronounced over your boats on the Occasion of the Blessing of your fleet. God bless your going out and your coming in..may he fill your nets...and may he bring you safely in when you turn your boats homeward to shore ... '

Although the day's atmosphere is as festive as a summer Mardi Gras, the Fleet Blessing prayer and the lowering of a wreath in memory of fishermen since gone, add a touch of serenity to the event.

This is the 29th Blessing of the Fleet, sponsored by St. Margaret's Parish of Bayou la Batre.

On Saturday evening at 6 p.m. the official Fleet Blessing Mass is also held at St. Margaret's Church in the Bayou. The Church is beautifully and appropriately decorated for the

An explosion in the number of thedfts of pleasure boats and equipment has prompted marine insurers to consider setting up a Marine theft Bureau similar to the National Auto Theft Bureau. It would function as a clearing house for information on marine thefts for law enforcement officers and insurance companies. In addition, it would aid in preventing thefts and assist in locating stolen boats and equipment. The theft of $61 million. worth of pleasure boats and equipment in the United States in 1975 alone has prompted this proposal.

whom hadn't played ball before, went out on the field for the first time this year, and proved that they knew how to win a ball game.

In fact, the Alabaster Bombers came out on top for sixteen of the seventeen games they played to become champions of the Alabaster Pony Tail League.

When the team wound up play at the Sub-District Tournament in north Bibb County last Wednesday, they found themselves with a second place trophy.

In the double elimination tournament, the Bombers beat Greenwood 25-5 and Pelham 22-6. However they were routed twice by a tough South Bibb All-Star team 28-1

During the regular season the girls' only defeat came as the result of a game being rained out.

Coach Faye Woods attributes the winning season to the attitude of the Thirteen Alabaster girls, most of girls and the support given by the parents. She said that her players hardly ever missed a practice and that parents backed them 100%.

Besides transporting the girls to their games, she noted that the parents also acted as a cheering squad.

Mrs. Woods's husband Kent, and Joe Brown are also coaches for the team. Players are: Laurie Glasgow, Pam Bunn, Tami Promer, Kim Brown, Jennifer Bryan, Della Payton, Tami Cohill, Stacy Neal, Bridget Taylor, Donna Bryant, Stephaine Powell, Monica Swigart and Debbie Hedrick.

Jeanie Promer is team mother and has done a fantastic job, according to Coach Woods. Scorekeeper for the team has been Dale Payton.

by Mark Jones

The First Annual Calera Tennis Tournament is now underway at the town's spacious Oliver Park with double and single tennis play. Doubles matches concluded last weekend after a field of 15 tennis duos vollied it out for the top spot. James Doughty and Jeff Hand of Columbiana ran away with the first place trophy after dominating tennis play from start to finish. Their victims in the championship game were Sonny Perkins and Calvin Henderson. The Alabaster pair of Perkins-Henderson fell to the champs in two straight sets 6-2, 6-2.

In the consolation game for third, Kent Keller and Charles Massey, both University of Montevallo tennis players, downed Calera's Jimmy Johnstone and Montevallo's Kim Lunceford in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4. The championship and consolation games were played Sunday afternoon.

Before the pair of Doughty-Hand made the tournament, the Columbiana practice grounds' preliminary

SCHS head coach calls first meet

Columbiana's new head football coach, Mark Bradley, is calling a meeting of all Shelby County High School football players for Thursday night, July 20, at 7:30 in the school gymnasium.

He said it will not be necessary for the players to dress out. The meeting is for the purpose of getting acquainted, he said.

Following the meeting with players, Bradley would like for all interested football boosters to meet. He has suggested the hour of 8:30 for the boosters' meeting.

With only two weeks remaining before the opening of football practice, the new coach is working at his office every day, organizing plans for the season.

matches took place Saturday, July 8. The opening match of Mark Jones-Jeff Whitfield versus Mark Bacher-Bill Smith set the tempo for the tournament. Jones-Whitfield (Calera) took the first set easily 6-1, but were outplayed the next two sets by Bacher (Calera)-Smith (Clanton)

7-5 and 6-2. Next the Kent Keller-Charles Massey pair defeated Mike Carden-Howard Baer duo after a first set loss of 5-7, 6-3, 6-4. Carden (Vestavis) and Baer (Calera) were downed after having taken a very competitive first match.

Once again Columbianans stepped in and took yet other matches. Kyle Joiner-Mike Conn won over Gary Hadaway (Calera)-David Downs (Calera) 6-4, 7-5. Comrades Doughty-Hand made short work of Calerans George Roy-Don Lowery, Still in opening day play, brothers Charlie Goggins (Alabaster)-Jerry Goggins (Montevallo) were defeated by eventual second place finishers Perkins-Henderson 6-4, 6-3. Dale Milstead (Calera)- Tim Whatley (Clanton) downed the tournament's only mixed double entry Victor Lawrence (Calera)-Pat Handley (Pelham) 6-3, 6-0.

Paul Roberts (Pelham)-Bill Eddings (Altadena) and Johnstone-Lunceford drew first round byes.

In quarter-final action Keller-Massey smashed by Bacher-Smith 6-0, 6-1. Doughty-Hand continued on their merry way by vollying Joiner-Copnn 6-3, 6-1. Perkins-Henderson marched to the semi-finals by spinning Robert-Eddings in straight sets, 6-4, 6-1. Johnstone-Lunceford advanced by downing MilsteadWhatley 6-3, 6-2.

In the semi-finals Doughty-Hand blew by Keller-Massey 6-2, 6-1 while Perkins-Henderson did away with Johnstone-Lunceford 6-2, 7-6.

Tennis action continues this weekend with the singles tournament. Play starts at 8 Saturday morning. Tournament coordinator David Downs states that the tourney will be an annual affair and that this year's competition has been fierce. "They've all been good matches. The competition has been better than we anticipated. Everyone's looking forward to the singles. There have also been good crowds."

Everyone is invited to attend Calera's first tennis tournament Saturday and Sunday with matches · all day long. *********************************

MVP Roger Moore returns to 'launching pad' at Montevallo Middle School

Special to the Reporter by John Tishler

The asphalt becomes soft around noontime. Sweat pours off the players and beads up on the black surface before soaking into the playground. The temperature hovers around 100 degrees as ten or fifteen teenagers race back and forth between two basketball

This has been the scene almost any day this summer behind Montevallo Middle School. While basketball may here to college; some, like Roger be out of season to most people, it never is to these young men in Montevallo. Play is not limited to just the summer either. Attendance swells to 50 or so during the cooler months.

For the past ten years, this asphalt slab has been the launching pad for outstanding Montevallo High School basketball squads and these grounds earlier produced members of some outstanding Prentice High School teams. A few players have gone from this summer-it's too hot," he said. "I'll go over and talk some, watch a Moore, have done extremely well after little.'

> While at Walker this past year, Moore was voted the team's Most Valuable Player in addition to winning a two-year scholarship to Athens. "It was a great honor," Roger modestly recalls. "They presented it to me at a banquet."

While we are talking, his mother brings a very large trophy. It is for the Walker Most Valuable Player. She is obviously very proud of her son's accomplishments. And well she might

How did Moore do it? Standing only 6-3, he was able to lead the Rebels in rebounds over opponents that stood three or four inches taller than himself.

"Offensively, my greatest asset has been my quickness," he said. "I would usually post out about 15 feet from the basket and drive inside, using my quickness to get around any man for the good shot. Also, my jumping has been very important. When I get in a game, I can really jump. That's usually how I get a lot of my rebounds. I'm very quick jumping off the floor, so I can get a head start on my opponent when I go up for a rebound."

Moore's speciality has always been raking in missed shots. In 1976, as a Montevallo High School senior, he snagged a school record 28 rebounds against West Blocton. In addition, he led the team to the State Tournament where the Bulldogs had won the 2A State Title the previous two years. However, as fate would have it, he twisted his ankle in the semifinals of the Area Tournament.

After MHS had beaten Winterboro and Hokes Bluff for the Area and Region Titles, Moore came back for the State Tournament and saw limited first round action against Madison County. However, Moore played one of his finest games, hurt ankle and all, against St. Jude. Matched against huge Walter Montgomery (6-7, 230 pounds), Moore held the Pirate star to

However, Moore, who was named to the All-State team at the end of the tournament, was unable to play much against Colbert Heights in the State Finals as the Bulldogs fell by three

Moore then headed for Walker where he played forward. At Athens, he says, he still expects to play forward and "maybe a little guard."

When it came to choosing a school after two years at Walker, Roger's playground experiences proved the deciding factor. A friendship formed on the asphalt in Montevallo gave Athens the edge.

"UM (University of Montevallo), a school in Virginia, as well as Athens offered scholarships," he recalls. "I have a good friend at Athens-Ken Connell--he used to play for Montevallo High School and we used to play ball over at the Middle School. I saw him having a good time, he liked playing there, so I thought I would like it there, too," Future plans for Moore don't necessarily include the pros. "I'd like to give it a try if I'm drafted," he said. "But, I'd mainly like to get my degree and coach in high school.

Moore seems to be already trying his hand at "coaching". During the course of our interview, the phone rang. A young MHS basketball player was calling. "Yeah, I'll be over in a little while. Tell him I'll call him back," Moore told his brother who had answered the telephone. Yes, Roger Moore returns to his boyhood playground, but not so much as a player; more as a coach and advisor of younger players who are carrying on a tradition.

On September 5, you will have the opportunity to do your part toward making democracy live in Shelby County by going to the polls and expressing your preference of candidates by your individual vote. We sincerely urge every eligible citizen to exercise the right of freedom of expression on this occasion. Your vote may well be the deciding factor in some of the races.

Around the coffee table this morning a lady remarked that she had two friends running in the upcoming election and she just might 'go fishing' that day--lest by voting for one she 'might lose the friendship of the other'. We hope she reconsiders this attitude. Friendship is a great thing to have--and to preserve--but if it is not founded on anything more stable than a political platform--we doubt if much would be lost on the part of either.

We hope she takes into consideration the candidate whom she believes best qualified to fill the position he or she is seeking--rather than factors of lesser importance. Far too few people in the last two or three elections have taken the trouble to vote. Neglect of exercising the franchise may lead toward destroying this priceless heritage.

We often take our many blessings for granted here in our beloved America; and only by comparison with other countries can we visualize how very fortunate we really are.

For instance:

A Russian citizen cannot own A Russian citizen may not choose

A Russian citizen may not travel; A Russian citizen may not own

Will it turn out to be an enormous pipe dream? Or will the pipe lines that are a major part of a proposed transportation system turn out to be a key to the economic growth of Shelby County and the Southeast?

The question arose Tuesday when backers of the Kansas City to Brunswick, Ga., transit system presented their ideas to Shelby County officials.

As the scheme is now proposed, the route would swing through Shelby County, from north of Helena to Columbiana and to the Coosa River at about the location of the old county

Elton B. Stephens, Birmingham businessman, whose interests include the Vulcan Bindery in Vincent, came to Columbiana to gain support for the transportation "corridor."

The idea of the corridor is to provide a link from the midwest grainbelt to the seaports of the Southeast.

The corridor would include a highway, pipe lines and rail lines - any thing that would promise moving goods and people efficiently along the

According to the proposal, a swath about 600 feet wide would be needed to provide the roadways and rights of way for pipelines. When the idea was advanced several years ago, the route through Shelby County was considerably shorter than in the new

He doesn't reach home after finishing his shift at Mulga Coal Company's mine until 1:15 a.m. So he almost decided not to attend the banquet July 20 where Emergency Medical Technician awards were to be handed out.

Recounting the experience, Daniel said he was shocked when he heard his name called. "I accepted the award." he related, "on behalf of all the dedicated EMT's who weren't nominated, but who deserved the award just as much as I did."

Hurry up..and wait. That's the yord at the new Shelby County jail.

After years of official and-wringing about the delays here end there in the design and construction of the jail, the officials ire now sitting on their hands not howing any signs of wanting to hurry o move in.

Sheriff C.P. Walker used to blame he County Commission for not jushing the contractor hard enough. Now the Commission is waiting for the heriff to pick up the ball.

The contractor told the Commission several weeks ago the heriff could move the prisoners in by he first of July. Last week the Commission named a committee composed of Sheriff's Administrative Assistant Tom Barnes, Commission's idministrative assistant Carlton Franks, County Planner Paul Owens ind Commissioner Jake Morris to plan he move.

But a week has gone by without a neeting of the committee.

The contractors wrote a letter to the Commission asking that they recept the keys to the jail this Phursday. But Chairman Tommy Snowden had plans to be out of town, the Commission put off the key ceremony until August 7, since the heriff had shown no urgency to move

The $2 million jail was originally scheduled for completion last October, but delays of various kinds have occurred. The Commission has consulted with its attorney various times about legal action over the delays. All furnishings needed by prisoners have arrived, and the communications system has been installed for several weeks, although a report persists that it is not ready to Prisoners can be seen hanging out the windows of the present jail talking to relatives on the parking lot, and trying to get a cool breeze.

In the meantime, courthouse dynics are saying that the sheriff is too busy with his re-election campaign to want to move in until after the election.

Tom Barnes told the Reporter late Tuesday that he believes more jailers will have to be added to make the new: jail function properly. He wants the committee to meet this week to study how the new jail will operate so when the jail opens, it will "be right."

If more people are requested for the sheriff's department, many observers expect it will become a political hot potato.

The County Commission is not directly responsible for the appraisal program in the county, but Commissioners are getting plenty of flak from people who think their land was re-appraised at too high a value in the recent program.

They went on record Monday favoring a lid bill.

Commissioners Doug Ballard and Ned Bearden asked Chairman Tommy Snowden to get up some examples of appraised values of land owned by the big land companies. They indicated that residential property owners seem to have reasonable or low appraisals, but they think the appraisers "stuck it to those who own acreage."

They want to see how big land companies are appraised, and would like to ee the formula that has been used in appraisal.

Alph Lowe said people are talking about having the Commission lower the millage as one way of reducing the new bridge in the community. Commissioners discussed the matter, concerning the agreement they had reached years ago with S I Lime Company, and noted that the county's part had been completed some time ago. The county built the bridge, and now it is up to the lime company to complete the road approaches.

New places to hold elections were part of the discussion at the Commission meeting Monday. In Beat 11, the location may be the Wan-Bon office, or the Old Mt. Zion Church. The name of the Old Thompson Store has now been changed to Rogers Store, but the building is in the same place, it was noted. In Siluria, the polling place will be moved from the Siluria fire station to the YMCA

A pressure reducing valve will be installed at the new jail at the suggestion of Paul Owens, County Planner, who has been supervising construction of the building.

The Commission said it could not provide 40 to 50 loads of chert to the new King Ranch because there is no public county right of way on the property. The ranch is being built by Tom Owen with public donations to provide a home for abused and neglected children.

Refined coal, the answer to oil?

The world reserves of oil, the fuel engineer at Wilsonville. that took the place of coal in many U.S.factories and power plants when unacceptable levels of air pollution, are dwindling. As oil becomes more scarce its price goes up. This has road had not been built leading up to created a serious drain on our

A key figure in the nation's energy equation are its power generating companies.

Most of the rivers capable of generating hydroelectric power have already been dammed many times over, so until large scale solar generators are designed or the fusion nuclear power of the sun is replicated on earth, we have two alternative

A number of fission nuclear power plants have been constructed in the U.S. The Alabama Power Company, a subsidiary of The Southern Company, recently fired up the Joseph Farley Nuclear Plant near Dothan. The construction of nuclear plants has been all but halted, however, in the face of growing concern about the disposal of nuclear wastes. Wastes which may remain lethal for thousands of years.

The second alternative is coal, but coal contains sulphur and leaves ash, both of which contribute to air pollution.

As the second largest coal user in the United States (behind TVA) the Southern Company has a large vested interest in clean burning SRC.

It takes energy to produce SRC. The process is about 75 percent efficient, according to Gary Styles,

This means that it presently takes six tons of coal to produce 3.5 tons of the latter proved to produce SRC and one ton commercial gases and sulphur.

> Styles said that coal presently costs $1 per million BTUs. An additional $2 per million BTUs is spent for pollution control. SRC costs $3 per million BTUs. This cost may come down as the process is perfected.

> Typically, coal mined in this country contains five pounds of sulphur dioxide (S02) per million BTUs of energy. (It takes about 83 pounds of coal to produce one million BTUs.) Coal mined in the western U.S. and some anthracite coals and metallurgic in Pennsylvania and Alabana have considerably less pollution-causing sulphur, but this coal is hard to mine in the east and expensive to ship from the west.

As explained by Styles, the solvent refining process reduces the S02 concentration in coal to 1.2 pounds per million BTUs and can be adjusted to as little as .6 pounds per million BTUs. The majority of the ash is also removed in the process.

Solvent refining was first used by the Germans. The process used by Catalytic to produce SRC I and Gulf to make SRC II was worked out by the Spencer Chemical Company.

Spencer Chemical was acquired by Gulf in the 1960s which holds the world wide patents on the process. The U.S. patents are in the public

Solvent refining yeilds clean coal

Four years of work at the Southern Company's Solvent Refined Coal (SRC) plant in Wilsonville is beginning to pay off.

Southern Company has been awarded a contract from the United States Department of Energy to design a $600 million SRC demonstration plant near Owensboro, Ky. as part of the effort to curb U.S. dependence on costly imported oil.

Last week the Reporter talked with Southern Company coal research engineer Gary Styles at the Wilsonville pilot plant where Catalytic Inc. is turning out six tons of SRC I per day. The project is directed by the Southern Company and the Electric Power Research Institute, a consortium of power company

"In order to meet federal air pollution standards for coal burning plants, the Southern Company was faced with three alternatives," said Styles. "We could buy low sulphur western coal and transport it to the southeast. We could continue cleaning refining process.

"The western coal alternative turned out to be the most expensive of three because of high transportation

"The continued operation of stack scrubbers and other air pollution devices requires highly trained power plant personnel and the cost of pollution control rises sharply as pollution approaches zero."

If the proposed 6,000 ton per day demonstration plant in Owensboro proves that the SRC process can be adapted for large scale operations, Styles predicts that several large power generators will have 20,000-30,000 ton per day SRC plants on line by

"Our figures indicate that the cost of SRC is equal to the cost of burning raw coal with our present pollution control devices," said Styles. The added dividends from SRC are the simplification of power plant operation and the decreased wear and tear on the plants from burning clean

If the pollution problems can be licked, experts estimate that the United States will have a 200-300 year supply of coal for fuel. The plan is to locate large SRC plants at the center of the nation's major coal fields and ship the coal to users like the Gaston Steam Plant in Wilsonville.

To get SRC, pulverized coal is mixed with a creosote like coal derived solvent, the mixture is boiled at 825 degrees F. in a hydrogen enriched atmosphere, then distilled and filtered until most of the sulphur and ask are

The resulting coal product may be burned as a liquid to replace coal as in Gulf Oil's SRC III and Exxon's EDS (Exxon Donor Solvent) processes, or it may be consolidified, as it is in Catalytic's SRC I process, and burned like coal.

The pilot plant employs about 80 workers, most of them from surrounding Shelby County.

"These men have a right to be proud of their work here," said Styles, "This has been an excellent pilot plant. One of the reasons Southern Company got the contract to design the demonstration plant in Kentucky was the success of this plant."

The extension of time is to allow the developers more time to install concrete drainage. The streets have been in for some time. The developers had deposited a Shadow Brook subdivision just off $25,000 bond with the County, The county thought it wiser to extend the time period until October 24 so the developers could do it themselves. The county could have used the money and installed the drainage, but the board felt it was more practical to give the developers more time to do it themselves.

Gorman resigns

James O. Gorman of Vincent, who has been a member of the Shelby Memorial Hospital Board for about three years, resigned from the board this week because of poor health. The County Commission, which appoints members to the hospital board, did not fill the position at its Monday meeting, but discussed how the membership should be consittuted.

In the past, membership on the board has been involved in several political hassles.

They agreed to appoint two members from each district, and one member from the county-at-large from now on, stipulating that each member must live in the district from which he or she is appointed. The board consists of nine members, and their terms expire on a staggered basis.

Although his Harpersville counterpart has not yet discussed the project with him, Vincent Mayor D.B. Smith says he will be glad to sell water to the troubled Harpersville water system.

Smith said he became aware that Harpersville wanted some of Vincent's plentiful spring water when an engineer employed by Harpersville, James T. Jones, of Gadsden, came to ask about the capacity of his system.

'Harpersville Mayor J.W. Donahoo told a group of disgruntled water users at the July 17 council meeting that the city was planning to tie on to the six inch water main that serves the Vincent Elementary School.

Water Board chairman D.E. Morris told the group the Vincent main was 15 feet east of the railroad tracks that separate the two towns.

Jones, on hand to inspect the grouting of the new Harpersville well Wednesday, told the Reporter that about 4mile of pipe would have to be laid to connect the two systems. He estimated the cost at roughly $20,000.

Smith said he was surprised Harpersville had not looked to Vincent when its well caved in last September.

"We have plenty of water," Smith said. "We have a $500,000 expansion project in progress which will give us two more pumps and bring our storage capacity to 350,000 gallons."

Vincent has received a $112,000 grant from HUD for the improvements and is working on a $155,000 grant.

Plans include a new pumphouse, an eight inch water main to a new 200,000 gallon storage tank and a concrete dam for the town springs.

The Westover well has been strained to serve both towns and residents in Harpersville have begun complaining of having no water when they come home from work in the evenings.

"I would like to see a joint management effort on the part of our two water boards," said Smith, "But I expect Harpersville will just want to buy the water."

The Vincent town well is located at large spring just off the Calcis road. The town has ample water for itself and its smaller neighbor to the west. A

One of the most horrible things that could happen to any family would be to have a fire in their home. Not only is it a threat to property, but it is a threat to life and the lives of loved ones. A fire alarm system can mean the difference between life and death and the difference between major and minor damage. There are many kinds of fire alarm systems. Most have a loud alarm to alert you to smoke or fire and some have a connection to the local fire department. Some approved alarm systems qualify for a reduction in premiums on your fire or homeowners policy.

Shelby Memorial joins others in proposing voluntary limit on health care costs

At its last meeting, the board of directors of Shelby Memorial Hospital voted to join with other medical facilities in the nation to propose a voluntary limit on health care costs.

The move was part of a national effort by the medical industry to Shelby Memorial's cost containing proposal came from board member block President Jimmy Carter's Herman Moore, who abstained in the

According to Shelby Memorial publicity director Sharon Oswald, costs during the first six months at Shelby Memorial rose by only between 10 and 12 percent.

She explained that the difference of two percentage points was due to the fact that the hospital had not yet decided in which budget to place a new pension plan at the hospital.

Oswald said the basic component of hospital inflation was the increase in the cost of supplies, although salaries, fees and the cost of new equipment and construction have also risen.

The Birmingham Regional Hospital Council attended last Tuesday's hospital board meeting to unveil a new public awareness campaign to inform users about hospital costs.

Helena man honored

by Bert Seaman

Even though 45 years have passed, May 5, 1933 is a day that still stands out clearly in the memory of Frank E. "Buck" Cox of Helena.

On that fateful day a tornado swept through the town destroying homes, property and churches, including the Cumberland Presbyterian Church of wh ich he's a member.

The longtime resident recalled the devastation, which included the loss of 13 lives, as he spoke to friends and members of the church which he helped rebuild.

Sunday's service at the Helena church was set aside to honor Cox, who, at 73, is the church's oldest male member.

An award for his long years of devotion and unselfish work was presented to Cox by the church's pastor, William B. Todd. Accepting the honor, Cox said, "I've always had a good time working for the Lord."

During the 52 years he's belonged to the church, the Helena native has served as deacon and was responsible for making the altar, communion table and altar chairs. He related that he's also made pews for his church and others.

After his retirement from Plantation Pipe Line in 1967, Cox turned his energies to his hobby of woodworking and playing the fiddle.

Reaching into his storehouse of memories, Cox told the audience something about his family and the history of the church.

He related that his father moved to Helena at the age of three and his marriage to Matilda Ann Fulgham took place in the community in 1904.

Speaking about the first building which was Helena's first church, Cox reported that it had been located on the land now used for the cemetery. Because members wanted it nearer the highway, Cox explained, Tom Davidson was put in charge of moving Telling something about how it looked, Cox said that the two side doors were made into windows. He recounted that men used to sit on one side of the church and women on the other.

Another feature that stood out in Cox's memory, was the bell and steeple. He remembered that six posts, eight feet in height, supported the bell, which was left open. The steeple then extended another 12-14 feet upward, he remarked.

With pride in his voice, Cox said, "That was the best sounding bell in Helena. And," he added, "We had the best choir too."

Homecomings were always well attended at the church, he reported. Recalling that members spread their food on outdoor tables, Cox said that horses hitched to buggies were tied

He remarked that some families used an ox to pull their wagons and said he could remember the time when he, his wife, and son rode to town on a spring seat wagon pulled by an ox.

Explaining why it took nearly five years to rebuild the church after it was destroyed by the tomado, Cox told of the low wages paid during the depression era. "A dollar a day back then was big money," he recalled.
Founder's of Helena's first

He mentioned that the Lee family had donated the land for the church and cemetery and that Brother Ed Lee was the pastor to serve the church after it was rebuilt.

Other ministers that Cox recalled fondly were A.C. Acton, Pat Minshew, J.C. Hewitt and Fred Holmes.

One of the songs which Cox composed and played on his violin during the service was dedicated to the Methodist minister who died several years ago. It was entitled "O, What a Great Leader.

Humphries stops vandals asks council for raise

by Rhodes Johnston

Wilsonville police chief Sherman Humphries told the town council last Monday that he had solved the recent rash of break-ins and had cracked 219 down on unregistered motor bikes. Then he asked the council for a raise.

Humphries said he knew who was responsible for the break-ins and had alerted juvenile authorities. In one case he said the parents of two vandals were made to pay for damage to a lake front cabin in Wilsonville.

The problem of young motor bike daredevils roaring through town has dimished since Humphries started confiscating motor bikes.

"I keep some of them for a week and some of them for a month," Humphries told the council. "It depends on how I feel about the kid."

The chief said parents were required to get proper tags and mufflers for the bikes before they could be reclaimed.

Humphries then asked the council for a raise from his current salary of $825 per month.

Councilman Ray Lenderman said the council had a policy of giving annual merit raises to its employees. The town's salary structure is due for review in September.

Humphries reported 27 arrests for the month of June. Of these nine paid fines and alias warrants were issued for a mileage charge. Private lines would the remaining 18.

The alias warrant will mean an extra $27 tacked on to the fine. The Public Safety Department issues notices to recipients of alias warrants that their licenses have been suspended.

Remarking that all the juveniles in town weren't bad, Mayor Austin Mitchell asked the council to write a letter of recommendation to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point for Billy Eastis. Eastis is the son of Bill and Lula Eastis. The council agreed to the request.

Councilman Lenderman suggested that since the Alabama Supreme Court next year.

had ruled that electric utilities could not be withheld from a building site pending approval by the health department of septic facilities, the council adopt an ordinance withholding water service until adequate sewer service is provided.

"We've got to answer to adequate sewerage facilities and is not endangering our water supply," said Lenderman

The proposed ordinance will be sent to the town attorney for review.

Concerning water, the town agreed to make water available for six new houses in the Parker Subdivision located at the end of Cove Road.

Wilsonville's fight to get its telephone mileage rates reduced is stalled, according to Mitchell.

The mayor reported that Rep. Sonny Moore and Sen. Lister Proctor had been unable to get a hearing on the case from the Public Service Commission.

Councilman Sherril McClure, who wants Wilsonville's mileage rates averaged throughout the telephone system, suggested that the town attempt a class action suit.

Mitchell said that telephone company officials had proposed eliminating two party lines in the town and offering four-party service without continue to be taxed at the present rate under the plan.

Wilsonville is also negotiating with South Central Bell for a telephone for police chief Humphries. Humphries recently moved and has been told the phone company did not expect to get service to his house until December

Painting and repair work on the town's two water tanks has just been completed at a cost of $8,500. Mitchell reported that the painting company had discovered that the riser in the old elevated tank was badly pitted and would have to be repaired

Sheriff Candidate Haynie says Silent Majority Vote Speaks Loudest

As the campaign trail becomes more heated and it seems everyone is talking politics, I do think there is a silent majority that is playing the wait-see game, which is very good judgment, especially as to who becomes Sheriff of our county is concerned.

We, as law abiding citizens, all know that security for ourselves, our families and our properties has been the number one concern of people since human beings first dawned on earth, and I do believe that the citizens of Shelby County have that same concern in mind. You are wondering that after the voting is all over, will it be better or will it be worse. In my appeal to you for your vote on September 5, 1978 for Sheriff of Shelby County I am not going to tell you anything that I can't actually prove, but my first duties ever as an Investigator and Enforcement Officer was to help break up a gasoline steeling ring while still in the military. After returning from the war zone in late 1942, I was sent to Washington to be taught how to be an investigator and undercover agent by the FBI. After this training we made quick work of penetrating and bringing under control the gas stealing ring. I was complimented for work well done. Then I went to Fort Riley, Kansas as Provost Sergeant in charge of guardhouse and prisoners until discharge in September, 1945.

I would welcome any investigation into my efficiency ratings for the 22 years I served as an Alcohol Beverage Control and Narcotics Investigator for the State of Alabama.

If there ever was such a thing as a pet peeve I am sure mine would be against those that would take away properties that people have worked hard all their lives to buy. I wish I could promise you when you elect me your Sheriff that I could completely eliminate these violations against us all, but I will promise you that when you elect me as your Sheriff that you and I cooperating together, and in cooperation with all other enforcement agencies, can bring it to a minimum.

I also promise you that when you elect me as your Sheriff, I will always be as close as your telephone or the unit radio and ready to accept your call 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Hoping to serve you as your next Sheriff,

Commission hires supervisor

By a vote of 3 to 1 the Shelby County Commission voted Monday to hire a supervisor of the county-wide Bryant to be deputized so he can garbage collection system.

They named Walter Bryant dumping. who is presently with the county highway department, to the post.

In his position, Bryant will be directly answerable to the Commission. The Commission wants to encourage more people to use the franchise collectors, to police the landfills, and to search out people who are illegally dumping trash along the county's roads.

Commissioner Jake Morris objected to creating the position, "It's another car and another man. Folks are getting tired of seeing (county employees) riding around doing nothing."

Commissioner Ned Bearden said, "Well, it's not working the way it is today." He indicated the Commission was being blamed for not doing anything about illegal dumping, and this would be one thing the Commission could try.

Doug Ballard proposed the job be created, "subject to the pleasure of the Commission."

Morris insisted the Commission would be adding a man, but other Commissioners pointed out that Bryant would be transferred from the

The initial investment in the speedway was $10,000. "I hired a contractor to build the track and told him to use his own judgment," Handley chuckled. The result is a quarter-mile dirt oval that has timed some drivers averaging almost 60 miles per hour.

While the banks haven't been figured in degrees, they're wide enough and fast enough for almost any novice racer - the kind of racer the track was built for.

"This is purely for the part-time racer. We're not professionals. there's not enough money in it. People come here to race for the thrill of winning and maybe earning a little spending money. At present, we don't even charge an entry fee for riders to enter a race," Handley

Prior to the start of any races a 'Driver's Meeting' is held. Speedway officials go over a wide variety of subjects from passing rules, starting procedures and meanings of each of the flagman's flags.

These meetings sometimes last 30 minutes as all drivers are given a chance to iron out any discrepancies and questions. Making sure all the drivers are aware of the rules of the raceway and good sportsmanship is a primary goal of the meetings.

Once the race is underway, no one can enter or exit the pit area. Again. life in the pits can be dangerous because a dune buggy going 50 miles an hour and out of control can't see where it's going.

The outside of the track is protected by a wall composed of railroad ties that are set four to five feet in the ground. Massive boards connect the weathered ties to form a rail.

Old conveyer belts are then attached between the boards and the track to give extra cushion to a wandering vehicle.

Lineman destroys myth

Special to the Reporter by John Tishler

Auburn offensive tackle and former Thompson right end Brad Everett is an imposing figure. At 6-5, 245, he is the stereotyped image of an offensive lineman--except in one way. If anyone can destroy the unfair, "dumb hulk" image of linemen in football, Everett is the man to do it.

"Brute strength is not as important to an offensive tackle as intelligence is," the Alabaster resident says, exploding the myth that a lineman is big and strong, but not too bright. "The offensive tackle and all offensive linemen use a controlled, intense aggressiveness.

"An example of how quickly a lineman must think is that sometimes he will have a blocking assignment given to him three separate times, all within a space of five seconds. The first time is when a quarterback calls a play in the huddle. The second time is when the quarterback audibles at the line, and the third time is when the line audibles to change its blocking duties. Football is 80 or 90 percent intelligence."

State, All-County, and All-Mid-State Conference honors; he also was the school's valedictorian. At Auburn, where he is a pre-dentistry student, the versatile Everett made the switch from tight end to offensive tackle well enough to start four games for the Tigers and be named by "The Sports Page" to the SEC's All-Freshman team. None of this has gone to his head, however.

A deeply religious man, Everett credits Jesus Christ with his successes. "Everything I have, He's done for me," he explains. "Why He's done it, I don't know, but I'm really thankful. As I've grown as a Christian, I've seen everything grow for me--my grades, athletics, everything. Without Christ, I would have never made it."

Like many college freshmen, Everett had to get adjusted to a new life style--especially on the football field. "When I first got down there, I was in awe," he recalls. "You stay in awe until your first game. After two or three hits, though, you come county, Everett has spent much of back to reality. I especially remem- his summer keeping himself in con-

Everett has an unusual outlook on personal goals. "As far as the There was more to Everett's ad- pros go," he says, "I don't give that justment than coping with the much thought. I'd like to be a starting offensive lineman. I'd also like to get a strong hold on the No. 1 offensive tackle position, but there's a lot of good competition. It's also important that I do well in school."

Academics and athletics are not the only activities in Everett's life. He is an accomplished musician. At Thompson, he was a baritone in the high school's music ensemble. He can also play the harmonica, flute and guitar.

Everett expects Auburn to do better this year, as a team. "I think we'll be a stronger team offensively and defensively," he says.

While Everett may be expecting plenty of good things from Auburn, no one can doubt that the War Eagles and their supporters will be getting good, solid performances this fall from hard-working Brad

Buddy's team explodes, wins district tourney

by Richard Crosby

Twenty-three homeruns and eight double plays in four games proved an unbeatable combination for Buddy's softball team this past weekend. The team claimed the District Four Major League Slowpitch Softball championship.

This makes the seventh year in a row for Buddy's to earn a berth in the State Softball Tournament which this year will be held in Lagoon Park in Montgomery on August 3, 4, and 5.

The title also boosted the team's first place tournament trophies to six for the year. Buddy's has an overall record of 63 wins and 19 losses for the 1978 season.

The tournament was held in Gadsden, with Buddy's opening with Guyton Realty in a seven inning affair that ended with the Shelby County team winning 6 to 3. The final three games of the tournament for Buddy's were each played in five innings. Budweiser of Anniston fell 21 to 7, Buds of Gadsden succumbed 13 to 0, and Guyton Realty, who had fought through the entire loser's bracket to get another shot at the championship, once again fell to Buddy's this time by a score of 5 to 15.

Randy Durrett of Buddy's was named the most Valuable Player of the District Tournament. He batted .714 which included six homeruns.

Other players belting the ball out of the park were Milton Skinner with six, Herman Watts with two, Rick Cairns and Owen Butts with four apiece, and Billy Skinner with mance in the tournament were Skipper Allen, Mike Murphy, Dan Loftin, Bill Jones and Ellie Glasscox.

One of the highlights of the tournament came in the finals of the winner's bracket when Buddy's blanked Buds of Gadsden. Buddy's team members knocked five

Thompson High School Update

BY Philip Walton

The Thompson High School Student Council is already functioning making ready for the nearing term. Mr. Randall Mc-Donald is the Student Council advisor and is anticipating the best year ever at Thompson High.

Student Council President is Duncan Draper: Vice President -James Wilson; Secretary - Renee Dean; Treasurer - Vicki Yarborough. Senators forming the council cabinet are Angel Hopwood, Gale Domokos, Renee Dean, Terita Arington, Alene Cohill, Terry Miller, Penny Ledbetter, Steve Burgess, Vicki Harborough, and Jean Miller. Jean has also been named entertainment chairman and will be responsible for disco dances, disc jockeys' and bands coming throughout the year.

Draper comments, "The Student Council will not be working to make money this year, but to help the students". An important event that will be stressed by Draper again this year will be the Blood Drive. One time consuming job that the council has embarked upon is the preparation for the student handbook. The book should be ready for the printer in about one and a half to two weeks. The book will contain all the guidelines for the students. All rules and regulations, school policies, off-limits areas, new teachers, athletic schedules, guidance counseling, and lists of various club and organizations are to be included. They are also tentatively discussing student identification cards that will be sold for $10 and will get students in all home football and basketball games free. They feel that this will increase student participation. As usual parking stickers will be sold for $2.00 again this year. This is to keep unnecessary intruders off campus. The parking lot will be patrolled by a council member to make sure that these precautions are abided by.

As far as building repairs are concerned, Draper feels that it is a county's job to make the necessary repairs and that the students should not spend their money toward that goal. The students at Thompson High would like to extend a warm thanks to the City of Alabaster and Mayor Harold Davenport for repairing our school's driveway which was so desperately needed.

The student council will sponsor Homecoming this year. The idea of having floats this year has been rejected. Draper says it is too risky due to our location. But don't let that put a damper on things. The Homecoming Queen and Court will be elected as usual, and the bonfire and Homecoming Dance will put the finishing touches on a victorious

Football practice for the Warriors will begin on August 31. Coaches known at this time are Simmons, Kennedy, and Glasscox. Mr. Fulton says out of the 740 enrolled at Thompson High, about 100 will be in the Varsity, B-team, and Jr. High football programs.

Kelli Wyatı, a resident of Alabaster will be a freshmen at Thompson High next year. Kelli is in the 8th grade at Thompson Middle this year and plays the drums. But she can hardly wait for the following year when she plans to be majorette in the Marching Southern Sounds. Kelli began twirling a baton about 3 years ago and has been in one competition after another. All together Kelli has won 314 trophies. We will definitely be awaiting your arrival next year, but in the meantime keep up the good work!

Wendy Holcombe, a junior at Thompson High is reported to have filmed segments of the Pop Goes The Country' television show last Wednesday. Larry Gatlin who was recently named song writer and entertainer of the year accompanied her there. Gatlin also had the number one song of the year. Over the week end before last she filmed a show with Sonny James at Holiday Beach in Douglas, Georgia. Her mother told me that she would probably miss the first two weeks of school filming 'Nashville on the Road' in Cyprus Gardens. We salute you Wendy Holcombe, and we're very proud of you.

Penny Ledbetter, a senior at Thompson High, who recently participated in the "Miss United Teen Contest" placed in the top 16. Congratulations Penny, we know at Thompson what an honor it was just to be selected to enter such a contest.

pinpoint predictions about her particular team's chances in the upcoming season, and Beverly Warren, coach of the University of Montevallo's Lady Falcons' volleyball team, is no exception. However, when she grins and says that she is "Highly optimistic" about the new season, you've got to feel that something is up at Mon-

Last fall, the UM girls were 19-13. finishing second in the AIAW State Tournament and fourth in the AIAW Region III Tournament. With an eye on this fall's play, Coach Warren believes that "we have an excellent chance of being even better."

In point of explanation, she noted that "we have had a few informal practices during the summer, where the girls get together on their own, and even then, they have shown real determination to work and improve. Many of their individual skills have improved, and I think they are as excited about the season ahead as I am."

Eight players are returning, including all six starters. Firststringers back include Birmingham's Candy Campbell and Frances Crapet, Lisa Holloway of Gadsden, Reita Price and Pam Rice of Thorsby, and Linda Benefield of

Also back from last year are Pam Morrison of Birmingham and Dawn

No coach really likes to make Rice of Alabaster, whom Coach Warren calls "the most improved player on the squad."

August 14 marks the first official practice for the Lady Falcons, and the season gets under way on Tuesday, Sept. 12, when they host defending state champion Tuskegee

"We've obviously got an expanded schedule," observed Coach Warren, "and we'll travel a little farther than we ever have, but I have also tried to schedule more home matches to build up interest in the program.

"I think the interest can be drawn out. Volleyball is a different type of sport from anything else around here, and our fall schedule doesn't compete with any of the men's sports. We intend to do more and better publicity to let people know about us, and I think it will be enjoyable. Our crowds last year were surprisingly good, and we hope they will be even better this year."

Volleyball tradition at Montevallo goes back a good ways, M especially to the 1972 season when the Lady Falcons, then under Margaret Blalock, won the state title, finished second in Region III, and participated in the National Tournament in Provo, Utah. No one is mentioning that pinnacle of achievement as a goal of this year's team, but perhaps no words have to be said. For Beverly Warren and her 1978 volleyball team, this year could, hoepfully, be one of the best.

Travelers appreciate home

by Frances Saiia

They met on a blind date in a Tuscaloosa 'washerteria'...perhaps not the most romantic spot for a first date, yet love blossomed and marriage followed for Sandy Ownes and Ron Luster, culminating in the birth of four cute and personable children; Kelly, 12; Karen, 10; Ron, Jr., 7; and Michael, 5.

The couple are in their middle thirties. Sandy is a native of Gadsden and Ron, of Nashville. A graduate of Vanderbilt University, he works as a civil engineer for The Rust Engineering Company.

His job has required an element of mobility, so the road from beginning to the present reads like a travel brochure. First to Mississippi, then to North Carolina, next to New Jersey and on to New York. From New York they crossed the sea to Brussels, Belgium where they remained for six years, where they collected a treasure of beautiful old Belgium furniture (which furnishes their present home), and where their two oldest children, Kelly and Karen were born. After this they returned to the states to Scottsboro, until he was transferred to Montreal, Canada. Finally, a little over two years ago, when the road ended in Birmingham, Sandy let out a silent sigh of relief. The children in Canada seemed to her rude and

Alabama. "One only has to travel valley far longer than most can cement where respect for authority and be away over a period of time to really appreciate what the term southern hospitality implies," she

The couple chose to live in Shelby County because of its close proximity to Birmingham, and, because he was reared on a 350 acre farm in Tennessee, Ron likes the open space afforded them in Indian Springs where they have settled. They purchased the old 'Johnson' house just off Hwy. 119. The house is said to be over a hundred years old and beautifully restored, but with all the lovely new homes on the market, we asked why they chose to buy this particular one. "For the trees!," Karen quickly spoke before her mother..."and for the space," Sandy concluded. "If you could only have seen some of the places we've lived, you'd understand. We hope to make this our last move."

The land adjoining the Lusters' belongs to Mrs. Annie Crumbly and her children, direct descendants of 'Col. Isaac Johnson,' one of the pioneers and earliest settlers of Cahaba Valley. Mrs. Crubmly was a Johnson before her marriage. Her son, John, lives near her on her land. "They are good neighbors," Sandy said. It seems only fitting, then, that with Ron's love of the land he should choose a home which remember, thus affording them a sense of security and permanency few newcomers to the area are fortunate enough to enjoy.

Sandy's first impression upon arriving in the Valley was how friendly her neighbors were, and how willing they were to help one another. She likes Shelby County, but would like to see more public recreational facilities such as swim and tennis clubs and neighborhood parks for the children.

Since Ron was in Oregon, Sandy did most of the talking. "I see education as the biggest problem to be dealt with in Shelby County. My children attended Valley Elementary School, this past year, but this fall Kelly was to have enrolled in a private school, since she will be entering middle school. I talked to Mr. Anderson, principal of Riverchase, and he impressed me, so I decided to enroll her in Riverchase children, "but," and she smiled instead."

She's glad to be back home in has been part and parcel of the theless like to see stricter enforand morality is concerned. Coordination of all the school in the county, elementary, middle, and high schools seem to her a practical solution. She realizes that parents really intend to do something about the schools and she is willing to do anything to further this end if it means her children will enter a wellrounded, stabilized high school.

Her greatest fear for her children is that they will grow up unable to cope with life out of school and into the world 20 years from now.

Sandy, though small and pert, has spunk and a strong sense of conviction. She credits this to her mother's training. "My mother," she said, 'what would I do without her. She's always around when I need her."

"True," came the voice of Mother Owens, who'd sat throughout the conversation slightly apart from her daughter and her with the tiniest of warning in her Although admitting to being a soft words, "I still live a life of my

SHELBY COUN

It's time we had a government that is economical, instead of wasteful.

Paid for by Fob James for Governor Committee, David James Treasurer.

A state government with more than 200 state agencies is a state government that is wasting the taxpayers' money. There are three ways we can streamline our government in Alabama - we can reorganize the structure of government to save money, we can raise taxes to pay for more government, or we can reduce the services provided to Alabama citizens. Fob James believes the best way to make our government efficient and productive is to reduce the number of state agencies. This will cut the costly duplication of services and waste of our tax dollars. This is the kind of sound reasoning we need in the governor's office, and Fob James is a man with the energy and drive to make it all work. It's time for a new beginning in Ala-

Social & Personal Mention

by Mildred White Wallace

Entering the office Monday morning we were standing in front of our miniature clock watching it calmly and meticulously tick away the hours when a friend entered and propounded the following question: "What requisite do you consider the most essential in satisfactorily dealing with people whom you meet each day"?

The above question was asked by a baffled young businessman who had perhaps encountered his first disappointment in the people and things which had gone to make up his busy routine of activities.

Thinking over the matter, after we had been called upon for our opinion, we came to this conclusion.

If we had to give up many necessary adjuncts for pleasantly dealing with our fellow creatures -- such as courtesy - thoughtfulness - consideration - tolerance, etc. we would unqualifiedly state we would retain as an absolute essential - Honesty!

Nothing can succeed if it is not based on Honesty! Pretense is never successful! There is, in fact, nothing, according to my way of thinking, more baffling than duplicity! What good is anything if it isn't honest? Faults, frailities, or virtue--if any--they have got to be honest or they do not exist at all.

The most enviable of all titles is the character of an honest man or woman. You at least know what to depend upon if a fellow is honest-be it good, bad or indifferent - you know where to place him! The ageold adage 'Honesty is the best policy' still rings true and honesty once pawned can never be reclaimed. Confidences once shaken can never be regained -- no matter how very much we would like to believe otherwise.

Naturally, being perfectly hontest will likely--at times--get you into plenty of jams even though you have been asked to express your 'honest opinion' regarding various people and things now holding the spotlight in the political arena as the candidates go around the county and state asking for your vote and influence in helping them attain their ambitious goals. Some are seeking some highly influential and far-reaching positions.

However, the creed of honesty is a code which should be rigidly observed--if there is to be derived any happiness from social, business or even political contacts with our fellowman. At least that's the way somewhat limited field of experien- in Birmingham.

Mayor Dick Ozley administered the oath of office to Smith who will take over his predecessor's duties as chairman of the Budget and Finance Committee. Dean gave up his post when he moved from the city.

Before beginning their business, council members listened to a short talk given by Dr. Norma Rogers who is seeking the Superintendent of Education post.

Then the city's governing body grappled with the problems caused by the eroding ditch. The matter was brought up by Jim Strickland and several other residents of McDow sub-division whose homes border the

He also noted that the stagnant water created a health problem as mosquitoes bred there.

City Manager Buck Falkner reported that the necessary equipment would be available for the job as soon as the backhoe was returned from Montgomery where it was being repaired. He also told the Council that Curry Mizzell, who operates the machine, would be honeymooning over the weekend.

But he mentioned that all property owners hadn't agreed to the work being done. It was suggested that owners of the wooded property on the other side of the drainage chanel be contacted before taking action.

However, Strickland persisted in urging that the work be taken care of immediately. "We need to take the

The council learned that park improvements will have to be put off awhile. Mayor Ozley reported that a federal grant from BOR in the amount of $51,733.93 would be delayed due to a backlog of projects.

He said that the funds wouldn't be available until Oct. 1, 1979.

After the meeting, Falkner said that city crews had worked four days cleaning up damage after the July 3 storm. He said that ground up bark from the chipping machine was free for the taking at the old cattle shed It was pointed out that erosion area in the city park.

Part 7 in a series by Dr. David Luellen

"What part of Canada are you from?" I asked.

I was in the train station in Naples, Italy checking schedules to Rome when I saw a couple with backpacks displaying Canadian flags. They brushed my question aside by asking about Garibalio Plaza. I answered their question.

"What part of Canada are you from?" I asked again, feeling now that my question deserved an answer.

"We're Americans," came the reply. "We get better treatment if Europeans think we're Canadians. They don't like Americans here, you know."

I had many pleasant encounters with Europeans during the months I had been visiting Mediterranean cities while serving as a history professor aboard the U.S.S. Coronado. But I was also aware of a pervasive

Editor's Note: Dr. David Luellen of section of the National Library in Chelsea continues his account of Naples. As I looked fruitlessly for some information my exasperation must have been ovbious. The girl sitting across the table asked about my difficulties.

I explained my problem, She told me that she was a university student working on a doctorate in American Literature. She did much research in this library because it was the best English language library outside Rome.

Being alone, we continued talking. When she learned that I was from Alabama, she became less friendly. She spoke bitterly of white American's treatment of blacks. When I countered that racial attitudes were changing, she insisted that I was a propagandist.

"Americans are good with propaganda," she charged. "You tell Italy that NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) is good for us. It's only another way for America to him. control Europe."

"Is there an acceptable way America can assist Italy?" I asked.

"No. We need money, but with financial aid comes control." Becoming angry, she continued,

You use NATO, the CIA and your money to get what you want. We want to control Italy without interference from your President Carter."

The conversation had turned from discussion to tirade. Having no need to be a whipping boy for an angry university student, I said something about lunch and left the library.

In Palma, Spain I encountered a different unfriendly attitude. Four elderly persons, as British as the Queen, were riding beside me on the train. As we were leaving the train at the same stop, I noticed that one of the ladies had obvious difficulty walking. I assisted her down the steps to the platform.

"It is good to see that courtesy

"Oh, you are American," he sniffed. His tone suggested disdain and even disappointment to discover that Americans were courteous.

Candidates make pitch at rally

by Bert Seaman

It's not easy to have to sum up a political platform in three minutes.

But most of the 41 candidates or their representatives who showed up at Coosa Valley Academy's political rally Saturday night, managed to squeeze their views into the allotted time.

Approximately 300 people attended the event which brought in $1,159 for the private school in Harpersville.

Political hopefuls for 12 offices were invited to speak and candidates for only one of the posts failed to appear - that was the coroner's

Some of the office seekers gave their youth and desire to straighten things out as part of their qualifications for being elected. Others pointed to maturity and experience in office as their reason for getting votes.

One local candidate remarked that he has "Good old common horse sense" going for him.

Not attempting to cram his candidates views into a three minute time slot, one of the speakers advised the audience to read the literature on his man.

In fact, anyone wanting to bone up on the candidate's views could have carried an armload of reading material away with them. Pamphlets, newspapers, booklets and fans were on the tables where a meal was served prior to the speaking. And a table near the entrance door also contained

Air show features crafts both large and small

Inflamed residents oppose fire district

by Ruth Ann Dunn

"We are not against the fire district as a fire district," said Elizabeth Daniel, spokesman for abolishing the North Shelby County Fire District. "We are wanting to put it on a more reasonable, a down-to-earth basis."

The group realizes the area encompassed by the North Shelby County Fire District needs coverage, she said, but abolishing the district in its current form is the only way they know to correct problems they feel exist with the district.

Opponents to the North Shelby County Fire District recently hired a lawyer to represent them in their efforts to abolish the district.

Attorney James H. Weaver, Jr., filed a the two year limit pertains only to motion with Judge Tommy Snowden's office last week "requesting and insisting" the Judge set a date for an election to abolish the fire district.

"Committee for Abandonment of the North Shelby County Fire District," filed a petition with more than 100 names on May 19 in accordance with Alabama Act 62 concerning the abolition of fire districts in Shelby Act 62 provides not only for the establishment but also the abolition of fire districts in the county. To disband a district, the law requires a petition of at least 100 property own ers in the district be submitted to the probate judge. That petition must also state the district has incurred no indebtness. The May 19 petition fills both these conditions.

Judge Snowden, upon receiving the petition, asked the state attorney general's office for an opinion on under the law as it stands now, could whether such an election was legal or not even lower service rates except not. Questions were raised on Section after two years. 5 of Act 62 which states, "No such election pertaining to the clause in the act which states a fire establishment of the same district or portion thereof shall be held more often than once every two years."

Opponents to the district contend

> President of the fire district trustees Stephen Wright, Jr., disagrees saying the trustees requested the opinion of the attorney general concerning the two year clause before the district was formed. In that decision, Wright said, the attorney general said the limitation applies to elections, including abandonment.

> Wright added he helped draw up a bill, to be presented to the Legislature during this week's special session which would do away with the two year clause.

"The way the act was originally written makes no provision for an election at any time, until after two years," he said. He said the trustees,

Another point in question is a district can not be abolished if it has incurred any form of indebtness. Wright points to Section 8 which says,

Hospital primes image

Shelby Memorial Hospital will join 27 other area hospitals in a major advertising campaign aimed at blocking a national health insurance

The area hospitals are the first in Alabama to join the nationwide image building effort.

The Shelby Memorial board voted unanimously at its July 25 meeting to pay its share, about $1,000 of the $30,000 local campaign.

"The national health insurance bill may not come up in the 95th Congress," Birmingham Regional Spital Council public relations director Robert Harper told the board, "But you can look for it in the 96th."

Harper and BRHC President Ed Ferrel emphasized that the ad campaign would be aimed at creating a strong positive public image for the hospital industry.

"We went to the best ad agency people in the business," Harper told the Reporter after his video tape presentation to the board, "They told us not go get in a debate on national health insurance until we had established an image."

A third campaign is in the works for the Christmas season.

President Jimmy Carter is due to introduce his health plan in Congress this week. However, since Sen. County well represented in state softball tourney

by Richard Crosby

Five teams from Shelby County leagues participated in softball tournaments this past weekend. They all won games in the playoffs but none made it to the top places.

Montevallo Merchants, Montevallo Beavers and Rebel Rousers of Thorsby played in the Women's State Class A Tournament held in Cullman, while S & S Farms of Pelham and the Montevallo Blue Ladies played in the Major Tournament held in Montgomery's Lagoon softball complex. Last year the Montevallo Blue

Ladies placed fourth in the state Majors. It was also the second appearance in a row by S & S Farms. Merchants, Beavers and Rebel Rousers were making their first visit to the Amateur Softball Association's state playoffs.

In the Major Tournament, S & S lost two and advanced on one cancellation. The Blue Ladies won two and lost two.

In Cullman, the Beavers lost two, Merchants won two and lost two, and Rebel Rousers won one and lost

Some of the estimated 9,700 spectators who attended the Air Show at the Shelby County Airport Sunday wanted their thrills firsthand. They took advantage of the opportunity to go up in a helicopter or hot air balloon.

Others were content to watch the board will vote to fire Alexander, the daredevil antics of aerobatic performers such as Walter Smith, who, board voted unanimously to initiate at one point in his act, handled the controls from the wing of his bipiane.

Smith was one of the pilots who that he will appeal a negative vote on learned to fly at the Shelby County airport. His 1940 Cub was reportedly a "basket case" when he bought it, but with energy and know-how, Smith spent a year and a half restoring it. Greg Koontz, another product of the local airport's training, demonstrated the new Great Lakes biplane which included putting it through an unusually difficult vertical roll. Other aerobatic demonstrations Firing Alexander will be expensive were given by Lowell Hack in a Pitts Special, Dr. Ed Stephens and Jim Salsman, both flying Citibras, and John Ward who performed maneuvers and landed a sail plane.

According to a spokesman for the airport, aerobatics were especially difficult because the extremely hot weather causes a thinness in the air.

During the afternoon, the crowd kept their eyes glued to the sky to see five members of the Birmingham Parachute Club leap from a plane and land on the field, and they also watched two fly-bys.

Three National Guard jets showed both how slow and how fast they could travel, and members of the Experimental Aircraft Association demonstrated some of their craft.

An event which didn't require spectators to crane their necks, was a demonstration of radio controlled model planes.

The show was put on by the Birmingham Aero Club and proceeds went to the Southern Museum of Flight.

Letter to Editor: Shelby County Reporter Dear Mrs. Sears:

Re: New Jail Facility

I read with interest your article, Under the Courthouse Dome, in the July 27, 1978 issue of the Shelby County Reporter. I am busy sheriffing; but I also have to campaign; however I must reduce your article to a factual situation.

The facts are, number 1 - The Commission is not waiting for the sheriff to pick up the ball. The fact is, that until the Shelby County Commission accepts that jail, it is the contractor's jail. When they have accepted it, and turned it over to me as administrator; then I can commence to move from the old to the new; and not until that date. I have been available for that meeting; which is up to the contractor, the architect and the Shelby County Commission. I have been hearing the '15th of the next month', for over a year now.

The last letter that I have received, is that there will be a meeting to accept the jail from the contractor, on August 7, 1978. They cannot accept the jail until the contractor has it in order. Anytime after that the furniture bidder will be able to start placing the furniture in the order within the new facility. At my last checking, all of the furniture had not even arrived at the jail.

No communications, other than telephones, which is still uncompleted, have been installed at this time, in the new county jail or sheriff's office. Mr. Owens with the planning department and the Shelby County Commission, have instructed Shelby Communications to inspect the new jail and sheriff's office, and give them a price on transferring the communications and computer equipment. I understand that they are having some problems with the conduit in the new facility.

The next fact is that again, construction, maintaining and staffing of the jail and office, is a responsibility of the Shelby County Commission; and it is certainly our duty to inform them as to what type and the number that it will take to run the new facility. It will of course be up to the Shelby County Commission at that time, to as you say 'take the ball'.

I will be glad to show you the new jail, and to also explain the problems involved in moving from the old jail, at our convenience. Thanking you in advance for your kind attention to this matter, I am

> Sincerely, C.P. "Red" Walker, Sheriff Shelby County

Editor's reply:

Dear Sheriff Walker:

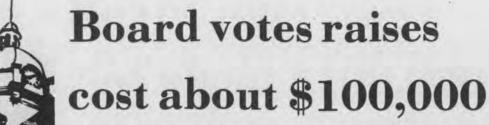

My information for the article to which you refer came from public comments made over a period of several months in County Commission meetings by a variety of authorities: jail architects, the chief contractor, Mr. Paul Owens, who has regularly inspected the construction process for the county, the commissioners and your own administrative assistant, Mr. Tom Barnes.

To go over the list in the order you used:

1. After your assistant told the Commission at the July 17 meeting that you probably would not move into the jail until September, the urgency of the county's taking over the jail from the contractor was removed. When it turned out that the probate judge would be out of town on the day the contractor wanted to turn it over, the commission decided, since you were not pushing for early occupancy, that they would put off taking possession of the jail until a more convenient time for them. (A matter of 11 days.)

2. All the furniture has arrived except the special wooden desk ordered for your office and one or two others. The furniture for the day rooms used by prisoners has been on the site for some time, according to county sources. (The cells do not need furniture because bunks are built-in. The mattresses are already at the jail.) It was said at a Commission meeting several weeks ago that a delay in desks for the administrative offices would not be a problem, because the present ones could be moved temporarily from the old jail.

3. The basic telephone system has been installed and working for quite a while. The conduit needed bigger holes drilled for some of the wires, and that is described by county officials as a matter of "just getting the electrical people over there."

Salary committee chairman Bill Fancer put the cost of the raises at just over $100,000. He said the increase was necessary if the board was going to hire and retain qualified personnel. Fancher told the board that Shelby County principals' salaries were "very low" compared with the rest of the state.

"How will the new salaries Barbara Whitman.

"We are still not well off," said Fancher. "The state average for beginning pricipals is about $22,000. but we are making some progress."

The new salary schedule sets the starting salary for principals at from $19,884, for those with an MA degree, to $21,276, for those with PhDs.

The new raises are timed to coincide with the ten percent teacher raise that is included in the education budget now being debated in the special session of the legislature. However, the board decided not to make the supplemental personnel raises contingent on action by the legislature for teachers.

"The implementation was timed to coincide with the legislative action to simplify bookkeeping procedures," said Fancher.

The committee recommended that no difference be made between elementary and high school principals.

"We found no difference in the work load between the principals of set up for county school buses.

small schools and large schools," said Fancher, because the small schools have fewer support personnel."

Elementary principals are paid for ten month year. High school principals are paid for 12 months. Fancher said this could change when the salary schedule is revised.

Coaches and assistant pricipals will be paid based on teaching credentials plus a $1,500 suppliment.

The new salary schedule sets up annual raises which will total $300 during the ten year life of the schedule. However, Fancher recommended that this be reviewed within five years.

The raise equals about $600 compare with the surrounding across the board for certified counties?" asked board member supplemental personnel. The maintenance raises came to a little over $1,000 in the top positions.

Fancher said the new maintenance salaries will put Shelby County at just below the average for maintenance personnel in the southeast.

"The Shelby County system has a reputation for being an excellent training ground for maintenance workers," he said. "As soon as we get a man trained he goes to another system at a higher salary."

The committee recommended hiring five new building maintenance men so that a general maintenance repairman would be available in each of the five high school geographic

The new men will be certified class II mechanics and will start at $850 per month.

Peter asked me to come over and pick up some that had fallen. If they lay on the ground and rot the bees come and the yellowjackets and the wasps and the hornets. And what those little fellows can do to a guy is the next thing to being hit by a truck.

I have apple trees, too. We planted 'em three years ago and have had one summer rain on 'em since. They look like five old men, coming out of the deep woods after being lost for 20 days with nothing to eat but roots and berries. One of the little rascals decided to pay nature back for letting him occupy a spot on earth. He had three limbs, one about four feet long, that he dressed up in a dozen blossoms in late April, blossoms that turned into five apples and seven faulty blooms in early May.

And, lest I forget, we've got every kind of bird that flies on this hill. And more squirrels than I can count. So, with the acorns I picked up in October and the faulty pecans in November running out I was glad to get apples to tide 'em over until the acorns and pine mash and grass seed come along later.

Leona has made pies like they were going out of style, turnovers and slop pies, one after another. And I have kept the ground under a big post oak covered ankle deep in peelings and cores. But the word must have gotten

But to get back to my apple tree. A mockingbird pecked one in early June, when it was about the size of a taw-ball. He pecked another a week later and then, deciding this wasn't his brand, got busy chasing bugs under a half dead hickory. A hickory with the bark falling off, leaving little piles of rotton bark in the ground the birds frolicked in. Then a worm got in one, a big worm in a little apple, and when I spied him he had his south end of of one side and his north end out the other. I pinched his head off and threw the apple away.

That left two. When they got the size of a tennis ball I picked one to see it if was ripe. It tasted somewhere between a green persimmon and an overripe lemon. But I had one left, big and yellow and glossy and I had enough peelings and cores under the post oak to keep the birds and squirrels happy.

Any proposal should require that any new taxes be approved by two-thirds of the persons qualified to vote (not two-thirds of those who actually vote) who reside in the district to be taxed. Thus the newest items in the budget would be eliminated first. Unless a proposal contains this requirement that cuts be made in chronologically reverse order, the politicians will tend to cut the most important and proper services first - police and courts - rather that the least important and impropul

The University story is told in a news release issued this week:

Since the beginning of the energy shortage more than three years ago, energy conservation plans at the University of Montevallo have slowed consumption, but electric and natural gas bills have climbed, according to a university official.

Electrical bills at the growing state university jumped more than 50 percent from 1975 to 1977--from $194,760 to $297,810. But overall electrical consumption increased less than 5 percent--from 9.56

Education (ACHE).

Total natural gas consumption fell more than 25 percent, from 111 million cubic feet in 1975 to 78 million cubic feet in 1977, but costs rose from $92,142 to $109,670-a price hike of almost 20 percent.

"It's a fact of life that higher energy costs are with us to stay," said Holland Floyd, director of buildings and grounds at UM. "And we've got to help our staff and students try to live with it and use less energy."

University officials, he said, had instituted several energy saving measures including light and thermostat monitoring systems to help reduce energy waste.

Maintenance employees have also million kilowatt hours to 10.04 installed lower wattage light bulbs in million kilowatt hours, according to most halls and have added weather totals prepared for a report to the stripping to doors and windows in

Bill King, associate director of the BRHSA, said a call from the Reporter was the first news he had of Brookwood's intention to build a primary health care facility in north Shelby County.

King said the BRHS A is still recommending that Shelby Memorial be given permission to build the facility. He said it was his opinion that Brookwood would have to get clearance from the state and from his agency before building the center.

Brookwood public relations director Walker Batts said the project did not require state or BRHSA approval because "it is not a full scale project at this point."

According to Brookwood president Charles A. Speir, the first phase of construction at the Brookwood-Riverchase Primary Care Center will be capable of being developed into a full primary care center, which would include additional services such as an emergency room.

"The ultimate expansion of Brookwood-Riverchase into a full primary care center will be dependent upon the level of acceptance of the center by the community, and by the changing needs of a growing population in the area," said Speir. Batts said if the decision was made to expand the facility Brookwood would go through the proper state and local channels to get

Junior High students at Vincent will notice the changes right away. There's new tile in the hallways and classrooms, bright new paint on the walls and lockers and modern dropped ceilings with flourescent lighting waiting to greet the students.

The work is the result of Stan Elliott's handiwork, and Principal Braxton Baker's ideas, with most of the money coming from the school.

"The County brought us the tile and CETA workers removed the old black tile that's been in the hallways since 1946, but all the other work and materials were furnished by Vincent High School," stated Braxton. "The work coincides with the renovation done last year on the high school

The Home Economics building has also received a facelift. Wayne Sumners painted the interior of the building and also repainted the gym lobby. Both Sumners and Elliott are coaches for Vincent.

Another addition for the classrooms are new blackout shades and curtains which have been installed in both the junior and senior wings of Vincent School.

Dressing rooms in the gym have also had a remodeling job performed.

Vincent may not be a 'new' school, but the continued upgrading of the facilities and the pride of school officials makes Vincent a 'newer' school each year.

The new lawsuit asks for damages of $25,000 apiece for teachers Rubie King, Lynn Bryan, Sundra Lewis, Odessa Jackson, Linda Maddox, Pam Gilmer, Claire Rhodes, Carol Anderson and Jan Armanious.

Residents seek change from multiple to single at Montevallo Planning Commission by Reporter Staff

Some 60 Montevallo residents attended a meeting of the Montevallo Planning Commission Thursday night, when a petition was presented to the body, requesting a change in zoning for the Highland Ave. area of Montevallo.

The petition, bearing 86 signatures, asked the Planning Commission to rezone the area from R-2 to R-1.

Montevallo's zoning ordinance designates an R-2 area as permitting multiple family dwellings, while restricting an R-1 area to single family

Bruce Green, an attorney from Pelham, presented the petition to the Planning Commission and outlined his clients' position. Green indicated that the group he represents wishes to retain the Highland Ave. area as a desirable place to live. It is apparently the thinking of the petitioners that rezoning the area will result in better kept homes, lawns and property and will stop the conversion of single family houses into apartments.

Green also called attention to the belief that a half dozen homes in the Highland Ave. area are qualified to be included on the State Historical listing.

David Ovson, an attorney from Birmingham, spoke against the proposed zoning change. Ovson represents three partners who own property on King Street.

Ovson read a statement from Mrs.

would be a violation of the Fourteenth Amendment. Ovson also pointed out that 45% of the area in question currently has

Sarah Posey Morgan, in which Mrs. Morgan stated that to rezone the area multiple family dwellings. Green and Ovson made rebuttals to each other's presentations. The two lawyers' principal point of disagreement was over which classification of zoning would render anyone wishing to present information property more valuable.

Commission Chairman Clayton Nordan presided at the Thursday night meeting and refused to hear statements that did not pertain to the proposed change of zoning. Nordan told the group, before any statements were made, that the meeting was purely for the purpose of hearing both sides of the issue and gathering information. He told the group that no would be heard.

All members of the Planning Commission attended the meeting. They were: Chairman Nordan, F.P. Givhan, Sam Klotzman, Bobby Hughes, Mrs. Pauline Towery and Nolan Hardin. Ex-officio members present were Montevallo City Clerk Don Hughes and Mayor Ralph Sears.

No action was taken on the petition. Another meeting was action would be taken, but that tentatively set for Thursday, August 3.

Chief Humphries recorded the fatal accident at 12:05 p.m. Tuesday. No charges were filed.

Atchison's body was taken to the Franklin Funeral Home in Sylacauga.

Group opposing fire district predicts hot future for trustees

The following news release was submitted to the Reporter by a group of residents of north Shelby County:

July 28, 1978 The North Shelby County Fire and Emergency Medical District continues to be a hot spot in Shelby County. The district was no sooner established than the proponents sought to have Act Number 62, Acts of Alabama 1977 Special Session, amended by changing the manner of electing trustees and affixing service charges.

In accordance with the provisions of the Shelby County Fire District act, 127 electors and property owners filed a petition to abolish the district prior to the same becoming indebted. This petition was valid and complete and was filed with the Probate Judge on May 19, 1978. The Judge according to the act, is required to call an election not less than thirty nor more than prospective jurors are selected. forty days. However, Judge Snowden refused to act but indicated he was in doubt as to his authority to call elections under the provisions of this act and, therefore, requested an opinion of Attorney General Baxley on May 23, 1978. Attorney General Baxley's office is so well organized that they indicated upon later inquiry that supposedly they had not received the request and Judge Snowden forwarded a copy and renewed request for an immediate opinion based upon the seriousness of the situation. Needless to say, Attorney General Bill Baxley has been so busy campaigning and lambasting other candidates for not doing their jobs that he has been unable to perform the duties of his job for which the taxpayers presently pay him a very substantial salary. The Attorney General of this state continues to draw money to perform the duties of attorney general but as of the date of this release does not perform his duties as attorney general. It is questionable to the proponents for the abandonment of the fire district as to whether the Attorney General could perform the duties of the office of governor which he seeks since at this point he seems unable to perform the duties of his own office and render an box opinion on the propounded question and forward that opinion immediately to the Judge of Probate. On Monday, July 24, 1978 James Weaver, the attorney for the people slated to being again on October 10. petitioning to abandon the fire district, filed a motion with Judge

Snowden to require him to act and do his duties as required under Act Number 62. The Judge was specifically asked to call the election and set the date in accordance with his obligations under Act Number 62. To date Judge Snowden continues and refused to perform his duties as directed under the law. The law is clear as to the manner in which the Judge is to act both as to the part in the calling of the election to establish a district as well as to the calling of an election as to the abandonment of the district. Even though the Attorney General refuses to supply the opinion requested, proponents of the abandonment of the

The jury commission is presently compiling lists of prospective jurors using auto registration, voter registration, telephone subscriber, gas and water customer lists to compile

According to Williams citizens appearing on these and other lists will be sent a questionaire to determine if they are eligible for service. A master jury list of 1,000 will be culled from those questioned and put in the trail

The delay will mean that criminal cases originally scheduled for August will also have to be postponed. Williams said criminal trials are now district are convinced that Judge Snowden does not need the opinion in

The trustees of the fire district continue to act irresponsibly by holding secret meetings and secret discussions and making statements inconsistent with their authority as trustees. Any attempt on their part to additionally burden the home owners in this fire district by borrowing huge sum of money from The First National Bank of Birmingham will be met with stiff opposition. The bank probably should examine the situation with the present petition pending in the Probate Court. Also certain members of this fire district question the six percent interest that The First National Bank of Birmingham proposes to charge the fire district when the cheapest rate any other person can get from them is at least eight percent or better.

Candidates speak at Shelby School rally

by Bert Seaman

Some candidates had their say in less than a minute, while others went overtime at Shelby School's political rally Saturday evening. However all of the 21 speakers had concluded their remarks in the space of an hour.

In addition to letting area residents know where candidates stand on campaign issues, the event was instrumental in putting over $500 in the building fund to pay for the gym in which the rally was held.

Alph Lowe, who's seeking reelection to the District 4 Seat on the County Commission, delcared that experience was one of his qualifications.

Reminding the voters that in addition to his four years on the Commission, he'd also served on the Board of Education, as Mayor of Vincent and in various city offices, Lowe said he had dealt with all kinds of problems which even included removing dead dogs from the highways.

He urged the audience to, "make September 5 a Happy Birthday for

One of her main points was advocating the philosophy of neighborhood schools. She also noted that she believed in sharing resources.

Charles Knowles, another contender for Education Superintendent, told the crowd, "I'm one of the ones she (Dr. Jones)didn't Reporting that he was responsible for the program at the Area Vocational Center, Knowles said, "I've given and received 27 wonderful years in the county's educational system. And I want to continue to serve you as Superintendent."

Another candidate who pointed to experience as a prime qualification, was Sheriff C.P. Walker. Reminding the audience that he'd held his present position for 20 years, he said, "It takes that long to learn the office."

He referred to his opponents as "nice boys," but said, "There's only one sheriff running for sheriff."

Reminding the crowd that he had spent a number of years as Chief Deputy, Buddy Glasgow, a contender for the sheriff's office, assured listeners that he was familiar with how the department operates.

He also reported on his training which included attending the FBI school. Glasgow concluded his remarks by saying, "I'd like to continue my career in law enforcement as your sheriff."

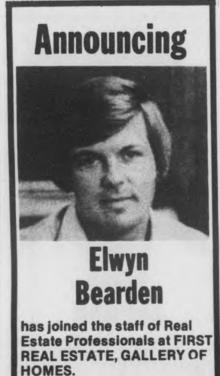

John Palmer, who's also seeking the job of head law enforcement officer, informed the voters of his experience with the Vestavia Police Department. He brought out the fact that he's a Christian, and he promised to provide the maximum effectiveness law enforcement.

While Dr. Norma Rogers, who is in the running for the Superintendent of Education post went along with Dr. Jones on the neighborhood school concept, she also brought out the need for emphasizing the basics in the school curriculum.

Saying that she could relate to the needs of Shelby School patrons, Dr. Rogers pointed out, that as principal of Valley Elementary, she had gone through the struggles of the small traveling to every part of the county to find out what people expect from the Commission.

The third person vying for the seat told the audience he "knows the county's needs." Charles Seales said that he's been active in political affairs and promised to do "my best to have deserved your trust."

Two of the three candidates seeking the office of Tax Assessor addressed the audience, and both kept their remarks brief.

Annette Skinner pointed to her 25 year track record, which included work in several county offices. And incumbent Bobbie Reynolds said she thought the office had made a great step forward during the 18 months

Former Coroner Billy Thompson, who had filled the office for three terms, asked the audience not to let his experience be wasted.

State office seekers who attended the gathering were Lister Hill Proctor, Representative Sonny Moore, Bill Morris and Tom Longshore.

Morris promised, "better and more equitable representation." He urged the crowd to "Join me in a program for progress."

Tom Longshore, who's a Republican contender, took pot shots at the Legislature, referring to members of that body as "Spendocrats" who listen to lobbyists.

During his talk, Senator Proctor declared, "Since you elected me I've been speaking for you, not Alabama Power Company. It's been a pleasure to serve you," he continued, "And I'll trust your judgement on election

The legislature has been kicked around, Representative Moore remarked during his talk, "but it's been good to Shelby County.'

He pointed out that during his term of office, the county received, for the first time, a two million dollar pork barrel appropriation. "Let me work four more years for you," he urged.

John Lewis Cates spoke on behalf of Albert Brewer's candidacy for governor, and David McFarland represented Bert Banks, who is seeking the Lt. Governor's post.

Calera tennis championship

by Mark Jones

A hot and humid Calera Tennis Tournament concluded Sunday with the singles championship match. No, Bjorn did not win this one. Nor did Jimmy, Roscoe, or Brian. Greg

Greg Butche, a University of away with the twenty-inch tall trophy after downing an unyeilding Jeff Hand. Butche snatched the championship match 6-3, 6-4 Sunday afternoon to draw to a close the first annual Calera Tennis Tour-

Preliminary matches officially began July 16 but some matches were arranged for play to accomodate some weekend workers and were played during the week. A field of twenty-five netters took to match Keller placed third by spinthe courts in quest for the prize that Butche grabbed.

The first weekend of singles tenhis saw Jim Nipper down an ailing Charlie Goggins 7-6, 2-6, 7-6. goggins played with a painful cramp in his left leg through most of the second and all of the third set.

Sonny Perkins vollied Gary Wade in straight sets of 6-4, 6-4. James Doughty smashed Alan Barnes 6-2, 6-1. Eventual second place finisher Charles Massey. Mike Carden outlasted Gary Hadaway 7-6, 6-3.

Tommy Lucas served Paul Roberts a 6-2, 6-2 defeat. In a two and a half hour match Bill Eddings squeezed through two tie-breakers two tournaments at Claera next to down Calvin Henderson 7-6, 1-6, year. One will be an open tourney 7-6. Butche took twelve straight while the other will be an ingames from Jimmy Johnstone 6-0, vitational. 6-0. Justin Adams defeated Jeff Whitfield 6-4, 6-1. Vince Cardone advanced by beating George Roy 6-2, 6-4.

Jerry Goggins, Kent Keller, Tim Whatley, Tony Davis and David Downs all drew first round byes.

In the second weekend of action Jerry Goggins avenged his brother's earlier defeat by zapping Nipper 7-6, 6-3. Keller lobbed Perkins 6-3, 6-3. Hand's difficult route to the finals included a 3-6, 7-5, 6-4 over his doubles partner James Doughty. Frand's victory marked the end of a three hour match with Doughty, who along with Hand, captured the doubles championship in the Calera

Mike Carden advanced by default over Paul Jones. Jones had to cancel his appearance in the tourney due to a conflict in tennis schedules. Lucas and Eddings made an afternoon of it before Lucas prevailed in a two hour-forty-five minute match

7-6, 6-7, 6-4. Meanwhile, Butche was still serving and vollying around with a 6-1, 6-0 win over Justin Cardone downed Tim Whatley 6-3, 6-4. Downs outshot Davis 6-2, 6-

In quarterfinal action Keller set Montevallo tennis player, walked Goggins aside with 6-1, 6-1 sets. Hand took Carden in straight sets 6-3, 6-3. Lucas won more games against Butche than Butche's previous victim's put together but fell 6-3, 6-2. Cardone defeated David Downs 6-1, 6-3.

In the semis Hand came from behind to defeat a tough shooting Keller 3-6, 6-2, 6-2. Butche never broke stride enroute to a 6-0, 6-1 win over Cardone.

In the tournament's consolation ning Cardone 6-4, 6-3.

Stamina and hustle was the trademark of the finals match with Butche and Hand. Hand threatened to make a comeback after falling in the first set but soon fell under Butche's racket. There was little doubt who was the tourney's best player as Butche won ten straight sets and sixty of seventy-four games.

Much of the tournament's "big success" can be attributed to tour-Hand began his painstaking march nament coordinator David Downs to the finals with a 6-2, 6-1 win over who termed the tourney a very competitive event. "We're glad everybody came out. We plan to make it better next year and we hope to get more people involved."

Plans are in the making to have

For the first six months, Darwin E. Smith, chairman of the board said income and sales were both up 9 percent over the same period last

He said that company operations in every major part of the world except Canada showed a gain in net income. In Canada lower selling prices for pulp and start-up problems at the expanded Terrace Boy, Ont., mill, and the St. Catherines, Ont., mill were the main factors for the decrease.

Smith noted however, that the start-up of the expanded pulp mill at Coosa Pines, Ala. (Childersburg) was proceeding satisfactorily.

Sales for the six month period were $945 million.

Drum Clinic was held last week at Thompson High School for the Marching Southern Sounds drum corps. Mr. Ron Smith, band director at Vestavia High School, instructed us on our solo and band music for next year as well as our marching cadence.

The band will be featuring 12 drummers this year every Friday night at halftime performances. $3,000 worth of new equipment was purchased last year including 5 snare drums, 3 tuned bass drums, 2 tri-toms, 3 pairs of cymbals, and 1 marching bell set. Last year we entered two marching contests, toured Pensacola, Florida, and played numerous performances for the County and Community.

Mr. Elson Hood comments, "We have one of the best drum lines in the state. I am very optimistic about performances this year." The corps is taught to play rudimentally as well as stylistically. We learn advanced rhythm patterns in performance. All music and marching drills are arranged especially for our band by Mr. Tim Anderson and Mr. Elson Summer Band Camp will begin August 7 and will continue through the 23, at Thompson High School from 8 a.m. till 3 p.m. Included will be sectional rehearsals, indoor full rehearsals, and outdoor marching drills. County teams gain experience in state tourney

Thorsby's Rebel Rousers played perhaps the latest game of any of the Class A teams from the county, but the late afternoon hours last Saturday didn't help their quest for a state title.

The Rebel Rousers started their bid at 9 Friday night against United Auto Parts. The Thorsby bunch played the most solid opening game of the tournament as they combined solid hitting and consistent fielding to take a 9-1 decision.

The Beavers of Montevallo had one of the tournament's opening games, facing the Tuscaloosa Phillies at 5 in the afternoon. The Beavers took a 9-3 lad after two innings, but that lead was chipped away until at the end of seven innings, the score was tied 11 to 11.

It took only one extra inning to decide the game as Tuscaloosa scored one run on three hits and but were only able to score five.

Saturday morning the Merchants started on the comeback trail with an 8 a.m. game which was played for the most part on a fog shrouded field. Montevallo won the coin toss, but elected to be the visitor, something that is contrary to accepted standards.

The decision turned out to be a good one, but not before a lot of Montevallo fans had chewed off two handfuls of fingernails. It was a see-saw battle with Dan

"We've been having field scouting ever since it's been available to us.

"Used to be, you'd just pick a date and start spraying, or you'd do it because everybody else was. But we found out that we wasted money a lot of times by spraying when we didn't need to.

"So we joined the scouting program and have been with it ever since. I can't give you a figure, but I know it's helped us save some money—quite a lot in one instance.

"It was a few years ago early in the season. Scouting had just started, and I hadn't even thought about spraying. But the scout came in and told me the weevils were about to eat me up. So I started spraying. If I'd waited a little longer, I would have been out of luck. In that instance he saved me quite a lot of money."

The Cowgirls were to show up later in the afternoon and send another county team home.

After the Beavers cleared the field, the Montevallo Merchants again went into action, this time against the Eva 76'ers.

Did you know that wall paper originated in China around 200 B.C. Then craftsmen hand painted landscapes, birds and flowers on delicate rice papers in small 12" x 18" rectangular pieces. From the Orient, wallpaper moved to the castles of Europe via Persia and took on new patterns and textures. Marbleized designs, papers lusterized with metal, and handprints from wood blocks began to appear as wall coverings. Paper panels took the place of murals and tapestries and an edict by Louis XVI in the late 1700's fixed the standard roll of wallpaper at 34 feet where it stands today. In the mid 1800's, the technique of printing paper by machine was invented, and with some notable exceptions, the era of elaborate hand painted wallpaper came to an end.

"My goal is to win a National Championship, and that's the goal of the players also" commented G.D. Jones, manager of the Montevallo Blue Ladies.

Why play softball? Enjoyment, thrill of competition or whatever individuals of a team. How well the members work together toward that mutual goal determines what degree of success they will encounter.

The Montevallo Blue Ladies have been together under Jones' guidance since 1975 or thereabouts. Jones, owner of Whaley Furniture in Montevallo, always had an interest in

In the same tournament, S & S Farms of Pelham lost their opening game on Friday night to the Phoenix City Chargers 13 to 0. S & S managed only three hits in the five inning game.

S & S got a free ride in the first game of the losers bracket. Their opponent had cancelled before the tournament started.

Saturday at 3:30 was the second game of the tournament for the team. The Phoenix City Sizzlers proved a tough opponent. At the end of five innings, the score was tied 4 to 4. In the bottom of the sixth inning, Michele Lewis broke the tie with a homerun, but the Sizzlers persisted and tied the game again to send it into extra innings.

The eighth inning was the last one S & S played. The Sizzlers got two

YMCA Porpoises perform

Six Shelby County teens are about to become Porpoises. In other words, they've almost reached the highest rung on the ladder of the progressive swim program being conducted at the County's YMCA.

The group has been acting as volunteer swim instructors in order to get in the 24 hours of acquatic service, which is a requirement of earning the Porpoise badge.

Other skills that swimmers must lethonstrate to prove they know their tuff include endurance swimming, proficiency in all swim strokes, basic ifesaving skills, 30 minute frownproofing, race techniques, water pallet skills and pool safety.

The young teens who are working inder the direction of Y instructor Debbie Drake are: Sven Balfanz, Robbie Eager, Amy Livengood, Ryan ivengood, Robin Johnson and Donna

Beginners in the progressive swim program are called Pollywogs. Other steps up the ladder of swimming proficiency include Minnow, Fish, Flying Fish and Shark.

The YMCA is offering one more session of swim lessons which will begin Aug. 7 and run through Aug. 18. For further information call the Shelby County YMCA at 663-6504.

Minimize handling fish with your hands. Scales and mucous covering on fish help prevent infection. Touching a fish with your hands removes scales and mucous and makes the fish more susceptible to disease. If a fish must be handled out of water, wet your hands first.

* Release a fish in the water without handling it, if possible. A landing net can be used to control fish in the water until it can be released. If no net is available, grasp the fish by the lower lip and keep it partially submerged until unhooked. (How many of the TV fishing "experts" use dip nets? None! They have to show the viewer how adept they are in boating big fish.)

* Never put fingers in the gills or eye sockets. (I saw a TV fishing feature recently where the hero host put thumb and forefinger in a big striped bass' eyes as he held it riumphantly aloft. I don't think it would have been so bad had he killed the fish and carried it home for the table, but this was one of dozens he exhibited to whom he thought were all hooks. If the fish is hooked in the lips or outside the jaw, use pliers to grasp the hook and shake it free without removing the fish from the water.

* Don't pull a hook from the fish's throast, stomach or gills. Instead, clip the leader or hook as closely as possible and release the fish. These hooks will rust or be covered with a cyst and the fish usually survives.

* Avoid using treble hooks.

Fishing guide

Keeping catches alive

by Earl Franklin Kennamer

Want to take every step possible to reduce death of fish you catch and wish to release? A friend, California Cooperative Extension Wildlife specialist Lewis Nelson, Jr. was briefed a set of rules to follow:

* Handle fish as little as possible. Release fish immediately and awe-struck viewers.)

* Use long-nosed pliers to remove

* Use hooks with the barbs

* A fish that floats belly up or floats on the surface when released will probably die. If this happens, hold the fish by the tail and showly move it back and forth in the water. This forces water through the gills and induces the fish to breath again.

* If a fish dies, take it home and eat it! Don't be wasteful with your wildlife resources. (This last recommendation is excellent, except certain public waters now have a minimum length limit - for instance, 14 inches for black bass. That 12-incher you just released now floats belly-up to haunt you. If you are ultra-conservative and keep the fish, the game warden may stick you!

While the fall hunting season is still weeks ahead, now is a good time to check for feather rust -- that fuzzy reddish brown I have seen on gun barrels in summer humidity. Swab all metal with a good gun oil sprinkled on a clean cloth. Recoat with good gun grease. Rub in several palm coatings of linseed oil or something similar into the natural unvarnished wood of forearms and stocks. Leather slings and cases would be given a couple rub-ins of Lexol or other leather vitalizer.

Most important, if you need gunsmithing to get your favorite fowling piece or rifle in prime shooting shape, get it to a good shop now! Years ago I interviewed several gunsmiths and they said all shooters should get their guns repaired a couple of months ahead of powder burning time. When that first hunting season week approaches, gun repairmen say they are overloaded with so many firearms they cannot get the late arrivals in shooting shape until the hunting season is about over!

Chippy finds a home in shady Helena yard dog died, they didn't opt for another pet. But one day, two months ago, a new pet dropped in on them...literally.

Chippy the bluejay was rescued by the Shirleys after he fell from his nest in the yard.

Flew the coop

Chippy the bluejay flew the coop last week following the writing of the initial story.

Gene Shirley said a group of wandering bluejays appeared in the big oak tree between his house and garage one day. Chippy was seen conversing with the birds.

That was the last the Shirley's have seen of their friend. Evidently Chippy was led astray by the bird gang and decided to join their numbers.

"He's been seen in Helena Cemetery," Shirley said. He said different people had come to him saying a bird had lit on their car while at the cemetery. According to one Helena resident, the bird even allowed her to pet him.

"We keep looking for him," Shirley said, "but we never see him.'

Shirley said he felt if they could only see Chippy they might be able to coax him back to his home in their yard.

If anyone sees a friendly bluejay in the vicinity of Helena Cemetery. the Shirleys would appreciate a call so they could go chat with their old friend.

Shirley laughed and said, Maybe he's got a girlfriend."

If that be true, maybe Chippy will be back soon with a wife and family to take up residence in the Shirley's yard.

How important is a spouse? If illness or an accident should disable the homemaker in the family, the household will probably face the need to hire extra household help. Nursemaids, housekeepers, and other domestics are not inexpensive these days. With this in mind, some insurance companies have created policies that provide "income plans" that will pay each month while a nonworking wife is on the disabled list because of accident or illness. Benefits are generally conservative, but are increasing. Costs vary depending upon the waiting period.

Primitive machine from Pelham donated to county museum

by Shelba S. Nivens

A type of primitive copying machine, known as a water press, from an early Pelham general store has been donated to the Shelby County Historical Society to be placed in the county museum. No one seems certain just when the copier was first used, but local historians say it is of the type used in the late 1800s and early 1900s.

The Oates store began operation over a century ago near the L & N Railroad and the Montevallo-Asheville road in Pelham, and served the community and surrounding area until the death of Mr. Forest Oates in January, 1958. The building still Apparently, William Oates began operation of the Pelham store in the 1870s, along with a younger brother, Augustus. Ken Penhale has in his possession, a copy of an 1878 price list from the store bearing the initials "W and A" Oates as owners and proprietors. 1880 census records show that William was already married with three children, while the twenty-seven year old merchant, Augustus Oaces, was still living at home with his mother and two younger brothers.

As indicated by the century-old price list, the Oates store supplied early Pelham citizens with everything from buggy belts to hogskin collars. Shoe pegs sold for ten cents per quart; cross cut saws for thirty-five to ninety cents; bedsteads, "nice and fine," for four to ten dollars; and "good" coffee, four and one-half pounds for one dollar. The store also stocked drugs and patented medicines, candles, crockery and many other items for use in the home and on the farm.

The price list came from a local newspaper of the time, but, the old water press may have been used to print such lists for distribution among local citizens. Old papers bearing the name of the L & N Railroad were found with the machine, indicating that it also, may have once belonged to the railroad company.

Mr. W.L.D. Johnston, a local historian, informed us that the old press is similar to one used by the described its operation: "When the agent made weigh bills or such, he wrote with indelible pencil. When this was wet it would make a copy off the backside onto tissue. They could make more than one copy...One copy was put into a large book...'

Mr. Johnston has one of these books which was used at the Columbiana station in 1881, the year the railroad changed from the Selma, Rome and Dalton to the E.T.V. & G. Even the letterhead was copied, he recalled, because "the printing ink they used at that time was water-soluble."

He went on to tell how the press had a little pad that was dampened with a cloth, and the cloth was also put on top of the original copy to wet it. Then, clean transparent sheets, one at a time, were put on top of that and pressure applied to transfer the

The press from the Oates store has a heavy metal plate at the top which could be lowered onto sheets of paper resting on a lower plate and tightened down by rotating a handle. This machine, along with a large table-top counter from the old Oates store, are to be placed in storage with other donated items until the old Columbiana courthouse is renovated for use as a museum.

Records indicate that the Oates family came into the area in the early 1870s from North Carolina. A young couple, John and Anne Means Oates, came from Ireland to this country in railroad company in Columbiana. He 1730 with two young sons, one having Samuel, son of William and Betsy, and his wife, Bessie Tucker Oates, we re apparently the first of this line into Shelby County. Their son, William, who began the early Pelham mercantile business, was born in North Carolina in 1851 and married Susan, or Sudie, Richards, whose family had been in Shelby County since the 1850s.

William and Sudie's first child was born in 1875. Forest, who followed his father in the mercantile business, was born in 1880. Other children included twin daughters, Ida and Ada. The old Oates home still stands just south of the old store near the L & N Railroad trestle. For many years it was known as the "Nabors House" for this is where daughter, Ida, and her husband William Nabors, also a Pelham merchant, made their home after the death of William and Sudie.

The Oates family owned several acres of land along the railroad and Buck Creek in the Pelham/Keystone area. Also owning land and living near the old store was the family of Forest Oates' wife, Constance O'Barr. The O'Barr family had come to Shelby County at least by 1855. They lived in a large, two-story house next door to Michael O'Barr was a hatmaker.

His son, C.C., father of Constance, was dentist and a watchmaker. C.C.'s wife was Laura Cynthia Allen, of the early Allens to Cahaba Valley. "She was my daddy's aunt," Mrs. Julia Finch, daughter of Jimmy Allen told us. "We called her 'Aunt Cyn' her husband 'Uncle Tine'." Mrs. Finch's sister, Mrs. Kathleen Turner of Columbiana, added "She was the daughter of John Allen."

Both sisters talked of the tragic death of "Aunt Cyn" in the summer of 1922. ("Uncle Tine" had died in 1900.) Needing thread of a kind she couldn't find in the Oates store, Cynthia decided to walk across the railroad tracks to Johnson's store (later Nabor's store) located where the Moore house now stands. "She was hard of hearing," recalled Mrs. Turner, "And she also held an umbrella over her head as shade from the sun...She hever knew what hit her."

Apparently one of her little grandsons, a child of her daughter and Forest Oates, saw the accident. He was so frightened that he ran into the house and hid under the dining room table. "Aunt Cyn" had been taking care of her two small grandsons every since the death of Constance, her only child, two years earlier.

The first child of Forest and Constance Oates was a daughter, Helen. But, she too, had met tragic death in 1913 at the age of six. "It was on a Sunday afternoon," recounted

Mrs. Turner. The child had gone down to a spring behind the house to get a drink and was running back with the dipper when she fell and the handle went into her neck, rupturing a jugular vein. "They got her on a fast train to South Highland Hospital, but she died anyway."

Two sons were born to Constance and Forest Oates, and finally another little girl. But Constance died at childbirth.

SHELBY COUNTY

Birmingham has a lot to offer for art and nature lovers

Once a tough steel town, Birmingham is undergoing an extraordinary renaissance these days making this Alabama city a good place to visit.

In the arts, night life, big time sports and special attractions -- you name it -- Birmingham is on the move.

Latest example is the well regarded Birmingham Museaum of Art Featuring an outstanding 1400 piece collection of Wedgwood and covering the arts from ancient Egypt to the present. The Museum is now undergoing a $1.6 million expansion which, in addition to Birmingham's ballet company, symphony, and international Festival of the Arts, is making this graceful city worth looking over for the first time.

There's night time fun too in the new hotels and "Morris Avenue," an old warehouse district which has been converted into a collection of Gay Nineties restaurants and night spots.

And if you like concerts, broadway shows, and big time hockey, try the new $63 million Jefferson County Civic Center, one of the finest

Social and Personal Mention

by Mildred White Wallace

"Coming events cast their shadows before" -- may rightfully be labeled a time-worn saying, but it is truly in evidence this week in Shelby County as various ambitious political aspirants step up the tempo in an attempt to gain favorable recognition from Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public.

Political drums are thumping out their rhythmic beat as candidates for various national, state and county official positions continue travelling through the county soliciting your 'vote and influence'.

Due to the fact that hundreds of recently registered citizens have moved into this section of Alabama since the last election - candidates and well known political pundits tell me that it is almost impossible to take a guess at the number of votes that will declare the winner.

Another factor, merging into coffee cup confab, is hearing the flutter and rustle of petticoats in the political arena as the feminine contingent take their designated places in the fast developing drama. Several career women are energetically turning on the glamour and glitter necessary to attract the voting contingent in an attempt to bring the majority of the electorate into their camps.

There seems no way, however at this time, for anyone to correctly bring into prophetic focus the crystal ball or shake the tea leaves in an endeavor to predict the final outcome. It is suggested by some people, claiming to be in the know, that newly registered voters will play a major role in tabulating the final result. Cleaned trunk

California detective Doyle Robinson looks in vain for evidence in the trunk of a 1973 Buick registered in the name of a missing Fresno woman. The car was found near Calera early in the monring of July 29. William T. Landgraf (left) of the Birmingham Police Department's Tactical Operations Unit assisted Calera officers and Robinson in a day long search for evidence in the Calera area. Officers believed the trunk of the car had been recently washed out with water. A variety of items, all to be used as possible evidence, was found inside the car.

Multi-state mystery

Trail of missing mother found near Calera

Exclusive Report by Ralph Sears

A car hidden in an obscure log

A purse and checkbook scattered on a sunbaked Arizona desert ...

Blood stains in a Fresno, California house ... How are these clues linked together? The answer to that question is being sought in a multi-state investigation that focused on Shelby County this week.

Sunday morning Calera Police Chief Cecil Harris and Calera officer C.H. Johnson led detectives from Fresno, California and Birmingham to a site where Johnson had discovered a car on the morning of July 29.

The investigation involves the disappearance of a 54 year old woman spot where the car was discovered from her home in Fresno, California, officers found evidence that linked the the search for her 34 year old son, the interrogation in Joplin, Missouri of the son's estranged wife and the finding of some of the missing woman's personal property in Mojave County, Arizona woman's car on a secluded trail east of

While on routine patrol early in the morning of July 29, Officer Johnson found a 1973 Buick, hidden in an overgrown trail, about a half mile from County Road 306. Returning with Chief Cecil Harris, the officers ran a routine check on the vehicle's identification number and on the California license tags attached to the car. Both checks turned up Dispatcher Mark Jones inserted the car's tag and identification number into the national system used for identifying vehicles. This time California authorities responded with information that the car was registered to Juanita Henry, 54, of Fresno and that Mrs. Henry had been reported missing from her home.

Fresno police earlier had received call from Joplin, Missouri asking them to determine if Mrs. Henry was former wife of her son.

Fresno police at first considered it missing persons case, but upon investigation discovered that Mrs. Henry had apparently disappeared from her home on July 16. When they searched her home they discovered traces of blood, a cut-up mattress and evidence that a car or truck had been backed up to the back door of the Reports indicate that Mrs. Henry's son, Glenn Wayne Burnett, age 33, visited his ex-wife in Joplin, Missouri on July 17 and 18, and then left the Joplin area on July 22. It was at this time that Burnett's former wife apparently became suspicious and called authorities in Fresno.

Sometime between July 22 and August 6, a purse and checkbook were found alongside a highway in Mojave County, Arizona. The purse and checkbook belonged to Mrs.

Last Saturday Doyle Robinson of the Fresno Police Department flew to Alabama and on Sunday morning he and William T. Landgraf a member of the Tactical Operations Unit of the Birmingham Police Department drove to Calera to investigate the impounded Buick with the California tags and the site where the vehicle was found by Officer Johnson.

Johnson and Harris led the two out-of-town officers to the site and the four law officers began a several hours search of the wooded area where the Buick had been found.

Approximately 50 yards from the car with Glenn Wayne Burnett and his mother Juanita Henry. The Fresno office gathered some two-dozen sacks full of evidence including clothing, road maps, bank statements, the son's and the discovery of the missing birth certificate, jewelry box, newspapers, car keys and other items.

> It is believed that the car had been emptied of nearly all items that could be incriminating, and that the papers and other bits of dothing, had been cleaned out of the car during nighttime hours.

After checking out the location where the car was found, the officers then went over the 1973 Buick Century with a fine-tooth comb. The trunk of the white-over red two door car, was found to be empty and A day later Calera Police indications are that the trunk had recently been cleaned. Little or no dust was found. The floor mat, spare tire and tire tools were all missing.

> In the passenger compartment of the car a variety of beer cans, cigarette butts, and matches were found, along with a toy and a part of a wrist band to a woman's wrist watch. All items were cataloged, and the dust and dirt were vacuumed from the car's interior and put in special containers.

Fresno police have issued a "be on all right. That call came from the the lookout" bulletin for Mrs. Henry's son, stating that he is wanted by them for interrogation in connection with the disappearance and possible murder of Mrs. Henry.

$1½ million marked for county schools

by Marcia M. Sears

In last week's special session of the State Legislature Vincent and Montevallo High Schools were each given special appropriations of $125,000 to repair the damage caused by fires at the schools.

The Shelby County school system will also receive $1,456,000 for school construction from the $220 million statewide school bond issue.

State Senator Lister Hill Proctor and Representative Sonny Moore held a press conference in the courthouse Tuesday in which they reported this news and outlined other important

Land swap being pushed

Alabaster auto dealer Sherman Holland continued efforts to get land he owns in Pelham ceded to Alabaster.

At last Monday's meeting attorney Rodney Max presented the Pelham council with a petition asking the town to vacate its claims to 180 acres it annexed in 1971.

Martin Marietta Corp., after the annexation. He now wants the land ceded so he can tie his development property on to Alabaster's sewer line.

Pelham is served by private sewer lines. There are no immediate plans for a city sewer system that would include he Holland property.

accomplishments of the special

Proctor noted that the University of Montevallo received an increase of $100,000 in the general budget for operation and maintenance, and an amendment gave UM $400,000 in capital outlay funds.

In the $220 million school bond issue, UM received $3 million for capital outlay, an increase of 50% over last year, Proctor said.

No local bills affecting Shelby County were passed in the five-day marathon session the legislators noted.

Of special interest to Shelby County is the way the "TVA Bill" will affect the county. Rep. Moore said Shelby County will wind up with 30% more revenue from the ABC Board receipts in the compromise that was worked out. Last year's receipts were about $45,000, Moore said, so the new arrangement would bring in an additional $13,500. This bill involved the entire state and gave dry counties five percent of receipts the state used to receive from TVA.

Both Moore and Proctor said they hoped the Shelby County Board of Education would see fit to spend a "substantial portion" of the new bond Holland bought the land from money at the Chelsea school. A delegation from Chelsea was on hand at the press conference.

The legislators agreed that the special session went smoothly and they were pleased at the way it went. Proctor said, "It was ridiculous that this legislation was not passed in the regular session."

He hopes this will be the last of the special sessions and that leadership will develop in the Legislature and the Governor's office that will make special sessions unnecessary.

Commissioners checked out the air conditioning system, the emergency generator, the freezing units in the kitchen, the drains in the showers, and several other details before accepting the building Monday.

The County Commission plans to set a date for a public open house and dedication. It is thought the date will not come before the September 5 elections.

Pickup flips into creek

Shelco Rescue personnel and members of the Montevallo Fire Department work to free the driver of this pickup truck that left Montevallo's Main Street bridge near the city hall at approximately 6:50 Monday night. Because of steep banks, rainy weather and the near collapse of the truck's cab, it took rescue workers nearly 40 minutes to free the truck's driver, Bill Day of Montevallo. Day was taken to Shelby Memorial Hospital treated for cuts, bruises and facial lacerations and later released. Monday night's accident marks the second time in recent weeks that a vehicle failed to negotiate the bridge on Montevallo's Main Street and plunged into the creek below. Only minor injuries were suffered in both incidents.

On April 17, Holland asked the Pelham council to give up the land immediately adjacent to his business so he could build a 100,000 square foot shopping mall.

Holland's attorney told the council he was prepared to challenge the legislative annexation of the property. However, he did note that there were no people living on the 180 acres when it was annexed.

Max said his client was willing to compromise on the amount of acreage ceded.He said that Alabaster had expressed a willingness to "negotiate" with Pelham, mentioning a possible trade of territory.

Mayor Burk Dunaway told the delegation he would consult with city attorney Frank Ellis on the matter. He said later he would be willing to talk to Alabaster about sewering property in Pelham.

Prior to the Holland secession attempt, the council turned down a request from Ken Peeler to annex his 50 acres.

Councilman Roy Jowers explained that although the property abuts the city line, a fire engine answering a call would have to go out of the city limits to reach the house.

The petition was denied after Je vers and councilman Ray Hamilton expressed concern that the annexation might influence the upcoming fire insurance rating.

Jowers estimated that the inspection could be finished within three months, after which the Peeler annexation could be considered again.

Peeler told the council he understood that the whole town had sacrificed to get a lowered fire insurance rating, and asked if he could get protection while he awaited council action.

Dunaway explained that the police and fire medics would answer emergency calls, but the fire engine would not respond to calls.

Superintendent of Education candidate Norma Rogers addressed the Elusive city boundaries taunt Alabaster again

The lines, the lines, O where are

Although these aren't the lyrics of a song, they do form the refrain of a tune frequently heard at Alabaster Council meetings.

At Monday night's Council meeting, Henry Tolbert, who serves as spokesman for residents of an area that was found to be outside the city limits several months ago, was once again a member of the audience in the council chamber.

When homeowners along old weren't where they'd assumed, and with Tolbert.

Tolbert asked if any attempt had been made to check Tax Assessor's records, and if so, had any information had been turned up.

He was informed by Mayor Davenport that the matter had been investigated and that only one or two residents had actually paid the taxes.

Businessman must pay through nose for sewer

A former Alabaster resident who still has business interests in the city finds that he's left holding the bag.

In the case of GJ. Tolen, the 'bag" is the entire cost of laying a sewer line which runs under Highway 3 near the Shell Service Station.

Mayor Harold Davenport informed the council Monday night that Tolen had asked that they enter into an agreement whereby he could receive recovery rights.

In other words, the Mayor explained, the Tennessee businessman wanted to be able to collect a $5,000 tap on fee from other businesses that might locate in the area where he is putting up an eating establishment. That way, Davenport said, he would be able to recover some of the approximately $20,000 he spent on

However, the Council felt that Tolen was fortunate in even being able to tie into the city's sewer lines and voted to deny his request.

Two other requests that came before the Council were readily approve. In a letter to the city's governing body, Sherman Holland asked approval for an on premise beer 'There are ways to fire an license for a Pizza Hut that is adjacent to his car dealership.

Helena reapplies for LEPA grants

In a brief meeting Monday night, the Helena City Council voted to reapply for grants for the Youth Aid Bureau and the County Work Release Program. Both agencies are operated out of the city.

This year, the YAB grant request will be $34,636 and the work release program's funders will ask for $15,241. The grants come from LEPA.

In other business, the council decided to buy an ad from the county Historical Society in its county map distribution project.

The new sewer system, and the proposed retirement plan for city employees were discussed but no action was taken.

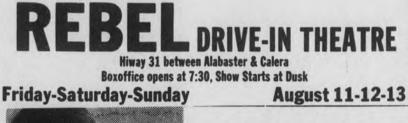

Resident Mike Smith came before the group requesting a street light be placed at the entrance of Sunnybrook subdivision. The entrance, off county 17, has been the site of 11 "fairly serious" accidents during the past

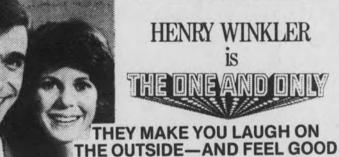

Mayor Penhale said he thought a light would be placed near there when the power company begins installing street lamps across the city.

What's missing in the courthouse?

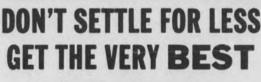

Two women workers from the Shelby County Probate Office were plowing through the enormous trash bin at the rear of the courthouse last week with the aid of the janitor, looking for a lost 'piece of paper,' when the Reporter happened by. The heat and the flies did not make their serach pleasant but they were trying to be cheerful. Although they would not say what kind of paper or document was missing it led to humorous speculation. Was it the Attorney General's decision on the North Shelby County Fire District, pending since May 19? Was it the approval of the Harpersville water supply? Whatever it was, it must not be an unusual occurrence. One of the women told the Reporter, "We have to do this all the time."

According to Brookwood president Charles A. Speir, the first phase of the Brookwood-Riverchase Primary Care Center "will be capable of being developed into a full primary care center, which would include additional services such as an emergency room."

The development of medical facilities in the potentially lucretive Riverchase area has been a bone of contention for three years.

The first plan called for Baptist Medical Centers to build a hospital on property in Riverchase, but this plan was scuttled by the BRHSA and the State Committee of Public Health after Shelby Memorial Hospital protested that the new hospital would cut into its patient referral base and create a surplus of hospital beds in the

Uncle Jim, with the game going his way, fired his pipe and blew the smoke over the board, mumbling, loud enough for everybody to hear: "Scoot 'em. Scoot the checkers."

L.C., a checker short, squirmed on his keg. He stared at the checkers and gazed up at the magolia tree and, after a little, looked back at the checkers.

Uncle Jim puffed on his pipe. He took a deep puff and let the smoke trickle out through his nose. There was a little gurgling in his throat, like a laugh was trying to bust out. "Scoot 'em," he repeated. "Scoot the checkers."

L.C. hadn't moved a muscle, except for his eyes that kept roving from the checkers to the magnolia tree and back to the checkers.

He climbed out and crippled toward the magnolia tree. The ride had put a crick in his back and he walked bent over, like a man toting a sack of mule feed. "Can't," he said. "If I shut 'er down she wouldn't start for heck. Unless I cranked 'er and that'd mean a cracked arm maybe."

"Then climb back and kup straight up the pike," Charlie said. "Just follow your nose for twenty miles and you'll hit Vincent right on the button."

The man drove off, the engine making a little sputtering sound before he got it in high. The kid was still bawling.

Before they finished the game a stranger sauntered up. He was tall and lean, like a bean pole covered with a pair of overalls and a blue cotton shirt. He had walked from over the mountain he said under a sun that couldn't have been more than thirty feet above the trees. The sweat oozed out under his straw hat and trickled down his face.

"It's might hot," he groaned. He draped his body over a nail key, like he was hanging out his wash, and crossed one leg over the other. "What do folks do around here to make eating money?"

Uncle Jim let out a little giggle. "It's so hot some ain't eating," he said. "And those who are have a garden and a pea patch and hogs they raised on pig weeds."

The stranger got up and started to leave. The sweat had stopped running down his face.

No stone has been left unturned

The fervor shown by political candidates in Alabama and Shelby County in particular is remarkable. Having an interest in politics and trying to inspire others to participate in elections is commendable but there when residents received their property are rules concerning the placement of political, or for that matter, any other type of sign on the road. Col. M.L. Hilyer, director of the Alabama Department of Public Safety, this week issued a reminder to campaign managers concerning road signs and politics. In it, he stressed the illegality of placing political signs or stickers over road signs. "People using the public roadways in Alabama depend upon road signs for information, directions and warnings." he said. The offense is punishable by a Safeguards must therefore become a prime concern of insurers, truckers, railroads, government and legislators if disaster is to be successfully averted.

A contributing cause of the problem is an increase in the number of hazardous products and chemicals as a result of our advanced technology. A few decades ago only about 40 products were listed in the hazardous category. Today, there are more than

Senator defends passage of property tax tax plan

State Senator Richard Shelby of Tuscaloosa defended passage of the Governor's property tax relief program.

Returning from the legislative special session, Shelby explained his vote in favor of the lid bill, as "being in the best interest of the people of my Senate district and of the Congressional district.

According to Shelby, "The average, hard-working citizens of our state are already overtaxed, and each day are finding it harder to make ends meet. The one thing we don't need now is an excessively high property tax that would put an even heavier the middle-income burden on homeowner."

keep out goods and services that major factor in the world's economic structure.

In our trade relations with other nations, we have to be careful to protect but not to overprotect. In international trade, overprotection is always a problem. Eventually, with overprotection, other nations will react and erect so many counter-protective barriers against our goods that we will be in worse shape than before. -- How much protection is enough? - Do we really believe in the free marketplace as we so often preach? - What, in short, should our trade policy be?

As an example of an important nation with which we must achieve an appropriate balance of trade, Sparkman cited Japan.

"Japan, the industrial giant of the East, is at one time our keen commercial contender and our closest Pacific partner. To a large extent, we are as interdependent as veins and arteries. The economic connection is the heart of our relationship."

The Senator sees the U.S. goal in trade relations with Japan as strong, secure, healthy and cooperative Japan as one key to our mutual economic strength as well as a major factor in the world's economic structure. He conceded that the present trade relations is grossly imbalanced in favor of Japan. He anticipated that moves by our Chief Trade Negotiator Robert Strauss and by Premiere Fukuda's cabinet, under the watchful and experienced eye of Ambassador to Japan Mike Mansfield, will help ease that imbalance.

Remembering the year he was in her class when she taught in Decatur, Miss Pope said Brewer was a good student, but full of fun. She also remarked on his integrity and termed him a class leader.

A small but enthusiastic crowd turned out to welcome the gubernatorial candidate to Wilsonville. The cavalcade accompanying Brewer started in Columbiana where he made his first talk.

Before he addressed those gathered in front of the Food Center, Miss Pope took the microphone from his hands and gave her endorsement of his candidacy.

Intermittent showers fell as the van carrying Brewer and vehicles with campaign workers, and local office seekers drove through the county, stopping at the old Sterrett School House, where a Trade Day was in progress, at Harpersville and at Vincent.

Marching Troubadours make music come to life by John Tishler "I write the songs that make the whole world sing...

Montevallo High School band director Jim Weese writes a lot of songs that make, maybe not the whole world, but quite a few bands in this area, "sing."

The director of the "Award Winning Marching Troubadours" is very much in demand these days by a number of high school band directors. Weese is an arranger of music-and a good one.

"I'd say 50 or 60 bands in this area have used my arrangements at one time or another," he says. "I guess that is the thing I do best, as far as music goes."

Don't let his statement on arranging mislead you. While his music is foot-tapping good, it's his hundred Marching Troubadours that make the tunes come to life.

The Troubadours are a proud bunch. Since Weese came to Montevallo eight years ago from Calera, never earning less than an excellent rating. Bands are graded on a scale of one to five, one being the highest rank. The MHS band has received ones consistently during Weese's term at Montevallo.

"I'd say that reputation is one of our biggest problems," he remarks. "When I first came here, everybody worked hard and we surprised a lot of folks. After our second year, though, people started to take us for granted. They expected us not to slop around, but to look sharp. Some of the students could not see the necessity of hard work."

Alabaster leaders praised at meeting

Mayor Harold Davenport and Alabaster Police Department's budget. Councilman Jack Zuiderhoek were given a figurative pat on the back for service to the city at Monday night's council meeting.

Zuiderhoek was commended for his work in fixing up the city park which included the depot restoration. And Mayor Davenport was praised for his part in getting the city's fire insurance rating lowered to a 7.

Zuiderhoek reported that he is still pushing for a BOR grant which hinges on getting a property appraisal for land adjoining the park.

Renovation work on the depot, which was spearheaded by Zuiderhoek and Building Inspector Milton Allen, is complete except for water and lights. According to the Park and Recreation Board Chairman, his committee will meet this week to plan a grand opening for the refurbished building.

As he congratulated the Mayor for his successful effort in getting a lower fire insurance rating for the city, Councilman Gene Glasgow remarked that he'd already realized considerable wings on his fire insurance policy.

Councilman · Zuiderhoek told the panel that some policy holders were receiving as much as a 40% reimbursement on their premiums. All policy holders were advised to check with their insurance companies on how the new rating affects their policy.

Teacher answers charges

The Shelby County Board of Education leveled ten specific charges against Pelham band teacher Wayne Alexander before firing him for incompetence, insubordination and neglect of

During the hearing Alexander answered the charges:

1. To the charge of sending band students to study hall without authorization Alexander answered that he had sent students to study hall rarely and only when they expressed concern to him about academics. There was testimony from the school librarian that Douglas did not send an inordinate number of students to study hall.

2. Alexander admitted calling a substitute teacher and leaving school without authorization. He said he had a headache and called the substitute after he could not reach the office on the telephone. He added that assistant principal Ken Tatum was present when he signed out for the day.

3. The band director also admitted coming to school late three or four times, but said he was never more than 20 minutes late and that on at least one occasion he was late because school principal Ernest Douglas had detained him in the hall.

4. He admitted being three weeks late with the report card of one of his homeroom students, but blamed other teachers for not getting their grade reports to him on time.

5. Alexander admitted leaving school without permission for twenty minutes during the Powder Puff football game. He said he had gone home to get a test key so he could grade papers when he saw that he would not be needed as a chaperone at the

6. Several students had to call parents to get a ride home from the Chelsea tennis match to which Alexander carried the team. He said he had an appointment with the health department about his septic tank at 5 p.m. that day and had told Coach William Horne that he would not be able to give the students a ride home from the game. 7. To the charge that he had not kept up with the candy sales, Alexander said that the sales were Douglas's idea; that he had gotten no support from the administration on the sales; and despite this had turned in a $1,098 profit from the sales. If all the candy had been sold, the profit would have been $2,400.

8. Alexander denied allowing vandalism in the band room and denied any responsibility for the $3,700 band debt.

9. The band director testified that $24 that later turned up in Douglas's office had been placed in his desk without authorization by a student and had been removed by Douglas "for a joke."

10. To the charge of inconsistencies with the band programs at Helena and Valley Schools, Alexander answered that those programs had been voluntary on his part, that he received no compensation for the extra work, and that the programs had served their purpose by providing a base to start the band.

One charge against Alexander was "leaving money in a drawer and losing Testimony during the hearing revealed that Douglas had taken the money from Alexander's desk drawer and kept it in his office.

"It was just a joke to make you squirm," Alexander testified Douglas told him when he returned the money.

Board member Whitman took no part in the decision to fire Alexander.

"As a patron of Pelham High School who has been very active, there is no way I can confine my thoughts and feelings to the testimony given at this hearing. I therefore will not participate in the board's decision," she said for the record at the close of the hearing.

It is that record, 1,200 pages of typescript, that will ultimately decide Alexander's fate.

Five letters from parents protesting that Alexander was incompetent were written in the week before the hearing; the sixth dated from December of 1976; the seventh was undated.

Three letters from Douglas to Alexander were introduced. Two, dating from the period just before Douglas's resignation, sharply reprimanded Alexander. The third, written in October of 1977, was highly complimentary.

prominent Montevallo businessman, has recently been added to the Alabama Register of Landmarks and

The imposing house on Boundary Street, now owned by the Lenard Lawley's, was constructed in 1884 by R.F. McKibbon on what was then mostly open land.

Modeled after the Victorian style of architecture, the home features a pentagonal turrent, two small upstairs porches, and both Eastlake and jigsaw

On the banks of nearby Shoal Creek, McKibbon owned a saw mill, grist mill and cotton gin. He was also an active member of the Presbyterian Church.

In the early 1900's McKibbon moved to Birmingham where he became a railroad official.

Bo Galloway purchased the home about 1930 and in 1949 it was sold to Mrs. Lawley's father, Melvin Smitherman.

Eight mantels with mirrors and colonettes are in the living room, dining room and the six bedrooms. Another ornate feature is the rolled crown ceiling molding which extends part way down the wall in each corner.

More fancy trim work is found in the alcove entrance formed by the turrent. Here McKibbon installed ornate mahogany jigsaw trim.

When Smitherman purchased the home, he replaced the plaster walls with sheetrock. And in an attempt to let light into the entryway, he removed the stained glass panels which flanked the front door. (Mrs. Lawley says she has them and plans to install them again.)

husband bought the home in 1967 after her father's death.

Room to spare

The Lenard Lawleys own this Victorian style home in Montevallo which was recently listed on the state Historic Register. The couple are the only occupants of the 14 room home on the corner of Boundary and Shelby Streets.

Violets flourish, Lawley pointed out, was spent in fixing up the yard. She and her husband bought the home in 1967.

Children need tender loving care, and so do house plants. So now that all of her children are grown, Mrs. Timothy Rooks of Chelsea mothers a houseful of African violets.

In fact, she's become so attached to the plants, she can hardly stand to leave them for more than a few days at

She laughingly related that on a recent vacation, her husband referred to the plants as her babies when she constantly fretted about how they ere doing.

A flower grower from way back, the Chelsea homemaker started her African violet hobby with a monetary gift she received one Mother's Day.

Starting out with three plants, she related that she now has a little over

By reading and experimenting, Mrs. Rooks seems to have achieved success with her hobby. But even though she now has 2,000 plants in her collection, she still claims she operates on a trial and error basis.

Because she's running out of places to put her plants, Mrs. Rooks reported that she's in the process of having an African violet room built.

In the meantime, her babies are housed on three 48 inch long floor carts, each containing four shelves, and five tables of the same length.

So that she'll have room for the 100 new varieties that have already been ordered, the inveterate plant

When she adds to her collection,

Mrs. Rooks noted that she doesn't buy expensive plants. However, she mentioned that on some occasions, she has paid as much as a $1 for just a leaf to be used for rooting.

While the uninitiated might think that plant care is just a snap, Mrs. Rooks pointed out that it takes her about five or six hours each day to look after her delicate blooms.

But Mrs. Rooks says she must allot time to finance her hobby. The way she manages to do this also keeps her in touch with the younger generation. For several hours each day during the fall and winter season, the homemaker-gardener becomes a school bus driver.

Revival set

Revival service will begin Monday, August 14 at 7:30 p.m. at Bethlehem Baptist Church in Spring Creek. There will be a different visiting preacher each night.

Pastor Kenneth Churchwell invites all to attend.

There is a technique to help with selection of compatible styles in room arrangements. This technique involves asking a series of questions. For example, it basic furnishings of a room in which the intent is to place decorative pieces are of one style, is the accent piece also of the same sytle? If not, is it compatible? This is not to say that combinations of styles are unacceptable. Many are delightful. In fact, electric decor is a most attractive style in itself. Not suitable, however, are combinations of formal and informal designs. As an example, do not hang a gilt-framed romantic picture of Marie Antoinette in a family room furnished in pine and chintz and expect a pleasing combination. The two styles would be antagonistic. Conversely, the gilt-framed picture of Marie Antoinette would look beautiful in a formal living room.

If you need any help in the arrangements of certain pieces in yor room, ask about our complete design and decorator's service at BECKY'S INTERIORS, Main St., (P.O. Box 22), Calera, 668-0249. Ray also points out that sign lefacing, whether intentional or accidental, is violating Title 36,

by Ludie Grantham

ZINNIAS-- most often referred to as Grandma's favorite or the old fashioned flower. Until recent years ot too many gardeners used zinnias and when you did see them they were often small, spindly plants.

After several years of planting flowers, zinnias have become one of my favorite annuals. I have noticed that with just a tiny bit of care they Were Grandma's Favorite... and are a very amazing plant.. They are also chosen as Indiana's state one of the most colorful and showy of all annuals. They can be sown indoors in March or April and later transplanted or sown directly in soil in May. And although the package doesn't say so, you can plant them up through the first week of June and have beautiful plants by the end of July. However the best way to be assured of continuous summer beauty is to plant the seed in a box or bed and then transplant to choice places in your yard when about 3-4 inches high.

Council backs vote to nullify re-zoning

The Highland Avenue area of Montevallo will not be re-zoned in the Montevallo's city council, Monday night, accepted the recommendation of the city's Planning Commission not to re-zone, but instead to put extra effort into enforcing the city's zoning laws, rules and regulations.

The possibility of re-zoning the Highland Avenue area was raised Thursday night, July 27, when the Planning Commission received a petition bearing 86 signatures asking the commission to change the zoning of the area from R-2 to R-1.

Montevallo's zoning ordinance designates an R-2 area as permitting multiple family dwellings while restricting an R-1 area to single family

More than 60 residents of Montevallo attended the Planning Commission meeting when the petition was presented. The document was formally presented to the commission by Bruce Green, an attorney from Pelham who represented the petitioners.

David Ovson, an attorney from and as a cut flower they hold their Birmingham spoke against the proposed zoning change. Ovson represents three partners who own' property that faces King Street.

The city's Planning Commission took no action during the July 27 meeting, but scheduled a meeting for

During the August 3 meeting of the Planning Commission, two members of the Commission, F.P. Givhan and Sam Klotzman, excused themselves from the deliberations, stating that they held property in the area and thought it improper to participate in a decision by the Commission. The remaining four members of the commission constituted a quorum.

After lengthy discussion Commission chairman Clayton Nordan called for a vote on the question. The vote was unanimous to retain the R-2 zoning designation in the area.

At the same time, the Commission formulated a statement asking the City Council to take all steps necessary to see that all zoning laws, rules and regulations be strictly enforced, not only in the Highland Avenue area, but throughout the entire city.

Members of the Commission in their message to the City Council indicated a number of nonconforming use violations exist, as well as parking violations and violations of a more technical nature.

Commission members expressed the opinion that petitioners who asked for a zone change could probably have their complaints satisfied if the city would tighten up on the enforcement of existing ordinances.

Monday night members of the council agreed with the commission and voted unanimously to take immediate steps to enforce all zoning

Five signers of the petition asking for re-zoning, sent a letter, dated July 31, to all council members requesting immediate action to correct five alleged violations of zoning laws.

At Monday night's council meeting, members instructed the City Clerk, the City Building Inspector, the City Fire Chief and the City Police Department to take immediate steps to determine if the five alleged infractions were indeed violations and if so, to send letters to the property owners, pointing out the violations.

If violations exist, city officials involved are requested to allow a reaonable length of time to correct the violations.

Letters to the Planning Commission and to the City Council indicate the following zoning laws are being violated: Single family and multiple family dwellings are being used as rooming houses, an insufficient amount of off street parking is provided on certain properties, certificates of occupancy for multiple family dwellings have not been obtained, changes have been made in the nonconforming use of property in R-2 zones and fraternity houses constitute non-conforming uses of buildings in R-2 area.

Council members also report receiving complaints that comme rcial vehicles are being parked or stored in subdivisions or residentially zoned areas, vehicles without current license plates are parked or stored in residentially zoned property, recreational vehicles are being parked in driveways or in yards, rather than in enclosed buildings or carports, and that from time to time property is repaired or altered without the owner first obtaining a building permit.

Council members instructed City Clerk Don Hughes, the city's chief administrator, to take whatever steps are necessary to determine if violations are occurring and to consult with the city's legal counsel when necessary to correct any violations.

New band director falls into step at PHS

by Ruth Ann Dunn

Band members at Pelham High School returning from summer break will have a number of new things awaiting them this year. Among them, a new band director, Steve Pryor.

Pryor comes to Pelham by way of Berry High School, where he was assistant director for a year and a half, and before that, Vestavia High School, where he was also assistant.

A 1972 graduate of Thompson High School, Pryor received his bechelor's degree from the University Montevallo and his master of music from the University of Alabama this

Pryor is excited about the director's job, and proudly pointing to his 60 band members, said, "They'll be the best band in the county in a couple of years."

Noting the reduced number of band members, Pryor said he expected more musicians were at home, still confused by the recent hearing and firing of the former band director.

He said it's not too late for students to join the band even though practice has begun. "We plan to do three or four shows this year," he said. Practice now is for the first show to be given at half-time of the Pelham-Bibb County game.

Even a student who has never played before but who would like to do so may join the band, he said. If enough students expressed a desire, Pryor will form a beginner class for them. If the number is too small, he offers to give private lessons to the interested students.

Pelham's band program under Pryor will include not only the marching group, but a symphonic band and jazz ensemble as well.

Both the marching and symphonic bands will receive new uniforms this year with tuxedo-like attire for the

In case you haven't guessed it's football time in Shelby County

by Richard Crosby

It you've been wondering what all those grunts and groans are you might have been hearing lately, you can stop wondering. It's football time in Shelby County and all nine schools in the county are busy preparing for the 1978 gridiron

From initial reports, it looks as though the county squads will be smaller in number and in size of players this year.

Chelsea has 27 varsity players according to their coach Richard Conkle. "We had a good scrimmage last Thursday," the coach commented. "I wasn't disappointed in what saw. We'll be spending more time fundamentals and conditioning with another scrimmage set for Thursday at 6 p.m."

Chelsea is only practicing once a day due to the large number of players who work.

Coach Gene Hulsey's squad at Shelby Academy is doing "all right," he says. The team has had a lot of skull sessions and spent most of the first week in conditioning

"We can't afford to get any backs of receivers hurt," explained Hulsey who added that the depth of the squad lies in the offensive and defensive lines.

Vincent has a crowd of 40 footballers for the Yellowjacket's upcoming season. "Our work on the field has only allowed us to have four practices so far," stated coach Gary Garrett. "The players reported in better shape than I expected. We've got a lot of conditioning and skull work ahead but I'm pretty well pleased so far."

Thompson's football team headed for Marion Institute Sunday afternoon. The team will stay there till Thursday, and while at Marion be practicing, practicing, practicing. The week long football camp started a few years ago and since then the players have voted to return

"I'm not usually in favor of the players voting on a lot of things, but

this is one decision we leave up to excellent motivator to the players. them," stated coach Larry Simmons. "We think we all get a lot out of it."

The Bulldogs of Montevallo number only 23 as of the weekend. Practicing once a day, the team has "gotten a lot accomplished," according to head coach Richard Gilliam. "We're able to give a lot of individual attention because we have so few. We lost 18 players that we had in the spring. Right now we don't feel we have enough to scrimmage.

"We're working mainly on fundamentals and getting the athletes in

The Wildcats under Shelby County's new head coach Mark Bradley have been going two-a-day since the AHSAA rules allowed practice. The first scrimmage is planned for late this week. Bradley is enthusiastic

Despite losing a lot of talent in graduation, the Wildcats could win a lot of games they aren't supposed to just on sheer emotion and selfconfidence.

Pelham just returned from Marion Institute after a week-long football camp. How many compose this year's squad and how well they look is a matter of conjecture at this point, but some tell-tale signs should be surfacing this week as the team starts two-a-day practices.

Calera had 27 men out for football at last report. The Eagles lost heavily last May, but some key shape," concluded the Montevallo components remain that should form a strong nucleus.

The Eagles start their annual week-long football camp next week. Practice will be going almost continuously either on the field or in the classroom.

Coosa Valley Academy has been about the team and appears to be an keeping quiet with its gridiron preparation, but the whole starting lineup is returning. Last year the Rebels just missed the state playoffs in the Private School Association. With a lower school classification this year plus the return of almost all of last year's team, CVA should be hearing for a number one ranking in the state.

So, that's what all the noise has been you've been wondering about. Why not take a lawn chair out to the practice field and watch? The teams need your support and you might just get a pre-season view of how the county teams should fare in '78.

Cullman Class A State Tourney unlucky to county softball teams

by Richard Crosby

Both Shelby and Montevallo Merchants softball teams were snakebit in Cullman last weekend, and state championship trophies were given away while both county teams were driving home.

A 42 team field comprised the race to the Class A State Championship. The Shelby Merchants, winners of District Six, met LeMasters Friday night at 7 and lost 14-9.

"We had bad luck to start with," commented coach James Harris. "The other teams got the breaks. We had some problems with injuries, but something seemed to be missing. Maybe we were trying too hard. It might have been a lack of intensity or commitment."

The Shelby team bounced back in the first game of the Loser's Bracket and whipped State Wide Two 11 to 8, but later that afternoon the Merchants got their traveling ticket by

by Earl Franklin Kennamer

One fish camping trip will always be a nightmare.

In '49 or '50 my brother-in-law and our two sons and I drove to Greene County where I had persmission to camp on a piece of land containing two sloughs of the Tombigbee. "Calvin," I said as we drove off, "I have everything in the trunk of the car we'll need."

Never in my life had I been more mistaken. At dusk after we had set out our trotlines and were boiling a can of creekbank coffee, we heard a dreaded whine that culminated into the repetitive roaring finale of Ravel's Bolero! You guessed it. Mobs of mosquitoes, especially trained to attack in formation, zoomed in. I counted 14 mosquitoes puncturing one bare forearm. They lit on our faces, drilled through our shirts, jabbed us through our socks. "Calvin!" I demanded, "Where IS the bug stuff?"

"Don't come around with that tripe -- you said you had everything!" he retorted, slapping his face soundly as if it were mine he

Buddy's softball team lost two straight games in the State Major Softball Tournament held in Montgomery this past weekend.

In a rain delayed first game, Buddy's fell to the Cullman Allstars 5 to 3. First baseman Owen Butts belted a homer in that game but it wasn't enough as the Alabaster League team fell into the Loser's Bracket.

Later Saturday afternoon, Buddy's was knocked out of the tournament by the Cullman Merchants by a 14 to 10 margin. Butts knocked his second homer of the tournament to lead the team in batting.

Buddy's posted a season record with over 60 wins to their credit in

We built a smudge fire for smoke to discourage the varmints. We lit cigarettes. I imagined I could hear the insects inhaling deeply. Our boys, however, didn't want to go home. We struck the tents and sat under them, pulling up a flap now and then for a couple breaths of fresh air. I got in the car and sat in the stifling heat until we ran the trotline every hour or two.

That trip taught me a lesson. I usually pack along an aerosol can or bottle of bug dope in every tackle box, auto glove compartment, hunting coat.

Knowing a little repellent will convert a trip of misery into a comfortable outing, I have some approved tips to help you make the event a pleasant one with regard to insects that like your company.

Repellents are grouped into two types: (1) general-use for applying to skin and to clothing; and (2) special repellents for clothing only.

You have to dig a little deeper because we have to dig deeper.

It takes a lot more effort and money to find natural gas now. Most of the cheap gas has already been found. More gas is being discovered, but drilling deeper onshore and further offshore to tap and deliver new natural gas is tremendously expensive.

Why is your gas bill going up?

Last year our gas cost rose significantly due to government approved price increases for our suppliers. These increases were passed on to our customers penny for penny, without any profit or markup for us. This year gas prices will rise again. But these higher producer prices are resulting in more gas being discovered and brought into production, assuring an adequate supply of gas for our homes, schools, churches and businesses.

Natural gas is still your best energy buy!

It's good to know that when compared to other forms of energy natural gas is and will remain your most efficient, environmentally acceptable and economical energy buy. So, let's use it wisely.

There are lots of ways you can conserve

Falcons return to cage wars with 'inexperienced veterans'

Ask University of Montevallo head basketball coach Bill Elder about his 1978-79 Falcons, and a funny expression crosses his face. You see, Elder isn't quite sure how to describe his upcoming team.

"I hate to use the word 'rebuilding', because it sounds so negative," he begins. "However, we did lose some fine front-line players whom we have got to find replacements for."

Among the departed are Montevallo's third and fifth-ranked scorers in history, Wylie Tucker (1,253 points) and Charlie Dickinson (1,115 points).

The Falcons do return five players, all of whom saw a good amount of playing time, but none of whom could be truly described as "experienced". They include guards Vanard Dinkins and Dennis Crutcher, forwards Tony Gray and Robert Cash, and center Robert Curry.

'78 hunting seasons outlined by Conservation Department

by Richard Crosby

It won't be long before you can head to the fields and woods and start hunting. The Alabama Department of Conservation has released the various hunting seasons for this

Most important to area hunters is the deer season which begins for bowhunters on October 14th. That'll be hunters choice and by stalk hunting only.

Hunters with guns can start their search with dogs or without them on November 17.

The five day doe season lasts from December 26 to 30. In Coosa County the dates are December 29th and 30th.

For fall turkey hunters, the season is November 17th through January 20th. The spring season lasts from March 20th till April Quail hunters can start preparing their dogs for the upcoming season that opens November 20th and ends February 28th.

Rabbit season is from October 14th to February 28th. Squirrel hunters can head to the hardwoods October 25th through January 11th.

The first wild game that hunters can go for is dove. Last year quite a few benefit shoots were held and it seems like hundreds of dove were killed. The season opens at noon September 16th and goes till November 1st. Remember that the bag limit is 12 per day and 12 in possession.

Of course, there's a lot of other game that comes in season during the fall months. Bobcat, woodcock, snipe, beaver, raccoon, opossum and a bunch of strange named animals that I don't think exist in the county.

If you haven't already started, now's the time to start going through your hunting gear and start fixing or replacing it. Special attention should be given to the rifle or shotgun you plan to use. There's nothing worse than pulling the trigger on a 12 point buck and having nothing happen.

You may find it hard to believe, but if you haven't already taken

Ebenezer Church drew its congregation from miles around due to being the only church in the area for many years.

The present clapboard building, on which a steeple was erected in March, was constructed in 1891. However, the church was officially organized as part of the Cawhaba Circuit around 1832.

A minister on horseback founded the church which bears his name. Ebenezer Hearne covered a 150 mile circuit and another nearby church he organized is the United Methodist Church in Montevallo, then called Wilson's Hill.

The grandfather of the church's early members of the congregation. He was named for Methodism's founder, John Wesley.

Rev. Crim attended the church as surrounding area.

People once flocked to a small a small boy when his father, Joshua,

Land for the church building was deeded by J.N. Wyatt in 1912. Some of the families who were among the church's first members were the George Frosts, the Burgins, Johnsons, Albrights and Swinfords.

Various additions and improvements have been made to the church over the years. The most recent addition was the steeple which Mrs. Anna Frost donated in memory of her husband, Nathan.

A chimney on the south side of the sanctuary once served a pot bellied stove which has long since been removed.

The congregation of the church has dwindled over the years, but according to Rev. Crim, the tide seems to be turning as people have begun to flow back into the area.

Although the church is located in pastor J. Clyde Crim, was one of the a pastoral setting at the end of an unpaved lane off County Road 24, Rev. Crim noted that approximately 600 new families are now living in the Warrior band marches head-on into season

by Bert Seaman

The Marching Southern Sounds are gearing up for a winning season.

While the Thompson Warriors are preparing for a successful season on the gridiron, the band members have started to get their musical act

Approximately 150 musicians turned out Monday for two weeks of practice for what Band Director Elson Hood predicts will be "One of our better seasons."

"We have a larger brass section this year," Hood remarked, "and we also have more experience."

Commenting on the type of music the band will play, the director said that it would continue to have a 'Spanish flavor," adding that he and Assistant Director Tim Anderson had completed a new arrangment of an old favorite, "Granada."

Spurred on by their previous successes in band contests, Hood said that his group would be doubling the number they enter this year.

Instructors who are helping to put polish on the band's program before their first performance Aug. 24 are: Ron Smith, Vestavia Band Director, Robbin Robinson, former band director (drums); Hood (woodwinds) Anderson (brass).

Former THS feature twirler Tammy Festavan is working with the majorettes.

Owns a piece of the rock

Pelham man struggles with rocks in his yard

by Ruth Ann Dunn

Those recent afternoon showers across the county combined with the penetrating rays of the summer sun have really stepped up the photosynthetic process. In other words, the grass on the old front lawn is growing at its fastest rate.

If you think your lawn is rough to handle, be thankful it's not like the one Aaron Johnson has to mow.

For the past 16 years, since his family moved to the house off Highway 52 near the railroad tracks in Pelham, Johnson has mowed the family lawn. First, helping his father, and later taking over the job.

"I think my brother cut it maybe two times," he said.

Johnson's mowing job is especially tough because the yard is dotted with limestone rocks, jutting out of the ground in the most unlikely places. The limestone which provides a livelihood for many county residents is just an obstacle for Johnson to mow around.

Using a five horsepower riding mower, Johnson cuts as close to the stones as possible then follows up with a push mower to get straggling blades of grass.

As the Reporter approached Johnson, hard at work, his riding mower decided the task was too much

"I can have it fixed in just about a minute," he said and true to his word, Johnson seems unfazed by the rocks in his yard. He says he just hates cutting grass in general.

Perhaps after 16 years of cutting a lawn full of rocks, you don't notice the stones anymore ... just the grass.

UM asks extra housing

The University of Montevallo will apparently not have enough space for students who want to live on-campus this fall.

UM housing director Dr. Mike Benson says that the anticipated shortage of space has forced him to make a public appeal for rental rooms in the Montevallo area.

Of the university's more than 3,000 students last year, approximately 1,500 lived in residence halls, while 500 lived in Montevallo area apartments and 1,000 commuted every day.

The UM housing director said the shortage has two causes: a general enrollment increase and the effect of the trend for college students to seek on-campus housing because of the relatively low cost of on-campus room and board fees.

The Alabama Committee for the Humanities and Public Policy has awarded a $4,146 grant to the Alabama Consortium for the Development of Higher Education to fund a sumposium, "Alabama's Natural Resources," Sept. 28, at the University of Montevallo.

Coordinator Jeanetta Keller, director of Environme ntal and Energy Education at UM, said symposium participants will represent state government agencies, industry, and interest groups involved in promoting the preservation and the use of natural County Extension Agent John Jones is riding on cloud 9 these days. Six young horsemen from the county's 4-H Horse Club will be competing in the Southern Regional Show next

"More of our riders won awa rds at the state show than ever before," Jones exulted. In order to qualify for the regional event, Jones explained that members had to earn a first place ribbon at the district show which was held in Montgomery last Monday and Tuesday.

Riders who will be taking their mounts back to Montgomery today (Thursday) for the three day show are: Jessica Eisenberg, Linda Strickland, Rosalind Williams, Lisa Hall, Sandra LeFoy and Michelle LeFoy.

Qualifying for the regional event, which will include riders from 13 states, started at the District 4-H Show at the Birmingham Fairgrounds July 26. Every one of the riders that went to that show were eligible for the state show, Jones noted.

At the state event, Rosalind Williams narrowly missed winning the high point trophy. Riders and their awards are as follows: Jessica Eisenberg, 1,5,6; Linda Strickland, 2 1st, a 2nd, two 3rd, 4th; Rosalind Williams, 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 5th.

Lisa Hall, 1st, 3rd, 4th, 6th; Cindy Argo, 2nd, 3rd, 5th; Christie Watkins, three 4th, 7th; Sandra LeFoy, 5th 8th; Carolyn Smiley, 7th, 8th, 9th; Rose Fraser, 9th.

Sandra LeFoy and Michelle LeFoy won first place for their team demonstration on the correct way to saddle and bridle a horse. And Sandra was awarded a second place ribbon for her individual demonstration on braiding a mane.

Garrett Coliseum beginning at 8:30 Thursday morning and will conclude with a High Point Western and English Awards Ceremony Saturday night.

The event is free and open to the public. It will include halter and performance classes in such varied events as Cutting, Open Jumping, Bridle Path Hack, and Hunt Seat

Cahaba Lutherans 'will get involved'

by Frances Saiia

With his clean good looks and boyish candor he might easily be mistaken for a matinee idol or a friendly young banker. However, noting the black cloth coat and white circular collar, you realize he's neither. He's Rev. Thomas A. Dudley, pastor of 'Christ the King' Lutheran Church located just two miles east of Hwy. 31 on Hwy. 119.

If the large, buff colored trailer bearing the name of the church looks familiar, it's because it's been around a while. You may have passed it countless times while it was located off Caldwell Mill Road where it acted as an alternating meeting place for the Christ-Church--United Methodist and Our Lady of the Valley Catholic Church, during which time the two budding churches worked diligently erecting buildings of their own.

They now have their buildings, the trailer has served its purpose...so where from here?

The faithful are given to saying, "The Lord moves in mysterious ways". And under the circumstance, one might add "Yes, and sometimes on wheels", for until Nov. 1977 the Lutheran Church held their meetings the Greentree Apartments Clubhouse, but were forced to find a new location when the apartment complex was purchased. Dislocated, they searched in vain for a place in which to hold their services, and it was through the Rev. William Morgan, pastor of the Valley United Methodist Church in Hoover that they secured the right to worship in the now empty mobile home, owned by the North District of the United Methodist Church. The land its on is leased.

There are no temporary facilities on the Riverchase lot where they intend to build eventually and trailers are restricted in that area.

Expressing his pleasure at having obtained the trailer as a temporary meeting place, Rev. Dudley said, "We have here a very ecumenical project, a good example of people's willingness to reach out and join together in an effort to reach the goal of establishing the church across denominational

Calera Baptist to show films

Dr. James Brittain announced today that the Calera Baptist Church will show the 10-episode film series How Should We Then Live? at 6 p.m. each Sunday beginning August 13 at the Calera Baptist Church.

This outstanding series was written by and features Dr. Francis Schaeffer whom "Time" magazine called "a missionary to the intellectuals."

In the series, Dr. Schaeffer poses some very pertinent questions:

* Why isn't it safe to walk our streets at night?

* Why is there more violence on one hand and an ever increasing authoritarianism on the other? * What is happening to our accepted human freedoms?

* Should we throw up our hands

If not...

... How Should We Then Live? The series was 2½ years in the making and was filmed on more than 100 locations in 12 countries. "Christianity Today" calls it "the finest documentary presentation of Christian truth ever produced in motion pictures."

On Marine patrol in Spain

Editor's Note: Dr. David Luellen of Chelsea continues his account of experiences while serving aboard the U.S.S. Coronado, as a civilian teaching history to the crew.

Part 8th in a series by Dr. David Luellen

Twice previously I was refused permission. This time I went to the top, determined to gain approval.

"Colonel," I began, "I'd like to go ashore during the Carbonares operation."

The operation at Carbonares, Spain was the last Marine exercise before I completed my assignment as a history professor aboard the U.S.S. Coronado. I knew it would be rugged, but I wanted this experience.

"It's rigorous," replied the Colonal. "But you work out regularly on the flight deck. You'll learn a lot.'

Although I had officer equivalency status aboard the Coronado, I asked to be a "grunt," a Marine infantryman. Delta Company's Second Platoon, First Squad said I could join them, agreeing to outfit me.

A couple days into the operation I took a small landing craft ashore and spent the night in landing Support Unit's communication tent. The next day I joined Delta Company when they returned to the beach from the mountains.

My presence caused a stir. Questions came quickly. "Is that you, professor?" "What are you doing out here?" "Are you going into the mountains, too?"

Early the next morning we marched into the Craggy Mountains bordering the sea. This desolate area where Planet of the Apes had been filmed, provided a severe test of Marine stamina. It also provided an endurance test for the history professor.

For hours we scaled rocky mountains. Each step up included a half-step down as loose rocks gave way. I quickly learned to count only the immediate step rather than the distance to the top.

About noon we set up a command post at the edge of a jagged peak. Until the conclusion of the operation we would protect the post and scout out and possibly attack posts of other regrouped with the Second Platoon

When water ran short, we stopped at a farm house. Two peasant ladies brought buckets of water, a pitcher and a funnel. As the water level in the pails lowered, someone noticed worms

Our patrol continued. We did not discover any other command post or see any other patrols. We did climb a thousand mountains. We sweat in the sunshine and shivevered in the dark. ith the Ninak ryegrass I figure I got half again as much grazing, maybe twice as much, as I would have with the regular ryegrass." Scott Dee, Jr., Covington, Georgia

"Last year, dry weather killed all my pastures. So I went up to the FMX* and told them I was looking for some-thing to winter my cattle on. They recommended the Ninak ryegrass.

"We planted seven acres and put 70 cows on it. That's too many cows, but we didn't have any other grass for them at the time. They ate it down in about three weeks; then we started feeding hay and used the field for some weeks as a lounging field.

Finally, we pulled the cows off and went in and spread ammonium nitrate. You can imagine what the field looked like by then. You wouldn't have thought there was a thing alive out there. But in two weeks that Ninak was knee-high again.

'We also had a comparison with some regular ryegrass we planted. It came out taller, but when the cattle started grazing, it went down faster and didn't come back like the Ninak. Ninak also lasted longer, about a month longer before the dry weather got it. We had cows on it the second time for about six weeks. "Ninak is a good grass. We were just looking for something to get us by, but it did more than that. We're going to plant some more GOLDKIST of it this fall."

Through the years -- since the founding of Shelby County -cooperation among her people has played a vitally important role in the progress she has made. Pulling on the giant wheels that have turned their cogs to form greater achievement for this area of Alabama, have been the business men from all parts of the county. Side by side with them have been others representing industry, agriculture, civic workers and professional men all lending their time and talents in full support so that Shelby County might become a greater county educationally, religiously, agriculturally, socially, industrially and financially speaking.

Recently, Shelby County has experienced a phenomenal increase in population. New industries have moved into this part of Alabama. Hundreds of new homes in all parts of the county have been built; medical facilities have been widened in scope and strides forward in all directions have been achieved.

Standing high each year on the calendar of worthwhile civic activities, and furnishing further evidence of the successful cooperative spirit on the part of Shelby County citizens is the Kiwanis Club sponsorship of the Shelby County Fair. Proceeds from this undertaking furnish six scholarships to University of Montevallo for students who otherwise would not have this educational advantage. Hence - our personal comment this week will be to call your attention to the fact that the 29th edition of the Shelby County Fair will open in Columbiana Sept. 11 and continue through Sept. 16.

Every citizen in Shelby County should make a ring around these calendar dates and arrange to spend at least one day at this annual event. There are many reasons the fair merits the support of each individual but they are so obvious that to mention them seems a waste of time. Visitors this year to the fair will not only have the opportunity to view the many exhibits on display furnishing visible evidence of the progress made since the first Kiwanis sponsored Fair was presented in 1949, but it will provide the privilege of mingling among friends whom you have not perhaps seen in several years.

will surely be discussed; for never of Alabama. The future potential in all directions is unlimited!

The Kiwanians tell me they are planning entertainment for all age groups. There will be plenty of exciting rides on the midway to capture the hearts of the little ones. Booths are being reserved assuring a generous display of Shelby County made products such as arts and craft, jellies, preserves, pickles, etc. So bring the kids in and spend the day. Concession stands will be open. Hot dogs, hamburgers and cold drinks will be available througout the week.

We hope we will B.C.N.U.

New baby brought home by Joneses

Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. Jones of Baton Rouge, La., announce the birth of a daughter in Womens Hospital on August 2, 1978. They have named this latest addition to their family circle Michael Olivia Holman Jones.

Grandparents include Mr. and Mrs. John R. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Royce Morris of Columbiana; great-grandparents include: Mr. and Mrs. J.M. Butler and Mrs. Olive Holman also of Columbiana.

* * * * Mrs. Sam Stinson has a strange looking vegetable growing in her garden. She recently bought and planted some burpless cucumber seed. After they came up - no one not even the professional farmers admit they had ever seen anything like it. The specimen she brought in our office resembles a squash, an elongated corrugated cucumber, a bit like a gourd or - you name it! Mrs. Stinson took a sample from the garden to the county authorities on agriculture hoping to get it identified, but none who saw it knew what it was.

One thing for sure, it is far too big to think of pickling.

Rev. and Mrs. James Adams Sr. of Rt. 3, Box 666, Pelham, will be celebrating their 32nd wedding anniversary on August 11.

During those years, the couple was blessed with 12 children: Irene Thompson and Betty Ragland of Atlanta, Norman Alexander of Birmingham; James Adams, Jr. of Maplesville: Bobbie Nelms of Pelham; Dora Montgomery of Columbiana, Thelma, Vicki, Darlene, Jeff, and Wendy Adams all of Pelham; and LCPL John Adams of Camp LeJeune, N.C.

David Jones, son of Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Jones, we are glad to report is recuperating at his home in Clanton having undergone surgery last week.

Friends of Mrs. Edna Mooney will regret to learn that she is a heart patient in Shelby Memorial.

Experiential. That's the key word middle school education today ccording to Riverchase Middle School's principal, Dr. Bobby Sixth through eighth grades at the new school under Anderson's administration will "be introduced to the world of work." They will experience self and career exploration through classroom activities as well as a special time at the end of each day called the exploration period.

The school is well equipped for such vocational awareness sessions with three "shop" classrooms. One experimentation, another to the and a third will be divided into a music classroom areas. and art room.

On a tour of the new building Friday, Anderson pointed to the many features that make the Riverchase Middle School one-of-a-kind.

Immediately upon entering the building, one is amazed by the varied strong color patterns displayed on the walls and carpets. Bright oranges, yellows, greens and reds are freely splashed in an eye-opening array.

Anderson said, "I wrote in the monthly newsletter that the school may be controversial bit it's colorful,

Another term new to many students as well as parents will be the "media-center." From now on, children will say, "Mommie, take me to the media center, I'd like to check out a book." Media center is the new term for library at Riverchase Middle School. The center is located in an open space between classroom sections. When asked if the noise from surrounding classes would disturb students researching at the unenclosed media center Anderson said, "The old concept that a quiet school is a good school will not be followed." He said students would be encouraged to express themselves and that keeping them active and moving keeps them

Another interesting feature of the school is the way it is divided into an academic or quiet division and a noisy activity division. On the quiet side are the 25 classrooms media center and courtyard-ampitheatre area. On the noisy side are the gymnasium, shops, music rooms and lunchroom. The lunchroom, like the media center is in an open area sighted immediately upon entering the front door.

Anderson said the school and faculty would be geared to providing the student with the maximum experience and exploration possible in fields that interest him.

The administrative staff including Anderson and his assistant Ruth Stevens expect to move into the building Monday, August 14.

Finishing touches are being placed this week on the lunchroom, offices and quiet division of the school and Anderson expects that area to be turned over this week with the other part being finished soon. Paving should be completed this week on the parking lot and driveways. The traffic flow will have a front driveway for busses to have easy access to the builidng and a back road for parents who pick up their children.

Anderson said 27 teachers will begin the school year at Riverchase with the possible addition of three teachers before the school year ends.

factors, Sheriff Walker is clearly vulnerable on a few issues.

Can Sheriff Red Walker

win bid for re-election?

To begin with, there is a string of unsolved murders on the records that are quite an embarassment. Most local murders are quickly solved because they involve family disputes, with witnesses and confessions. But the really mysterious murders where the clues do not point to obvious guilty parties, are the ones that have proved difficult to solve in Shelby County.

Sheriff Walker is also open to the charge of being very hard to contact most of the time. Except for the few months preceding elections, he seems to be out of his office a great deal, and many citizens complain about it

Some of his actions in the past have led people to believe he would like to pack the courthouse offices with people who are friendly to occupying those offices now, to a degree of domination far greater than political leader.

His moving of his private residence to the wealthy Inverness candidates he has favored have enclave has not been noted by his generally received the black vote, grassroots constituents, but it could be although he has not placed many a source of resentment for some blacks on the county payroll after voters. Stories of his gambling and election day. high living have circulated for years.

legendary. He can turn around the thinking of a roomful of citizens at once with his dazzling manner and his penetrating gaze. He manages to convey both a "good ole boy" and "high sheriff" image at the same time. On the campaign trail there are none more convincing,

Besides, there are hundreds of families who feel loyal to him because of his efforts to help them out through times of family tragedy that came to the attention of his office.

This time however, he does not have the 100% loyalty of his own deputies that he has had in former campaigns. Turnover in the department has been high, despite the good salaries the sheriff has obtained through legislative acts for his staff. Enthusiasm for the campaign is lacking among most of the deputies this time.

The police departments of many him. Many of the people he has of the cities of the county are also supported politically are indeed leary of Walker, because of his attempts in the past to group all of them under one central county law ever achieved by any other county enforcement force with himself at the

That has not happened, however, and the uproars are greater than ever. The 'harmony' people may register their vote for another sheriff candidate this time.

But nobody underestimates the campaign genius of Red Walker. He has said on many occasions that the last three days are the time to really concentrate, and his telephone committees are doubtless already well organized and ready to go to work.

The key to the outcome of the election belongs to that great number of persons who do not like to talk about how they are going to vote, but quietly go to the polls and pull their

Three warrants for the arrest of Glenn Wayne Burnett have been issued by the Fresno, California Police Department.

The warrants charge Burnett with Murder, grand larceny and automobile

Burnett, 33, is the son of a Fresno woman, Mrs. Juanita Henry, 54, who has been missing from her home in Fresno, since July 16.

Calera police officer C.H. Johnson discovered Mrs. Henry's 1973 Buick, hidden in an overgrown trail near Calera on the morning of July 29.

Detectives from Fresno and Birmingham accompanied by Calera officer Johnson and Calera Police Chief Cecil Harris gathered more than 20 sacks full of evidence linking the 1973 Buick with Burnett and Mrs. Henry. This evidence was gathered during the daylight hours of Sunday, August 6.

New buses bring new chance to county's handicapped

by Marcia M. Sears

A new day for Shelby County's hysically and mentally handicapped children is at hand.

When school opens this fall, the ride school buses and enter into regular school programs.

Mrs. Fannie Mae Carden, Special Education Coordinator for the county schools, told the Reporter this week that the two specially equipped school buses have arrived, and are being adjusted to exact specifications at the county bus shop.

They will be ready to pick up children in wheelchairs with a specially designed lift and ramp. Each bus will have space for three children in wheelchairs, one child on a severly handicapped will be able to cot, and 14 passengers in regular bus seats. The bus driver and an aide on each bus will be specially trained to work with handicapped children.

Classes will be held at Shelby County High School, as they were last year. The difference is that with the county providing door-to-door transportation, many more children will be able to attend the classes. Last

Montevallo cracks down on reckless driving

by Reporter Staff

Reckless drivers will have a difficult time finding a sanctuary in Montevallo in the near future,

City Council members, Monday night, passed an ordinance permitting police to make arrests for reckless driving on parking lots, alleys, dirt roads or any other place within the city or its police jurisdiction.

The ordinance sets a maximum fine of $200 or 90 days in jail for a first offense. A second offense may result in a fine of $500 and/or 180 days in jail.

Purpose of the ordinance is to regulate those who may drive recklessly in shopping centers, parking areas and drive-in restaurants.

In related action council members approved a set of regulations designed to regulate emergency vehicles operating in Montevallo.

Included in the regulations is a paragraph stating that no vehicle will respond to calls within Montevallo unless cleared through the Montevallo Police Department.

The regulations also state that no more than two medical units will respond to an emergency call unless year parents had to work out transportation and this was impossible for many of them.

One bus will begin its route in the western section of the county, probably around Turner Station, and the other will begin its route in the Vincent area.

The buses cost about $16,000 each, which is some $2,000 more than a regular school bus, according to Transportation Director William T. Carter. The special buses are 27 feet long and have a 15½ feet wheel base, compared wi th the 35' length and 22' wheelbase of the regular school buses.

Each bus has seat vests to hold the children in their seats, a greater safety factor than seat belts, Carter told the Reporter.

They are also equipped with CB radios which are tied in to the bus maintenance shop and the Board of Education office. "These buses have got to keep running," Carter commented, saying if there was a breakdown he wanted his mechanics to be able to find about it and get to them immediately.

Each bus also has an AM/FM radio because "music makes the ride easier on these children" Carter said. The buses will also be air conditioned.

The Calera council Tuesday night voted to direct the building inspector, Dan Glass, to stop construction on any building found in violation of the building code.

The action was in response to a report that several buildings in town under construction have no building permit, and some of the ones that do are improperly inspected.

Mayor George Roy said, "Nobody's really checking to see what's going on in this town.'

He instructed Police Chief Eceil Harris to have his men notify either the building inspector or city clerk, Lemoyne Payton, if they saw any new buildings going up. He said it would be easy for the officers to notice and report any changes in the town since they constantly patrol the area.

The chief was also called to the carpet for sending an officer to check on a loaded truck in the city part with no action being taken on the matter. The officer came before the council saying the truck was broken down and he let the driver go without a ticket. but councilman Bobby J. Phillips said, "No trucks are allowed in the park."

The council discussed changing the method used in determing building permit costs. Currently, the charge is based on an estimated final cost of the structure. It was brought to the council's attention that persons are claiming considerably less valuations to get a lower permit cost.

A teacher workday will be held August 22 in preparation for school opening the next day.

Students who have not registered may do so at the teacher workday or on the first day of classes.

Anderson said he is "very proud" of the new school. He is returning to the administrative phase of education after working in the vocational education department at UAB.

Councilman Bobby J. Phillips spoke on the proposed closing of 18th Street and the proposed opening of Pilgreen Avenue or 10th Street.

Phillips has gotten verbal agreements of residents in the area of 10th Street to commit an easement for the road. The city is asking for 30 feet on either side of the line.

Phillips said as soon as he received verbal agreements from all residents, public hearings could begin on closing the one street and opening the other.

Changing out the gas lines in the city was brought before the council by Neil Harkins, maintenance superintendant. A proposed cost of $28,000 was mentioned. The group done so far. commissioned Harkins to check into city work crews installing the pipes in order to save money.

The council voted to pay $14,270 construction costs on the Dunwar sewer project.

frustration, misgivings and distrust were aired at the trustee meeting of the North Shelby County Fire and Emergency Medical District Monday

In the midst of what promised to be a brief business meeting, a question and answer slinging session arose. Trustees and district opponents in attendance were pitched against each other in a two hour discussion which ended with a plea by Trustee Larry Dillard who said, "We need the cooperation of everybody. I can't understand why the distrust is here."

In a press conference in Columbiana last week, State Senator Lister Hill Proctor and Representative Sonny Moore presented the high points of the legislation which was passed in the special session in early August:

2. Commercial property assessments have been reduced from 25% to 20% of fair market value.

These are the days of the early 40's, when Uncle Sam was in trouble up to his lovely ears, and even pretty little girls were feeling the pinch.

Bunny writes: "Do you remember? Selling war bonds in front of the bank, and little folks filling books with ten and 25 cent stamps... getting stamps for birthday presents, since little girls were part of the act... "The Christmas parade down

"Faith alone" neither saves nor does it constitute Bible faith. The demonstrate had faith only. (James 2:19) The rulers even had faith in John 12:42, 43, but they were not saved because theirs was a dead faith, one which did not lead them to confess Christ. What does Biblical faith lead one to do?

The alien sinner is led by faith to repent, which is faith turning (Luke 13:3), to confess, which is faith acknowledging Christ as God's Son (Romans 10:9, 10), and to be baptized, which is faith submitting to the act of obedience wherein a person is saved (I Peter 3:21), is forgiven (Acts 2:38), washes away his sins (Acts 22:16), has his sins removed from his soul (Col. 2:11-13), and is added to the Lord's Church (Acts 2:41, 47.) The Christian is led by faith to worship in singing, which is faith praising God (I Corinthians 14:15; Colossians 3:16; Ephesians 5:19), to worship in prayer, which is faith talking to God (Acts 2:42); to worship in Bible study, which is faith listening to God (Acts 2:42); to worship in the Lord's Supper, which is faith remembering (Matthew 26: 26: 29); to worship in giving, which is faith sacrificing (I Corinthains 16: 1,2); to teach others the gospel, which is faith sharing (Matthew 28: 19, 20), and to minister to the sick, which is faith loving (James 2:14, 15) How does one gain this type of faith, that is, Biblical, saving faith? Paul stated, "So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God" (Romans 10:17) Bible faith does not come through a better felt than told experience of grace, nor does it come through taking a chocolate coated pill. Bible faith is not "easy come, easy go." Bible faith comes only through much Bible study (Hebrews 5:12-14) and through busy hands of obedience.

Under the Courthouse Dome

Governor Wallace has been requested by county officials to provide some money for engineering studies on the proposed highway linking Pelham with Columbiana.

Clarence Pickett of Pea Ridge asked the Commission Monday to look into a problem involving county workers digging up water lines on a road near his home at the time they were doing other road work.

Commissioners agreed it would be thoroughly investigated. * * * *

Olivia Washington, director of the Community Action Programs for Shelby and Chilton Counties requested the Commission to help the agency with $300 in expenses for the Manpower office in Clanton.

* * * * District Judge Bill Hill asked the Commission to become the sponsor for the Attention Home again. Funding for the home will come through LEPA he said, although there is a chance the county might be asked for $3,230. He said he was reducing the budget for the home's operation from $42,000 to $32,300 for the coming year, even after giving the houseparents a 71/2% cost of living

Judge Hill also said he would recommend the section for juveniles in the new county jail not be opened as long as the county has a favorable contract with the Department of Youth Services in Birmingham. Whenever a juvenile is in the jail, Hill noted, two employees would have to be on hand, and this would probably be more expensive than using DYS. The Commission agreed.

The Shelby County Circuit Court. Civil Division, will open in Columbiana Monday morning at ten o'clock for the trial by jury of civil cases. Judge James Sharbutt will preside.

The grand jury will not re-assemble until October.

Fay Quick, tax collector for Shelby County, has added Mrs. Raymond Davis of Columbiana to her secretarial staff; and all workers are busily engaged this week in preparing to mail out ad valorem tax notices due for 1978 to approximately 19,000 property owners in Shelby County.

Applications for the privilege of voting an absentee ballot must be made in Circuit Clerk Kyle Lansford's office before Aug. 30.

The mystery remains and the search goes on for Burnett.

He was born Spetember 30, 1944. He is described as being 5 feet nine inches tall, weighing 180 pounds. He has blue eyes and light brown balding hair. He reportedly has a small dot tattoo on his right cheek and a tattoo on one arm with the word "Wanita".

Persons having information regarding the whereabouts of Burnett are asked to contact the Calera Police Department or the FBI.

The warrants issued by the Fresno Police charge Burnett with murder, grand larceny and auto theft.

Commission cool to Calera paving

The County Commission gets contracts let for schools. The tired of being asked to pave driveways Commission is strapped for money and around county schools. The Commission has always done the paving, but a request from Calera last Monday may be the straw that sets up a new system.

The Commission argues that the Board of Education has a far bigger budget than it has, yet the cost of paving is never included in the the Government to prevent anyone from selling his land for whatever price he can get for it. going into debt to meet its obligations.

Calera now needs the curved road in front of the newly built high school paved, so students won't track in mud on the carpets. The Board of Education says it does not have the money. This time the Commission said, in effect, "Let's meet with the Board of Education and try to work this out."

Commissioner Doug Ballard pointed out that the Commission sacrificed a road they had already promised to pave in order to pave back of the Calera High School last year. "Because of the project at Calera, I have not been able to pave any road in my district," Ballard said.

Carl Prichard and J.C. Rowe appeared at the Commission to make the request.

"If the Board of Education can pay their people raises of $1500 -$1700, a year and we can only give $600 raises, then I don't see it," one of the Commissioners remarked. Tentative plans were made for the Commissioners to attend a Board of Education meeting.

Dogs demonstrate obedience

The aim of the county's newest dog club is to produce an obedient pet who can protect the home without being dangerous. An experienced dog trainer is working with the group who are meeting in the Kingdom

As new club begins training

Pets heed commands

The old bromide about a dog being man's best friend doesn't always hold true, especially if the family pet welcomes both friend and stranger in a vicious manner.

Guard dog training isn't for the canine bought for the purpose of protecting the household. What the dog should receive is the kind of training being given by a newly formed

Schutzhund Club. According to Larry Parker, a dog trainer from Oxford who is working with the group, the training developed in Germany is based on the dog obeying commands. In other words, Parker said, the animal only attacks when instructed to do so.

About eight of the club's fifteen members showed up for the first training session Sunday. And despite intermittent showers, dog owners worked their pets on tracking, along with some obedience training.

During his talk to the group, Parker stressed that the training was aimed at "socializing" and making the unfriendly dog obedient. And underlining what he said, Donna and Mike Adney told about rehabilitating their Shepherd.

"The dog even tried to bite me when we bought him," Mrs. Adney related. With patience and training, the couple developed a dog who sat quietly during the meeting, responding readily to commands.

Anyone wanting to go all out with Schutzhund training, Parker said, can carry an animal through first, second and third degree levels. However, if a dog owner simply wants their pet to be obedient and capable of protecting the home, they may take advantage of the opportunity of the club's training

Reporting that meetings would be held every Sunday afternoon, club president Mickey Kirkland of Columbiana, also stressed that those attending could take their dogs as far as they wanted to or could stop after basic obedience.

Other officers besides Kirkland are: Leslie Hope, vice-president; Donna Adney, secretary; Rick Gaught, treasurer; George Wright, training

Requests for funds fill Montevallo council

by Reporter Staff

Requests for funds from agencies within and without the Montevallo city limits continue to pour in to the Montevallo city council.

At the governing body's most recent meeting two requests from the Shelby County Historical Society were presented. One was for funds to help restore the old county courthouse building in Columbiana, the other was for funds to aid the society in the production of an historical map of Shelby County.

Previous requests have come from the Youth Aid Bureau, the county health department, various schools and other organizations.

Earlier this week a request for $5,000 was made to the city to help defray costs of developing the city's Industrial Park.

All requests are routinely forwarded to the city's finance committee for study and possible inclusion in the 1978-79 budget.

During this week's council meeting, council members heard complaints regarding littering in the city's parks and at the Middle School. Council members agreed to place no parking signs in front of Middle School.

Reports indicate that most of the littering comes from cars parked at night in the park and near the schools.

In a related matter council members agreed to erect barriers around the old Standard Oil building on Main Street. The vacated facility is being used as a parking place for night time drivers and as a handy place to Council members requested the city's street department to clean the area and send a statement to Standard Oil for services rendered.

An agreement between the city, the state and the Southern Railway was reviewed by the city. The agreement concerns the installation of warning lights and bells at the grade crossing on Shelby Street, near Brown Moulding Company. The tentative agreement calls for the city to bear 10% of the expense of installing the signals and preparing Shelby Street for the automatic signals. The preparation includes placing signs on the pavement as well as conventional crossing signs.

Council members agreed to study at the next meeting of the body. City Clerk Don Hughes reported that the city's project of creating a parking lot adjacent to Montevallo High School will be completed late this week or early next week. The new parking area will have room for 50 or 60 cars and is expected to facilitate moving traffic on Oak and Valley

In other action council members authorized the city clerk to send out invitations to bid on the construction of a new maintenance building for city vehicles. The new building will be on recently acquired land near the city's sewage disposal plant.

When completed the building will house tractors, trucks, back-hoes and other municipally owned vehicles, currently being parked out of doors.

Council members also heard complaints regarding oversize truck parking in the city's business area.

Councilman David Nichols encouraged his fellow council members to seriously consider ways and means of expanding the city's city

To help eliminate some of the confusion about sytle names and antecedents, here is a look at the nine major influences that are the most significant contributors to the design of today's furniture. They are French, English, Italian, Oriental, Spanish, American Traditional, German, Scandinavian, and American Modern. Furniture styling tends to follow social history. In past centuries, furniture was made by cabinetmakers serving royal courts, or by country craftsmen who translated the eleant court styles into crude but pleasant provincial adaptations. Few can afford the truly authentic antiques, but all can have the handsome reproductions and adaptations of earlier designs that are available in today's furniture.

Employment at new jail discussed

Occupying the new jail will be costly in terms of new personnel. The number of new employees was finally revealed to the Commission Monday although the committee appointed to make recommendations had not completed their meetings.

The present jail uses 7 persons. The new one will require 13 or 15, depending on the judgment of the committee.

Sheriff's administrative assistant Tom Barnes told the Commission he would like to have four men (per day) at the main control booth; one at the auxiliary control booth, 7 in cell block areas, 1 administrator, 1 swingman and 1 alloted for sick leave and vacation

In addition the four office workers would be used in the office section, although some of them have the title and salaries of matrons, rather than clerks.

The view at Pelham High library improves by Marcia M. Sears Students at Pelham High School will once again be able to look out over one of the most spectacular views in Shelby County from their library.

Last year the library in the mountain top school had to be divided and shared with three classrooms, but Librarian Juanita Smith is now moving books and furniture back into the full space originally designed for library

Explaining that Riverchase Middle School will absorb the students that overcrowded Pelham High last year, Mrs. Smith feels she will be able to give more library assistance to Pelham students in the expanded space.

Dr. Mary Sue McGarity, a library specialist with the University of Alabama Birmingham, was at the school last week as a consultant to Mrs. Smith in re-designing the library.

Dr. McGarity told the Reporter, "We are working toward a library program that will provide for the ultimate in use. We want the library open and used by students."

She is making suggestions on the arrangement of tables, chairs and expecially book shelves so the library will be convenient for students to use.

She will recommend to the Incipal that some of the student lockers be moved and replaced with book shelves.

A boon to the program will be the new books and materials available through the money newly appropriated to school libraries by the legislature last spring.

For the first time in the history of the state, schools will be allotted $5 per pupil to buy library materials. That includes books and audio-visual supplies, but no salaries and no furniture can be purchased with the money.

Dr. McGarity said librarians are

Vincent woman wins senior aide award

For someone who needs help and doesn't know which way to turn, Lena Wright is a lifesaver.

A senior aide with the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission's Aging program for nearly four years, the Vincent woman was recently rewarded for her outstanding work with the organization.

Wright was chosen from 25 aides who work in the five county area covered by the program. Her award for distinguished service was presented by Program Director Tom Holmes during the agency's public hearing at Birmingham's Botanical Gardens.

Describing the award winner as a 'person who has dedicated her life to helping people," County Coordinator Betty Fulton pointed out that Wright spends a good deal of her time on the go, searching out facts from different agencies."

In addition to obtaining information and referring senior citizens to the organization that can help them with their problems, Wright also does program planning for nutrition sites throughout the county.

One of her favorite duties is Providing arts and crafts instruction to covered dish clubs. The county program now boasts six of these groups.

In addition to Wright, the county has four other senior aides working in the program which is sponsored by Bessemer Technical College.

Candidates screened at Almont church

by Reporter Staff

Political traditions were alive and well at the Pilgrim's Rest Baptist afternoon.

Virtually all of the local candidates presented themselves before screening committees of the Shelby County chapter of the 'Alabama Democratic Conference (ADC) there, hoping to be endorsed by the black political group. Gubernatorial hopeful Bill Baxley also sent a representative, who left after discovering that the meeting was intended for Shelby County candidates only. Byron Chew, candidate for House District 51 was the only legislative candidate present.

After making an initial contribution of $10 or so to the ADC, the candidates assembled in the nave of the church, awaiting their turn to be called into one of four rooms where interviews were conducted.

Under the direction of the Rev. Robert White of Calera, vacancies on the screening committees were filled by black preachers who were passing by, while fund raisers for various churches and charities circulated among the waiting candidates, soliciting additional contributions.

An air of mystery surrounded the proceedings, as unidentified persons Kirkland, F.E. Glass and E.E. Vassar. slipped in and out of back doors, the press was barred from the interview rooms, and large folders containing an assortment of letters, bills, and lists, Harris, Mrs. Janie Brashier, Mrs. William. were consulted.

ADC member Earl Cunningham of Church in Almont last Saturday Montevallo told the Reporter the candidates were being asked their stands on various modern-day issues and not just those that affect blacks. Cunningham said questions about how the candidate felt about the high cost of utilities, the education of children, and inflation were being asked. Some candidates said they were also asked if they would hire blacks in their offices,

And for the first time, some of the candidates came out slugging. Although it was hot in the Shelby Academy gym, the temperature couldn't compare with the scorching remarks hurled by Bill Morris at his opponent Sonny Moore.

Trying to oust the incumbent from his House Seat, Morris reminded voters of the unpopular 1975 Fire District Bill that Moore had endorsed. He also accused the Representative of being the "prime mover" in the bill raising the load limit on county roads.

Suggesting that Moore's business and position in the legislature might be a conflict of interest, Morris pointed out that the representative's used auto parts operation supplied a firm that does highway repair work.

In conclusion, Morris remarked that he wasn't slinging mud, "just telling the truth."

And digging in, in her bid for reelection, Tax Assessor Bobbie Reynolds lashed out at the P.R.C. Jacobs Company, the contractors for the county's Reappraisal Program.

"Thank God I can finally say it," she exclaimed, "I resent these people. They have been rude, discourteous and have broken their contract.

Mrs. Reynolds reported that some of the firm's mapping isn't correct. She also noted the property values were to have been equalized, not necessarily raised. "Right now, there are variations," she complained.

The Tax Assessor said that she would make a recommendation to the County Commission that a suit be brought against the firm.

The next speaker on the program lightened the atmosphere as he poked fun at one of the county newspapers. Ben Howell told the audience he must be doing pretty well in his bid for office since a poll conducted by the paper showed him with 29 percent of the vote for Superintendent of Education, an office he isn't even seeking.

Both Howell and Carl Prichard are trying to win the seat on the Board of Education formerly held by retiring member Lavon Moore.

During the program, one end of the bleachers was filled with tan shirted Glasgow supporters while the other end contained the red shirted "Red" fans.

After two hours of speaking by candidates for both local and state offices, the Shelby Academy Band Master was finally allowed to cut the cake which had been presented by band members.

Proceeds from the affair, which included the sale of homemade ice cream, will be used to buy new band

Another side light during the evening was the presentation of a quilt made by Mrs. Nellie Moore.

The hurriedly put together affair brought in over $500 for the school's Band Boosters.

New Orleans, McMillan was chosen from among a field of 200 nominees

Addressing the Chambers County Chapter of the NAACP, Guy Hunt, Republican gubernatorial candidate, said, "My primary goal will be to bring new jobs and industry to Alabama."

Hunt said he is particularly interested in helping counties which have suffered high unemployment in

He said this goal can be achieved by working closely with leaders of business and industry.

The Autauge County Bar Association at its recent meeting in Prattville endorsed Ted Taylor for the United States Senate, Place 2, the unexpired short term, according to President Clarence Atkeison.

The candidate is an active trial lawyer, a leader who organized the Autauge County Bar Association and served as its president.

Bill Baxley, candidate for governor, has started on the second swing of his old-fashioned stumping campaign.

Baxley recently received the endorsement of the Florence Times and the Tri-Cities Daily in his bid for the governorship of Alabama.

State Representative Douglas Johnstone has presented the three-plank platform on which he is campaigning for Attorney General of Alabama.

The platform covers crime-fighting, utility rates and the elimination of unnecessary regulations and paperwork.

Johnstone co-sponsored all of the bills in Governor Wallace's utility regulation package to reduce the increase in utility rates. He pledges to assign an entire division of his staff to represent Alabama citizens before the Public Service Commission.

Mrs. Charles C. Davis of Ramer, a businesswoman, is campaigning for State Treasurer. She has spent years in the fields of real estate, accounting and finance and states this experience is important for a state treasurer.

Known as Frankie, she said, "It's the 'now time' to plug the 'hole' of lost interest dollars and initiate strong measures that will result in fair distribution of all state funds."

Gubernatorial candidate. Sid McDonald, has repeated his contention that other candidates are ignoring the issues in this election and choosing instead to base their campaigns on "buttons, balloons and baloney."

McDonald said the most important issue in this campaign is

At its 26th annual assembly in "How do we finance all of the state government when 6 out of every 7 tax dollars are going to education?

He claims education is now being operated more for political profit than for quality teaching.

During a day-long assembly of Jefferson County elderly persons at Boutwell Auditorium, Jere Beasley gathered support for his race for governor.

According to Beasley campaign workers, the Jefferson County Commission Public Information Officer has said that senior citizens statewide are showing "strong interest" in this year's governor's race.

Beasley's Montgomery Headquarters considers senior citizens "one of Jere's target groups to reach in this campaign."

Former state highway director, Ray Bass, a candidate for Lt. Governor has confirmed reports he is being sued for fraud by a Tennessee firm for $4

The suit claims the Tennessee firm was underpaid and seeks repayment of damages the company claims they suffered for work in excess of the contract price for road work in Coosa and Talladega Counties in 1972 through 1976.

Bass has said he felt this action at this time is definitely motivated by politics.

A release from the Alabama Poll shows Charles Graddick in the lead for the State Attorney General position. The Poll lists extremely concentrated

On the campaign trail home support for Graddick in Mobile County as a factor in the polling results.

STATE SENATE DISTRICT 17 IN PRIMARY ELECTIONS 1978

(Paid Political Adv. by Cook Campaign Committee, Ocie M. Cook, Jr., Chairman, Vestavia, Ala.)

TO THOSE CONCERNED ABOUT THE SCHOOLS OF SHELBY COUNTY:

I approach you as another person who shares your concerns about the public schools of Shelby County. Most of us recognize the fact that educational achievements have deteriorated in almost every state in the nation. Shelby County is not an exception of these disturbing and shocking statistics.

Our schools exist for only one purpose: to provide every boy and girl in Shelby County with very best education he or she is capable of receiving, based on his individual ability. Where violence, permissiveness, coercion and submissiveness disrupt or destroy the orderly teaching/learning atmosphere of the classroom, our students cannot realize the full potentialities of their schooling.

Who is responsible for the declining educational level and achievement in our schools? All of us must share the blame and each of us must cooperate in finding alternative solutions to the various problems. Parents and teachers must be willing to work together with their respective principals to solve their particular problems, with the ready assistance of the Superintendent and his staff.

In order to provide you, the voters, with the best qualified candidate for Superintendent of Education that I possibly could be, I re-enrolled at the University of Alabama for the Fall semester of 1977. In doing this, I took three courses: School Law, Educational Business Management (School Finance), and Educational Planning. These are three critical and extremely important areas where your Superintendent needs to demonstrate leadership, versatility, accountability and efficiency.

As your next Superintendent of Education, I want to work cooperatively with each citizen in every community in Shelby County in improving, and not destroying the public school system of this county. We must restore classroom management (sometimes called discipline), as well as insisting upon a return to the basics of education - teaching every student to READ, WRITE, and work ARITHMETIC (the so-called three R's) to the very best of his/her potential.

Let me, in closing, re-state my commitment (one hundred percent) to our public schools. However, parents do have the priviledge of sending their children to any school they choose, because they have the responsibility of providing the best education possible for their children. With your help, our public schools can be improved to the point that all parents will be encouraged to bring their children back to the public schools because the superior education will be found in public education. The parents can save, for other uses, the money that they have had to spend to find quality education for their children. Our children deserve and our schools need new, dynamic leadership. I would like to provide that leadership for you.

ESTELLE SUMNERS Chief Clerk

TO THE PEOPLE OF SHELBY COUNTY:

Let me begin by saying that I am just as upset as every other taxpayer in Shelby County about the mess the P. R. C. Jacobs Co. has made of the County's property reappraisal program. I am well aware of the inequities, misrepresentations, and general inefficiency reported by many property owners.

I'd like to set the record straight. Certain rumors and accusations have come to the attention of the Tax Assessor's office implying that we are connected with the P. R. C. Jacobs Co. My office is IN NO WAY connected with this out-of-state company, nor have I had any control over their property appraisals, hearings, or reported rude treatment of local citizens.

The property re-appraisal program across the state is the direct result of a Federal Court Order. My office can do nothing until the program is completed, hopefully in the near future. At that time I promise as your Tax Assessor to do everything in my power to right the wrongs done to you as property owners.

I will stand up and fight the P. R. C. Jacobs Co. to see that you are treated with all the fairness and courtesy that you have received from my office in the past.

I know the people of Shelby County, and you know me. You can trust my pledge that the office of the Tax Assessor will always be open to you and your needs.

> Yours for a better SHELBY COUNTY,

PROTECT YOUR STORED GRAIN WITH MALATHION DUST.

Malathion Grain Protectant Dust. Your Farmers Mutual Exchange has it, ready to protect your grain and keep it safe during storage from pesky bugs.

Here's how to use it. First, prior to storage, clean out your grain bin. Get rid of old grain and debris—the material insects like to nest and breed in.

Then, thoroughly dust the walls, ceilings, and floors of grain bins, elevators, conveyors, and truck beds.

Next, as you fill your bin, dust your grains (wheat, oats, rice, corn, rye, barley, or grain sorghum) uniformly with Malathion Dust. It's your protection against rice weevil, granary weevil, cadelle. saw-toothed grain beetle, confused flour beetle, and red flour beetle.

If you prefer, Malathion Dust can also be added to your filled combine hoppers before storing. By the time you reach your bins, the dust will be distributed throughout the grain.

Finally, after each bin has been filled, give the grain a surface treatment for Indian meal moth with a top layer of dust.

For more details, or to order the quantities you need, talk to your pesticide specialist at your FMX. He'll fix you up so you won't have to worry about anything bugging you.

by Earl Franklin Kennamer

To me camping has been just a way of life. I found it a necessary activity in army days, especially on Louisiana and Texas maneuvers. The old pup or the big pyramidal tent was always a warm, dry retreat during endless weeks of cold rain. Camping today is a romantic experience of the outdoors to boy and girl scouts. As a scoutmaster I've spent many nights in the woods chastizing youngsters for their pranks, two hours after lights out!

In recent years, camping has been that activity that's associated with hunting and fishing when you're too far away from home base to commute

Auburn University Experiment Station recently published Bulletin 498, "Camping Demand in Alabama," that digs into the what, wherefor and why of Alabama camping.

Sifting through the jargon that always fogs a statistical survey, I came up with data that might be useful to you -- regardless whether you are a seasoned or a would-like-to-be camper.

A total of 882 campers was interviewed and this number represented all types from primitive to modern campers. Camping apparently represents an outdoors ethical freedom to all people. For instance, over one-half the nubmer of persons living on farms said they would probably camp out more often if they had to move to the city. One-third of campers from the city believed they would go camping less if they permanently moved to the country! To me these attitudes show a yearning for privacy that was commonplace 40 years--even 4,000 years-ago.

All campers said there were two main reasons for camping: First, to rest and relax, and second, to be close to nature and the outdoors.

Asked to list "recreational activities" they enjoyed most when camping, campers' first choice was water sports, such as "swimming, boating, water skiing, surfing." Second choice was hunting and fishing." These two choices exceeded the others combined "relaxing, resting, unwinding," cooking outdoors, picnicking, hiking, nature walking, visiting, meeting new people, sightseeing, golfing, biking, skating, active group sports.

The main point is that anyone planning a campground must realize most campers are water oriented. One of the most enjoyable camping trips I ever made was with a friend, Bob Strong, when we spent two or three nights at a time below Goat Rock Dam, running a fruitless trotline. Each night after checking our hooks we passed an old ramshackle lean-to. I'll never forget the words we heard that second night:

"Wa'al, Clem, here it is suppertime and I guess we'll have to eat catfish agin, but I'm gettin' tired of 'em."

Bob was ready to crawl on his Undelivered checks

waiting at IRS

Some 208 Alabama taxpayers have undelivered refund checks for 1976 and prior tax years waiting for them at the Internal Revenue Service. In the Birmingham area along, there are about 40 taxpayers who have not received their refunds for those years. The dollar value of the undelivered refund checks total $30,777,64. Dwight T. Baptist, District Director of Internal Revenue for Alabama, said

The most common reason for an undelivered check, according to Baptist, is that the taxpayer has moved and left no forwarding address with the U.S. Postal Service.

It is not necessary for the taxpayer to consult or engage the services of a "locating" or "searching" service or anyone else to obtain information with respect to the refund. The taxpayer need only to establish his/her identity and right to receive the check. This can be done only by addressing a letter to the Atlanta Service Center: Interanl Revenue Service Center, Atlanta, GA 31101. The letter should include the following information:

(1) the name and address exactly as shown on the tax return;

(2) present name and address if different from that shown on the

(3) the tax year for which refund is believed due;

(4) the social security number;(5) amount of refund claimed,and any other pertinent information needed to verify the claim; and

(6) signature, if joint return, both should sign.

County inventor gets patent on glove and tool device

Fred Crownover of Columbiana got tired of ordinary garden tools and gloves, so he invented a new device of his own. He thinks other people will like it too, so he applied for and recently received, a U.S. patent on his invention, which he entitled "Glove and Tool Device."

He is now talking over plans wi th a New York manufacturer to produce the device and market it.

He describes the reasoning behind

Garden tools, such as those which have forks, tines, scoops or spades, are available for carrying out various gardening chores such as digging, raking and weeding. Although garden gloves may be worn during use of these tools, the ordinary gloves of this type do not altogether prevent scratching and soiling of the hands of the gardener. Furthermore, some of the garden tools, presently available, are rather cumbersome and therefore do not allow a firm grip to be maintained while using them. Consequently, the tool may slip from the hand of the gardener during use, thereby presenting the possibility of damage or injury to the plants being cultivated as well as to the gardener

Crownover has invented a novel device which has the combined feature of a glove and garden tool and is constructed to overcome the above-mentioned disadvantages. The device of his invention includes a glove that is made of relatively thin, flexible tough material and has a sleeve attached to one end. A bar grip, in the form of a rod or bar of durable material and about one inch in diameter, is attached at each of its ends by adhesive sealing or other Japan. conventional means to the inner side of the glove. A garden tool is attached to a central point on the bar grip. In one form of Crownover's invention, the garden tool has forks or tines for use as a rake, and the bar grip is positioned horizontally across the interior width of the glove. In another interior of the glove. The gardener inserts his hand through the opening in the sleeve and grasps the horizontal or vertical bar grip. The horizontal bar grip in the case of a tool with forks or tines provides a firm grip that makes it easy to control the tool and it facilitates the particular hand and arm movements required in the operation of such a tool. In the case of the scoop or spade type tool, the vertical grip has been found to be advantageous for the

Today, let's save half a billion dollars.

"Every day inflation steals half a billion dollars from our pockets. Every minute, the American dollar grows weaker while the Japanese yen, the German mark and even the British pound grow stronger. If something isn't done to stop this robbery, the entire American economy may collapse.

"I believe something can be done to stop it. But I believe it's going to take someone in Congress to stand up and say, 'no more.'

"Government has to live within its means. You can't spend more than you take in. We must begin by limiting the growth of the federal budget to the growth rate of our economy. We must eliminate our wasteful government spending. We must create incentives for business which will bring new jobs and industry into our districtnew, higher paying jobs that will create the prosperity that the hardworking American people deserve.

"We can stop the thief of inflation. We can restore economic prosperity to our nation and our district. But, we must have strong leadership in Congress. With your support, I promise to provide that leadership."

Main Street this week resembles a busy thoroughfare -- it is the focal point for political activity. Can- Stoker, minister of music. didates from the county and state are daily travelling in and out our friendly stores and professional offices. When they arrive in the Reporter office all tell us they are 'delighted' to be in our 'friendly' town; and all, naturally, hope for in Abilene, Texas. our 'consideration, vote and influence'. All seem confident of winning the position they are seeking. All are optimistic. Some are good to look at -- others delightful to know.

The first elimination contest in this political tournament is scheduled for Sept. 5. After this date, the men and women who have played leading roles in the contest for highly responsible positions will be fewer in number but the remaining personnel will likely draw more vocal support from the voting contingent than has heretofore been expressed. Many voters, undecided at this time, will have determined for whom they will vote and will become actively engaged in supporting their candidate by taking a definite stand. At the present time, it is rather difficult to judge from the field who is for whom and why.

One thing for sure, there is no lack of variety in the gubernatorial line up nor in the transportation and eye catching devices they are using.

So, if you do not have the pleasure of seeing and talking with these interesting people when they come your way, you will likely hear them over their loud speaking equipment; or you might enjoy watching the political picture develop as well as hear your candidate when he or she parades across your TV screen.

The Democratic verdict will be rendered Sept. 26. The General Election is set for Nov. 7.

Ft. Toulouse Park

to open soon

Fort Toulouse Park, one of Alabama's most historic spots, is being readied for opening as Alabama's newest recreational area.

The focal point of the 180 acre park is the 1700's French fort being reconstructed by the Alabama Historical Commission. Other attractions of the park are picnic areas, nature trails, aboretum, camping and water sport facilities within walking distance of the fort.

The winding park roads have been paved and it will open to the public after arrival of the entrance station and completion of power system to all the campsites.

The campgrounds have 39 trailer pads with tables and cooking grills and a restroom/shower/laundry house is centrally located. Nearby is a boat launching ramp on the Tallapoosa River and other restroom facilities, picnic tables and pavilion.

Developed by the U.S. Corps of Engineers, the park has been turned over to the AHC. It is adjacent to the fort complex located in Elmore County 12 miles north of Montgomery. The area sits in the scenic peninsula created by the Coosa and Tallapoosa rivers when they join to form the Alabama.

Other features of the park are footpaths - - one leading past a pre-Columbian Indian mount -- to riverbank beaches, and a network of drives suitable for informal bicycling.

Revival services will begin at Mt. Era Methodist Church on Highway 26 Sunday, August 20, at 7:30 p.m.

Rev. Robert Rosas from Harpersville will be the guest speaker and the revival will run through Thursday night. Everyone is invited.

Valley fire unit reactivates

by Frances Saiia

The Cahaba Valley Fire and Rescue Dept. held a two day fund raising benefit August 18 and 19 at the intersection of 280 and Hwy. 119. One of the highlights of the benefit were two nights of street dancing with music provided by the "The Temproary End", all but one member of the band a part of the volunteer fire department.

The Cahaba Department was organized and incorporated in 1963 with Lyndon Key as acting fire chief. According to Grady Gulledge, present fire chief, it was very active and at one time the biggest unit in Shelby County. The boundaries of the district extend to the Shelby County line on the east, to the Cahaba River on the north, to Caldwell Mill Road to the west and Dunnavant Road, or Hwy. 41 to the south.

Deputies take issue

Letter to Editor:

We, the deputies of Shelby County, would like to let the people of this county know the truth; and set the record straight.

First - we would like to respond the statement, 'there is a string of un-solved murders on the record that are quite an embarrassment'. Mrs. Sears, how many is a string? We have three un-solved murders. If you are referring to the Kay Betts case, the state toxicologist office in Birmingham, could not determine the cause of death in this case. The Betts case still re-mains open. If it is the Guy Kirby case, that case also is still open; but as of this date it still re-mains a missing persons case. The Cross case and the McAnnally case, are the only two unsolved murder cases in Shelby solved. Yes, it is more difficult to solve a case in which there are no clues or witnesses to the crime. If you will check with any other county of equal size and population; whose sheriff's department has the same number of law enforcement officers; find out what their clearance rate is on murders, and other high index crimes.

Second - we would like to respond to the statement that, 'this time he (Sheriff Walker) does not have the 100% loyalty of his own deputies, that he has had in former campaigns'. Had there been time to gather actual facts, you would have found that the sheriff does have the 100% support and loyalty of all of his deputies.

It seems that in the interest of political excitement, when candidates are involved in a pleasant, easy going campaign, with no hard hitting attacks; that someone always has to

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, a member of the FDIC.

He shuffled up to the curb where we were sitting - a guy old enough to be a big oak tree and wrinkled enough to be a fire-scorched cedar tree. A fellow in a straw hat pulled down over his eyes and a blue shirt unbuttoned three button holes down. He had on overall breeches. They were fastened four inches below his stomach, a big, bulgy stomach that hung over his belt like a clay root on the bank of a country road.

Usually he came to town once a of snuff, hurrying in and out of the store, as if time was running away and leaving him behind. But he hadn't been around in a month, staying in his little shack at the foot of the mountain with birds and squirrels for company and a dog namee Tip that looked old enough to be a cedar tree

When we asked him where he'd been so long, he said, "I wouldn't have come but I was out o' snuff and almost out o' bread I could've made it on berries and apples. But there ain't nothing that'll do for snuff. So I had to come in."

He sat down on the curb next to a fire plug, looking up and down the street with a twinkle in his eye. "You gotta be careful," he said, "setting this close to a fire plug. You never know about a stray dog."

He grew silent, listening to us talk. Usually when he was in town we listened and he talked. It had always been that way. I guess because of his dry wit and the way he had with words. The subject of rain came up and that cranked him off: "Some get it and some don't," he said. "And it comes in the dangdest ways. A guy could get drenched on his south side and sunburned on his north side if the shower fell just right. One year, about five years back I reckon, I plowed in sight of a shower all through June and July and lost a corn crop in August,"

A man passed, jogging, with two week, to get a loaf of bread and a box boys tagging behind. He watched as they ran out of sight up East College. The man had long spindly legs. He looked like a killdee paddling in deep

Do I Really Love God? Christ stated that we are to love the Lord with all of our heart, soul, strength, and mind. There are certain tests whereby we can measure our love for God. Among these tests are the

Sewer lines nearly ready

The finishing touches are hurriedly being put on Helena's sewer system this week in the hope of having the plant operational for the start of

Tuesday afternoon, the contractor, Mack McCormick, was tying on gathering lines as specialists from Pollution Equipment Inc. made the final check on the plant they sold Helena. City officials hope the plant will be turned over to them this week.

Two weeks ago, in a test run of the system, mud which had collected in the lines was accidentally pumped into the 250,000 gallon receiver tank. Tuesday, workmen were busy removing the mud and draining the tank so the system could be cleared before being started.

The system has one main pumping station which all sewage must pass through on its way to the treatment

The plant is the active solid type where organisms break down harmful products as an aeration process goes on. The liquid waste is treated and returned to the creek but the solid waste is thoroughly dried and carried away. No solids are to be dumped into the creek.

solution to his town's problems.

Vincent Mayor D.B. Smith said that Donahoo called him about "wanting water" August 18. The formal contact with Smith came one month after Donahoo announced plans to tie on to Vincent's water system at the July 18 Harpersville council meeting;

On September 18, Harpersville will have been without its own water supply for one year.

The latest well had been pumping about 150 gallons per minute when state environmental health engineer Joseph Downey inspected it and informed the mayor and D.E. Morris, the head of the water board, that the well had not been properly grouted.

American Drilling Co., of Alabaster, under the supervision of Harpersville town engineer, James T. Jones, of Gadsden poured th 12 inch

The cavity was dynamited. It remains dry.

Downey said the Alabama Geologic Survey has located a possible well site in southwest Harpersville. The site is in a different formation from the dry well. He said the town might decide to drill another well while it proceeded with plans to connect to the Vincent water system.

Harpersville is now getting its water from Westover. That system has been strained in recent weeks to meet the demands of its own customers.

The Westover well has a capacity of 250 gallong per minute.

According to Downey, water system engineers compute system demand at an average of 200 gallons per customer per day.

Using these figures the daily Harpersville requirement for 350-400 customers (as reported to the county public facilities inventory) is between 70,000 and 80,000 gallons per day. Westover, with over 700 customers, requires over 140,000 gallons per day.

The 250 gallon per minute capacity well at Westover can produce 360,000 gallons per day. This should be sufficient to meet the demands of both systems.

But, Westover users have been complaining of low pressure and 'Mod' art supports sawmill steam engine in Columbiana park

by Bert Seaman

Did anyone guess what the piece of 'mod' art in Columbiana's city park

The unusual two piece creation fashioned by Boy Scout Jeff Seale and Scoutmaster Bob Hume was shown in last week's Reporter. And Hume reported receiving numerous calls inquiring about the identity of the mysterious looking object.

Anyone driving through the park this week will see an old sawmill steam engine atop the two part base.

Seale was responsible for finding downtown stores will be offering two such engines as part of an Eagle project during the Bicentennial year. The other machine is at the Area Vocational Center.

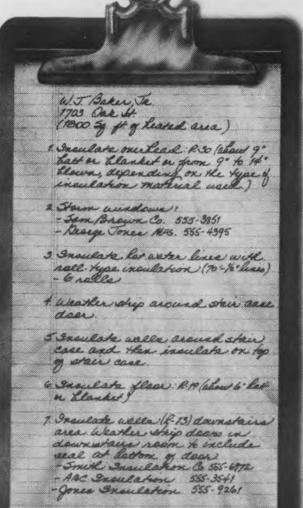

Restoring the engine in the park will now be the Eagle Scout project of Roger Vincent. After researching the appearance of the engine when in use, Hume reports that it was probably painted black, red and gold. And these are the colors Vincent will use when he's ready to paint, Hume said.

Vincent will also be responsible for putting up a placard giving information about the original use, ownership and roots of the equipment.

The engines, which once powered Owen's and Brown's sawmills, were both donated for the Scout project. The engine in the city park powered the planing mill at the Owen's Sawmill until the mill burned. Information turned up by Hume and Seale reveals that it was manufactured by the Wheland Company of Chattanooga, Tn. around 1909.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has postponed its decision of Kimberly Clark Corporation's water treatment permit modification until the permit comes up for a five year renewal in September.

before K-C built its $5 million water

According to George L. Harlow, Chief, Water Enforcement Branch Enforcement Division of EPA, "The goal specified by the Act (Pl 92-500) is that the discharge of pollutants be eliminated by 1985."

To achieve this goal the EPA has established the National Pollution Discharge Elimination System (NPDES). Kimberly Clark's NPDES permit is number Al 0003158.

EPA will consider all material gathered at the May 4 hearing as part of the record for the September permit hearing.

Although all of the participants in Childersburg May 4 had praise for K-C's good citizenship and willing compliance with pollution laws, several questions concerning the effect of the increased waste load on the Coosa and EPA's compliance with its own guidelines were raised.

Environmentalists argued that since K-C was more than doubling its Kraft pulp production from 256 tons per day to 531 tons per day, the discharge should be considered a new source of pollution for the river.

Talladega attorney Myron Waits, representing the Coosa River Recreational Association, expressed concern about the cumulative effects of the K-C discharge on the dissolved oxygen level of the river.

Clark Hook, vice president and general manager of the mill testified to K-C's commitment to high environmental standards.

The board approved a plan to have a unit at Calera, Montevallo, Valley, Vincent and Wilsonville Elementary Schools with two at Chelsea and Helena

The plan also allows Davis the authority to continue looking for space at the three sites without units and if space cannot be found to place the units at schools conveniently located to the areas without kindergartens.

Wilsonville is closest to both Columbiana and Shelby," Davis said. "Montevallo could squeeze up and handle another. We'll place another at Helena to help the Thompson and Valley area." The board approved $250 per new unit to match state funds to get the kindergartens started. A drawing will be held for teacher

In other action, the board agreed to purchase property adjoining Calera High School for $15,000. A burned house presently stands on the site which cuts off the gym and agriculture area from the rest of the school.

At the recommendation of Davis, the board approved a mandated raise in teachers' salaries. The raise is $1,360 for AA certified teachers, $1,245 for Rank 1 teachers and $1,130 for Rank 2 teachers. The raise included a $500 increase for adult bus drivers and $300 for student drivers.

While the board was raising salaries, the annual employees were granted a 10.6 percent legislatively mandated raise. Elementary school principals were included in this group although they are not normally

County kindergartens increase

The increase is not accorded on experience but is given on the base pay of each level. The raise goes into effect on the beginning of the employees' contracts this year.

In reading the minutes of the last meeting, discussion was raised on a clause concerning coaches' salaries. Board member Barbara Whitman said the wording of the clause led her to believe all coaches would receive a $300 supplement.

Other members said that was not the intended meaning of the clause and it was pulled from the certified supplemented personnel plan and sent back to the steering committee for further study.

The board accepted the resignation of eight teachers and approved two requests for maternity

Following its usual policy, the group denied requests for transfers of two students to schools outside the district in which they live. Approval was given to a teacher to bring her child to a Shelby County school when she comes to work.

The board voted to send Elaine Hughes and Barbara Whitman as its voting representatives to the Alabama Association of School Boards' annual convention in Birmingham November 30 through December 1. The regular board meeting scheduled for Wednesday, August 23, the first day of school, was cancelled.

and Jere Beasley can do something about sky-high utility bills!

Jere Beasley is the only candidate for Governor who has ever lifted a finger to fight Alabama Power Company.

Look at the record:

As Acting Governor, Jere froze utility rates and called for the first audit of the power company's books and operations.

- He formed a blue-ribbon panel to study the utility program and make specific recommendations. From this study came the Governor's utility package which was passed into law.
- He proposed legislation to reorganize the Public Service Commission and put teeth into utility regulation.
- He proposed legislation to give your Governor the right to roll-back utility rates.
- Most of this badly-needed legislation has been killed by rich and powerful forces lobbying for more privileges and higher profits for the power company. These same forces are trying to elect their man as Governor.

What can you do?

You have the power to elect the next Governor. Jere Beasley is asking for the chance to place utility rates at a lower level. His first action as Governor will be to move to abolish the weak and ineffective Public Service Commission and replace it with a regulatory body responsible to the Governor with the power to roll back utility rates. Jere will "make the power company sweat for a change". Elect Jere Beasley Governor. You and I have sweated long enough.

Guests were greeted at the door by fifth and sixth grade students of Helena. Lamoine Bramblett, wife of Principal J.W. Bramblett, said, "We thought it would be more of an honor for the students."

The annex, containing eight classrooms, was decorated in preparation for the first day of school.

Pre-school lottery set

The Shelby County Board of Education will hold a lottery tomorrow to select the 240 pre-schoolers who will attend the expanded county kindergarten program.

By Tuesday afternoon Calera Elementary School reported that 23 children had been signed up by their parents. Chelsea had already reached its quota of 40 by Tuesday (it has two units), and Montevallo Elementary reported a strong enrollment.

Assistant Superintendent of Education Vern Davis said he felt the lottery would be the fairest way to allocate kindergarten positions.

The classes are to be limited to 20 members. Davis predicted a strong demand for the positions.

Anyone interested in sending a child to kindergarten should sign up by August 25.

If you prefer not to buy top quality wool carpeting, then it is better to buy a carpet made of acrylic, modacrylic or polyester fibers, rather than a chep wool. Since these fibers look like wool and have similar qualities, they are a good substitute. Of the fibers mentioned, polyester may be slightly stronger than acrylic or modacrylic. Polypropylene or olefin fibered carpeting is particularly recommended for kitchens because it is nonabsorbent and easy to clean. The quality of construction is important for this purpose. There are also the so-called novelty natural fibers, such as flax, sisal, jute and straw. Their texture and price make them attractive buys. Much depends upon the particular manufacturer and the quality of the carpet.

For top quality carpeting at prices you can afford, talk to us at BECKY'S INTERIORS, Main St., (P.O. Box 22), 668-0249. We invite you to browse in our store at your convenience. Saltwater creel limits set by Conservation Department Limits are now in force on three saltwater fish in Alabama.

By a regulation issued on Aug. 8 the Marine Resources Division of the Department of Conservation and Natural Resources established creel and size limits on speckled trout, redfish, and red snapper caught by recreational fishermen in Alabama waters and on these species caught outside of Alabama waters but landed in Alabama.

Limits were set at 50 speckled trout, 25 redfish and 25 red snapper per day. Fishermen returning from trips of two or more consecutive days may have in their possession not more than twice the daily catch limit.

Minimum sizes are 12 inches for speckled trout, 8 inches for red snapper and 14 inches for redfish, but no more than two redfish more than 36 inches in length may be retained.

Football season arrives!

by Richard Crosby

It's past the time of talking. It's now the time of action, and that's what Shelby County football teams the door to a minimum of 11 weeks are about to do.

The 1978 season premiers tonight (Thursday) with Thompson opening of gridiron action.

On Friday night, many other schools inaugurate the students to the football scene. Saturday night

Shelby Academy tees up.

With the scattered opening weekend schedule, many county fans will have the opportunity to see several games, and with this year's teams all seeming comparably equal, the opportunity is one that many plan to take.

As we always have, the Reporter staff is going all-out to provide its readers with the fullest football coverage. You have come to expect the complete story from the Reporter and we feel it's our duty to bring it to you. Our stories are compiled after the coacheds have seen the game films, after they've had time to analyze where the turning points in the game were, and the result is a finished report complete with the coach's own words about who played well and what to expect the coming

This year, the Reporter has seven photographers traveling throughout Shelby, Talladega, Chilton and Bibb Counties. We're going to the games you want to know about and we'll be bringing back pictures and eyewitness accounts. Welcome to the 1978 football season. We feel you're going to like what develops in the next three months and your comments are in-

First game's forecast

Richard's picks

by Richard Crosby I really love to do this.

Picking the winners each week is always fun and it's really a brain teaser because I love to mislead readers. Sometimes in the past I've picked teams to lose just to get them

I did it a lot last year, but I've turned over a new leaf and from now on, you'll get my opinion straight. I might get some nasty calls from disagreeing fans, but how else will I get my own radio show unless I get a lot of response?

So football fans, here goes this week's forecast:

CHELSEA-MINOR CHRISTIAN The Hornets got stabbed in the back by having to move this game up in the schedule. It seems that the Minor coach scheduled two games on the same night and then pleaded with Chelsea to play the game on a scheduled open night. The result, Chelsea is upset, and one thing you don't do is get a mess of Hornets riled. Prediction - Chelsea 23, Minor 8.

THOMPSON-JEMISON - This game has been billed by some as a tough contest, but you'll be losing tomorrow's lunch money if you listen to all the flak about this being that tough a game. Prediction -Thompson 34, Jemison 10.

COOSA VALLEY-CENTRAL ALABAMA - This is another nocontest game. I've got faith that the Rebels can handle these out-oftowners. Prediction - CVA 44, Cen.

SHELBY COUNTY-MON-TEVALLO - I said I'll pull no punches. The Wildcats have gotten their claws sharpened by a new head coach who obviously knows how to motivate football players. That plus some really strong players for SCHS make the game against Montevallo one that should take but 24 minutes till substitution time. There won't be an upset this year as the Bulldogs take it on the chin. Prediction -Shelby County 28, Montevallo 8.

SHELBY ACADEMY-MEADOWVIEW - Things look better for Hulsey's group this year, but I don't think that they can take this one. Meadowview is tough and I figure they'll just tucker-out the Raiders. Prediction - Meadowview 23, Shelby Ac. 7.

Maybe next it'll be a different story. Prediction - Bibb County 25, Pelham 13. VINCENT-ABRAMS - The Yellowjackets will have no trouble with this one as Vincent starts the ball rolling toward an Area championship. The new lights will be bad news for Abrams, whose players will see no smiles on Vincent players. Prediction - Vincent 22, Abrams 3

PELHAM-BIBB COUNTY -

Hate to say it again, but the Panters won't be strong enough (at least not this early) to take an opening game win, especially against Bibb Co.

CALERA-OPEN - The Eagles should handle open without much trouble. They just better be ready for Holtville next week.

Till next week...

Signs point to good dove season

It's still a little too early to tell how well the fast approaching dove season will be, but from early reports, conditions seem to be ripe for attracting the gray ghosts.

Like a lot of you folks, we're filling our freezer for the winter.

By cooling natural gas to minus 260 degrees, we turn it to liquid, and solve a big storage problem. At that chilly temperature, 600 cubic feet of gas is condensed into one cubic foot of liquefied natural gas. This way, it's stored nearby and it's ready for you on those extremely cold winter days.

This is just one way we help keep operating costs down. Otherwise, transmission pipelines would have to be built large enough to supply everyone's peak needs on those few extremely cold days. As gas costs continue to increase, the efficient use of our facilities becomes more important.

Why is your gas bill going up? Last year, our gas cost rose significantly due to government approved price increases for our suppliers. These increases were passed on to you penny for penny, without any profit or markup for us. This year gas prices will rise again.

Why? Because most cheap gas has already been found. More gas is being discovered, but drilling deeper onshore and further offshore to tap and deliver new natural gas is tremendously expensive.

That's why it's steadily increasing in price. But these higher producer prices will result in an adequate supply of natural gas for our homes, schools, churches and businesses.

Natural gas is still your best energy buy! It's good to know that when compared to other forms of energy natural gas is and will remain your most efficient, environmentally acceptable and economical energy buy. So, let's use it wisely.

There are easy ways you can help conserve energy and save money, too. For details, get the informative free booklet "Your Conservation Check List" at any Alagasco office.

Chelsea's FHA president wins

state office

The president of Chelsea High School's Future Homemakers of America has recently been elected First Vice President of the state organization.

Already deeply involved with her new responsibilities, Chelsea High junior Alison Moore has attended two state leadership workshops and a conference sponsored by the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce.

Alison was one of the 1,700 delegates who attended the National Leadership meeting in Bal Harbour, Fl. Using the theme, "Recognition: A Better you," workshop leaders at the conference helped students determine the most meaningful form of recognition for achievement.

FHA is unique among student organizations because its programs are run by youth, for youth and are based on the concept that everyone is a homemaker. It is also the only youth organization with the family as its central focus.

There are FHA groups in all 50 states as well as in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. Young men are now numbered among the organization's 450,000 members enrolled in home economics classes which are offered in both public and private schools.

Chelsea's FHA president also participates in a number of other school activities. She's a member of the Beta Club and Pep Club and has been an officer in the Student Government Association.

The Chelsea teen is a member of Mt. Tabor United Methodist Church. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lavon Moore.

A young person who is mentally retarded may not be capable of acquiring the skill to be a full fledged tradesman such as a plumber, but in the words of one special education feacher, "He may be the best plumber's helper that you could find."

In order to trailor an educational program to meet the needs of retarded students in the county school system, special education teachers in the high schools and instructors at the Area Vocational Center got their heads together Wednesday.

The two groups pooled information on what they were teaching students in this category who spend half of the day in their community high school and the other half at the Columbiana facility.

One of the main thrusts of the meeting was to stress the stipulation included in Public Law 94-142 which makes it mandatory for teachers to submit a written educational plan for each student in the program.

It was brought out that instructors at the vocational school could expect some differences in the type of student in their classes. Coleen Colley, a psychometrist for the program, pointed out that the IQ level for pupils in special education classes had been lowered to 75.

However, it was mentioned that IQ level alone didn't determine a student's ability to learn. And it was noted that some students who have been in the program because of low IQ scores weren't mentally retarded.

Other factors that influence a student's eligibility for participating in the program are psycho motor ability, social development, and educational ability development.

According to Mrs. Fannie Carden, coordinator for the special education program in the county, evaluations of students attending the vocational center are conducted twice a year by Jeanne Gravlee, the counselor and program coordinator at the center.

Crediting the Vocational Center's Director Charles Knowles with foresight, in establishing the program now mandatory under federal law, Gravlee said that he had provided continual encouragement and support.

Council hires firm to finance sewer work

The Columbiana council voted last Thursday to hire the Montgomery firm of Frazier-Lanier to provide long term financing for the town's proposed $1 million sewer project.

The proposal to provide sewer service to every house in the town limits has been in the works for ten years. It now appears to be edging toward completion.

The town has applied for $670,000 in federal grants, Frazier-Lanier will be responsible for the municipal bond issue for the town's matching share.

The project is currently being reviewed by the Environmental Protection Agency. The EPA has refused to go along with a proposal by the Alabama Water Improvement Commission (AWIC) to lower the water quality grading of Waxahatchee Creek to permit Columbiana to use sewerage treatment lagoons, rather than the more expensive mechanical or biological waste treatment.

AWIC and Columbiana say the water quality in Waxahatchee is already below the fish and wildlife classification that the EPA wants because of dumping from the Columbiana Industrial Park.

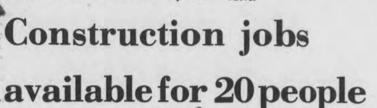

The present proposal calls for five waste water pumping stations to dump waste into a 30 acre sewerage lagoon with two 3.5 acre polishing ponds.

At present the town operates a lagoon of about five acres located behind the county highway department shop.

The council urged engineer Paul Yeager to do everything he could to speed the project.

"The town is not going to grow until we get sewers." said councilman Paul Smith. "You can't start a subdivision in Columbiana because septic tanks won't perc here."

Frazier-Lanier spokesman Bob Young said that by retaining his company the town would be able to pick the time it floated its bond issue to take advantage of favorable interest

Pastures make comeback

With renewed interest in beef cattle raising, pastures in Shelby County are once again growing tall. Hall Thompson checks on cattle on his northeast Shelby County farm.

Fertilizing practical again

by Robert Kelley Soil Conservation Service

Five years of low beef prices and increasing commercial fertilizer costs have forced many livestock producers in the Shelby County area to postpone fertilizing their pastures. But times have changed.

With improving cattle prices, fertilizing coastal bermudagrass, behia, fescue and other improved pasture grasses is again a good investment.

About one-third or 18,000 acres of pastures in Shelby County have deteriorated in the past few years. The big reason was that from 1973 to early 1978, fertilizer prices about doubled while cattle prices dropped. It got to the point that you simply couldn't grow enough beef to pay for the

But now that cattle prices have improved, fertilization and other pasture improvement practices are Michigan.

Elect Jack Haynie Sheriff of Shelby County

No Brags-Just Facts...

As the political races are about to come into the home stretch, I realize that with my person to person method of campaigning there are many people I have not contacted. It is not because I did not want to, but with people working both night and day shifts it would take several months of constant work to contact and talk with each individual. I do realize the importance of screening and finding out all you can about anyone you may consider voting

At least 95 percent of my 25 years of experience as an enforcement officer has been in an investigative capacity, which means you have to find out who did it before you make a case, and I believe that you feel as I do that Shelby County has more than its share of unsolved crimes.

In April of 1961, I was responsible for getting information and organizing a raid by state officers on a well known Shelby County gambling establishment known as the "Kid McCoy Place" in the Acton area. Arrested in the raid, along with several others, were Joe and Jack Florella who are closely related to Sam Florella who in later years became one of Alabama's most notorious gambling figures. For this work I received a Certificate of Commendation from Governor Patterson which reads: "To Jack D. Haynie....in recognition of your outstanding service and your devotion to duty in the planning and participation in raids and arrests and successful prosecution of offenses in the continuing campaign against organized crime..."

Since one of my campaign slogans has been "I DON'T WANT YOUR MONEY, I WANT YOUR VOTE," I have not accepted any financial assistance from any source. I am only obligated to you, the citizens of Shelby County to protect you and your property to the very best of my ability, to keep on the job serving you as your Sheriff as God and the laws of the land give me light to see

Thank you.

Hoping to serve you as your next Sheriff,

Jack D. Haynie

Pd. Pol. Adv. by Jack Haynie, Rt. 4, Box 186, Montevallo, Alabama

The people are saying, "Inflation is stealing our incomes. Taxes are killing us. We need jobs."

Richard Shelby is listening.

"Everyday we live with these problems. But just living with them won't solve them. Strong action and leadership in Congress will.

"We've got to get tough with inflation, taxes and un-employment. We have to say 'no more' to big government. Government must learn to live within its means. We must cut wasteful government spending. We must provide an immediate tax cut to lift the unfair tax burden off the backs of our working people. We must support projects like the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway, projects that will create the jobs and prosperity our district deserves.

"What the people are saying is right. But to solve our problems, we need strong leadership in Congress. And with your support, I promise to provide that leadership."

How is this for summing up a spirited political race? Harry Roach, a candidate for a certain political position in Indiana, in writing of his experiences while running for official recognition has this to say regarding his personal happenings along the way.

Let me share with you his summary regarding the situation as he found it. Our candidates may possibly enjoy his writing more than our subscribers for they probably have shared similar experiences as they raced and jogged along Shelby County's highways and hedges making their tracks along the political trail.

At any rate, here is what Mr. Roach says: We quote:

"I lost 1,349 hours of sleep thinking about the election. I lost my front teeth. I also lost 180 pounds of hair in personal encounter with my opponents. I donated four beef, 100 shoats and six fine sheep to county barbecues; gave away 38 pairs of suspenders, four calico dresses, $5.00 in cash, 15 baby rattlers, helped put up 14 stoves, kindled 37 fires, kissed 1,126 babies, walked 476 miles, shook hands with 9,049 people, told 10,132 stories, and I talked enough to fill 1,000 finely printed volumes.

"More than that I attended 16 revivals, where on different occasions I was 'saved' and subsequently baptized four times by immersion and eight times in other ways, gave $50 to foreign missions and made love to 19 widows (seven grass and 12 sod).

"Moreover there were 49 old maids whom I honored and thrilled with hugs, 139 dogs bit me and I slugged 69 cigarette machines.

"In conclusion I wrecked three cars and short changed eleven paper boys, but I got elected by a majority of 553!"

This has caused many a driver to have lost a wheel, or, as in a recent incident, to have lost control and crashed into a resident's split-rail fence. The least of the problems is the numberless shock absorbers replaced yearly by steady commuters who are forced to use the road to travel to and from work.

It's a fact that if traffic remains on the increase, and there seems little hope for its slack, the road's destiny and that of the commuter is fixed for quite sometime.

The construction of Hwy. I-65 across its width doesn't make the going any easier, either. However, I-65 will one day be completed, and it can be assumed that the portion of 119 from Hwy. 31 to I-65 and a short distance beyond will be four-laned.

This the local commuter can understand and tolerate, but what about the stretch beyond those limits? How many years and how much traffic must flow past before the state decides it's worthy of notice and makes it a wider, smoother, and safer road to

Until that day, should it come, it will remain a subject for increasing disgust and dismay to those who travel daily every jolting, nerve shattering mile of its length.

TO THOSE CONCERNED ABOUT THE SCHOOLS OF SHELBY COUNTY:

I approach you as another person who shares your concerns about the public schools of Shelby County. Most of us recognize the fact that educational achievements have deteriorated in almost every state in the nation. Shelby County is not an exception of these disturbing and shocking statistics.

Our schools exist for only one purpose: to provide every boy and girl in Shelby County with very best education he or she is capable of receiving, based on his individual ability. Where violence, permissiveness, coercion and submissiveness disrupt or destroy the orderly teaching/learning atmosphere of the classroom, our students cannot realize the full potentialities of their schooling.

Who is responsible for the declining educational level and achievement in our schools? All of us must share the blame and each of us must cooperate in finding alternative solutions to the various problems.

Parents and teachers must be willing to work together with their respective principals to solve their particular problems, with the ready assistance of the Superintendent and his staff. In order to provide you, the voters, with the best qualified candidate for Superintendent of Education that I possibly could be, I re-enrolled at the University of Alabama for the Fall semester of 1977. In doing this, I took three courses: School Law, Educational Business Management (School Finance), at Educational Planning. These are three critical and extremely important areas where your Superintendent needs to demonstrate leadership, versatility, accountability and efficiency. As your next Superintendent of Education, I want to work cooperatively with each citizen in every community in Shelby County in improving, and not destroying the public school system of this county.

We must restore classroom management (sometimes called discipline), as well as insisting upon a return to the basics of education - teaching every student to READ, WRITE, and work ARITHMETIC (the so-called three R's) to the very best of his/her potential. Let me, in closing, re-state my commitment (one hundred percent) to our public schools. However, parents do have the priviledge of sending their children to any school they choose, because they have the responsibility of providing the best education possible for their children. With your help, our public schools can be improved to the point that all parents will be encouraged to bring their children back to the public schools because the superior education will be found in public education. The parents can save, for other uses, the money that they have had to spend to find quality education for their children.

Our children deserve and our schools need new, dynamic leadership. I would like to provide that

Schools

Helena and Pelham 'new' in different way

by Ruth Ann Dunn

Pelham High and Helena Elementary are two established county schools which seemed new to students returning this week.

Helena has undergone massive remodeling and adding to its buildings while Pelham has experienced administrative changes, making both schools appear new in different ways.

Helena students and teachers are very proud of their "new" school and are adjusting to having their first through third grade annex. Children the Reporter inverviewed at lunch during the first full day of school were enjoying their meal in a cheerfully refurbished lunchroom.

School secretary, Nancy Lehman, said the first day had been hectic but added things were falling into place.

At Pelham, students received last minute instructions on their new uniforms before the first performance at half-time Friday night.

Alice Ammonds, band booster president, a tape measure draped around her neck, matched up students with the correct size uniform.

Ammonds said students had been "trickling in" regularly adding to the band's numbers.

Band Director Steve Pryor, new to Pelham this year, read the school rules before starting the day's band practice.

Both schools' students seemed enthusiastic about the school year,

North Shelby Fire District on the move again

"We're on sound ground," said North Shelby County Fire District Trustee President, Stephen Wright, Jr.

in establishing the district, trustees began putting the pieces together.

With the loan for the district almost confirmed, a set of specifications drawn up for the fire trucks and Hoover's No. 2 fire station plans adapted to meet their needs, the trustees are moving again.

The main problem trustees said they now face is the employing of a fire chief. No fire fighters will be hired or volunteers organized until a chief is appointed.

The trustees are reviewing applications and conducting personal interviews with prospective fire chiefs.

An applicant was interviewed following Monday's meeting and the Reporter was again asked to sit in to confirm only personalities were discussed in the closed meeting.

Treasurer Jack VanPelt III reported he had received a letter from the bank financing the $400,000 district. The 20 year loan with 6½ per cent interest rate will have its first principie due January 15, 1981.

Residents in Indian Valley have received letters from the Birminghan Board saying if the charge was not paid, the hydrants would be removed. In the past, Trim has paid the charge on all plugs in the subdivision and passed the cost on to purchasers of the houses. He has agreed to pay the charges for the upcoming year.

The Wednesday meeting of the trustees will be held at Hershell Trim's office at the intersection of Valleydale Road and Indian Lake Trail.

Campaign signs near highways defended

by Steven Sears

As the campaign season wears on, protests have escalated against the practice of candidates putting up signs, posters, and stickers by the roadsides.

Certainly, their meaningless slogans, repetitive hoopla, posed pictures, forced gaiety, and artificial confidence, and insults to intelligence strike a lot of people as similar to the seven plagues of Egypt.

The familiar roadside signs have been criticized as being attempts to hypnotize or manipulate voters, as violating anti-litter laws, encroaching on highway rights of way, and as fire and safety hazards. The Reporter sympathizes with his criticism, and has even published an editorial condemning these signs.

Whether these signs are effective in getting support for the candidates who put them up is an open question. Some voters vow to vote for the candidate with the fewest signs, just to get revenge on those who spoil the highway scenery.

When asked why they put up the signs, many local candidates said they were afraid to let their opponents get something up on them.

Others said that signs were a good way for an unknown candidate with a low budget to get voter recognition in the early stages of a campaign. Still, the signs don't seem to be getting any thinner as election day draws closer.

However, we also recognize the other side of the question-signs and posters are an old political tradition in Shelby County, and have always been part of the trappings of democracy.

If someone feels intruded upon because he sees hundreds of these signs a day, then he is perfectly free to quit looking at them. Surely some way to guarantee people's privacy can be found without stifling all the politicians, some of whom might one day have a legitimate point to make.

Signs, stickers, and flyers often wind up as litter, but is this a sufficient reason for banning them? One look at almost any back road in Signs don't catch fire by themselves, Shelby County will reveal that cleaning up litter is not the number one priority around here.

Private, illegal dumps abound, including, incredibly, three on the road to the "Big Sink" sinkhole, which should be a tourist attraction and ridiculous to complain about campaign "litter"-ature.

The "it's illegal" argument is littering and right-of-way laws are obscure, technical, and ignored.

Efforts of some citizens to alter refusal to enforce what laws are already on the books.

Fortunately for the principle of quality, this official apathy on litter has been extended to political signs. The Public Service Commission, notorious for its lack of clout, has beat its breast a little, and some Highway Department employees have removed a few signs.

The major law enforcement thrust, though, has come from the candidates themselves, who tirelessly tear down each others' signs. We daresay the great majority of signs that are removed are removed by rivals seeking to appropriate that favorable

This is probably why the signs stay up for ages after election day, when there are no more rivals to tear them down. In fact, the last "Snowden for Probate Lidge" signs, from 1976, just barely rotted off their poles in time to make room for the present campaign.

Prohibiting campaign advertising might just nip in the bud the very candiate who aspires to do some thing about litter. If nothing is going to be done about the beer cans, it would only add hypocrisy to irony to bar campaign signs.

Perhaps roadside signs create a fire hazard, but shouldn't some of the blame be put on the careless motorist who throws his lit cigarette on them?

Besides, the real fire hazard in Shelby County is from arsonists who are either sore at some corporate landowner for requiring hunting licenses (as part of a federally-ordered conservation program), trying to defraud an insurance company, or who

The safety hazard allegation is not every year, and still no permanent very convincing either. I've never solution is in sight. They generally use those boom lifter With this background, it sounds platforms nowadays anyway, and rarely climb poles.

As for the roadside mowers, it shouldn't be much harder for them to another knee-slapper. Besides, it's hard to sympathize with the mowers this have met with apathy and a when the candidates have to use ladders and cranes just to get their signs above grass level.

signs, then they are dangerous and should be moved.

However, a tour through almost any college dormitory, or even some supposedly respectable homes will often reveal more (stolen) road signs than you'll see in 10 miles of driving. Some people are quite proud of their collections, even though they may lead to highway accidents.

The county's towns spend thousands in replacing stolen and vandalized signs, (Montevallo is replacing 70% of its street signs just this month) and the County Highway Department even has a sign replacement line item in its regular

If campaign critics are sincere about their concern for road signs, then why not tackle the whole iceberg, and not just the visible tip that campaign signs constitute?

Just because the present signs and slogans may be vacuous, or even false and misleading, is not enough of an excuse for banning them.

This country's tried and true method of exposing falsehood and vice is to let them freely contend with truth and virtue, and there is no way to suppress the false and vicious signs without suppressing the true and virtuous ones too.

Attempts to discriminate the true If campaign signs cover up traffic and the false may lead to censorious systems such as Russia's, Vietnam's, and others.

There are other ways of getting a political message across. This newspaper would probably benefit financially if all campaign posters and flyers were banned, because then candidates would have to get their messages across in some other way, like increased newspaper ads.

Nevertheless, the prospect of profit is not sufficient to lure us away from a strict defense of the First Amendment and freedom of Defending gaudy campaign signs may seem like a small thing, and even distasteful. Still, basic freedom must be jealously guarded, or they will gradually disppear.

A successful ban on campaign signs could be an early step in a much larger program of stifling and chilling public expression.

UM's economic impact significant to county

Marxsen, a member of the University ofMontevallo's College of Business faculty, recently completed a study of the economic impact of the University of Montevallo on Shelby County. The study was done as a part of the university's Mission and Goals Study. Results of the study seem significant to all citizens of Shelby

The Reporter is pleased to present this study in a three part series. Part I Montevallo in Shelby County is a and employment which results from out-of-county students and state development. The University's impact is made in many ways beyond the obvious teaching, research, and public service functions it performs.

To the community, the University is a source, not only of education, but also of entertainment, irritation, pride, low cost labor - and revenue. At the same time, the University is a source of expense. It occupies tax-exempt land, children of its staff and students attend public schools and use public facilities, some of its operations "compete" with local businesses, and it benefits from many tax-supported

The purpose of this study is to attempt to identify and measure the economic impact of the University of Montevallo on surrounding Shelby County. Some of the factors which contribute to the University's impact on the community are not amenable to dollar and cents measurement

Editor's Note: Dr. William Attention will be focused primarily on expenditures resulting more or less directly from the presence of the University. These include: direct University purchases of goods and services within the county, spending by faculty and staff, student expenditures, and county and municipal taxes and fees paid by the University, its staff, or its students. The University as an Exporter of Services

At the national level, a well-known benefit of international The presence of the University of trade is the expansion of local income foreigners. Export industries very often serve as engines of national growth and prosperity. The production of goods for export not only causes people to be employed in the exporting industry, but causes expanded employment in other sectors as well, as employees in the exporting industry spend their income.

In a like manner, the University of Montevallo serves as an exporter of services from Shelby County to the rest of Alabama and the nation; and the University thus serves as an "engine of growth" for the County. Of the University's approximately 3,000, over 78 percent come from outside the county to purchase goods and services provided not only by the University but by local merchants as well. This spending results in increased jobs, tax revenues, and property values within the County. As a public institution of higher its revenues. These, in turn, serve further to stimulate spending in the local economy. In this case, the University is exporting educational services to taxpayers throughout the state (i.e., providing for a better-educated community). The public subsidies to students attending the University serve to aid the students, who receive a college education which they might not otherwise afford, and the subsidies also benefit the local economy.

The University does not serve significant factor in its growth and the export of goods and services to taxpayers, but it provides convenient college courses to more than six hundred County residents who attend the institution. Unlike the previous cases, where new spending and income were brought into the County from without, the existence of the University reduces the flow of spending out of the County which would occur if Shelby Countians were forced to go elsewhere for college. If coursework at the University of Montevallo were not available to County residents, they would be forced to choose between two alternatives they could attend college outside of the County, which would tend to depress the County's economy; or they could forego a college education. In the former case, it is apparent that County income and spending would be reduced as residents spent money elsewhere. In the latter event, there would be no reduction in County spending, but the who thereby could no longer afford a college education would decline. The Multiplier Effect of University

Spending

University related expenditures in the local community tend to raise the incomes of the local merchants and others who provide the goods and services. Those people, in turn, spend more in the local community University's impact noted below, that themselves, further increasing the incomes of others and so on. Thus, an initial dollar spent by the University, its staff, or students ultimately raises income and spending within the county by an amount which is substanitally greater than that initially spent. This process, whereby income and spending rise by a larger amount in response to the original increase in spending, is known as the multiplier, the name given it by John Maynard Keynes in 1935. The value of the multiplier depends primarily on two factors: only as an exporter of services, both to What fraction of additional income will be respent, and what fraction of typical residents' expenditure will be within the County. The larger these two fractions are the greater the multiplier effect and therefore the local impact of spending will be within the County, since every dollar spent will result in more respending in the community. For local economies, it is the second fraction -- the portion of residents' spending within the County - which is most variable and difficult to estimate. Its value is determined mainly by the demographic, economic, and geographic characteristics of the community under consideration (Shelby County); and communities with similar characteristics may be expected to have equal valued multipliers. The usual range for the value of the multiplier at the local level, as determined in a large number of economic impact studies, is between 1.2 and 2.5, where the larger and more economically self-sufficient a community is the higher is the value welfare of those potential students of the multiplier. As a relatively small region located near a large city, Shelby County could be expected to have a fairly low multiplier. Based on studies of similar communities, it seems reasonable and conservative to assume that spending in Shelby County will be multiplied 1.5 times. In the computations which will be carried out in the estimation of the

for the first pauper's funeral in many years at its meeting Monday.

The request came from the county coroner in the case of William James Bailey, 84, who was killed in an argument at the Wild Kingdom Hunting Preserve north of Columbiana three weeks ago.

The coroner said that despite all-out efforts, no one had been able to locate any relative of the elderly man and the only fact about him that had been uncovered was that he was born in Oklahoma.

The Commission heard a report that a balance of $373 is due to the Sylacauga Funeral Home, Total expenses were $773, less a $145 cash discount. Costs were broken down as follows: Casket $365; Ambulance $78;

Preparing the body $85; Professional Services $200 and Hearse $45.

The Social Security Administration reportedly paid for a portion of the expenses and a gravesite was donated. Burial was in Bakers Grove Cemetery in Harpersville.

The Commission asked that a further study be made into the matter.

In other action, the Commission voted neither to approve nor reject the proposed multi-state transportation system that will go through Shelby County on its way from Kansas City, Mo. to Brunswick, Ga. Commissioners said they wanted to have more information on where the route would go in the county before taking any action in the matter.

More court cases settled than filed

Chief Justice C.C. Torbert, Jr. has announced that more cases were disposed of than filed in the 18th Judicial Circuit during the first six months of 1978. The 18th Circuit is composed of Shelby, Coosa and Clay Counties.

Torbert congratulated Judges Kenneth F. Ingram and James H. Sharbutt for their diligent work in keeping ahead of cases filed in the circuit court.

Statistics compiled by the Administrative Office of Courts show that 760 cases were filed during the first half of 1978 and that 914 were disposed.

Victim of the midnight break-in is Shelby streets. The firm is owned and operated by Morris Horton.

Montevallo police records indicate the store was entered shortly after midnight. An oversize crow bar is believed to have been used to pry the back door from its hinges.

Police records show the building was checked at 11:30 Wednesday night. Officials believe that a hoax telephone call alerting police to be on the lookout for some escaped convicts on State Highway 25 drew police attention away from the downtown area. The apparently hoax call was received at 12:09 a.m. Thursday.

At 1 a.m. Vestavia police reported they had stopped a 1978 Ford pickup truck with merchandise bearing Montevallo Home and Auto price tags.

New surroundings greet students at Calera High

by Ruth Ann Dunn

Calera High students began the school year in their new school with an assembly Wednesday morning.

The theme of pride, in their county, their community and their new school was carried through in speeches by Student Council and P.T.A. officers.

The former president of the P.T.A., Mrs. Ann Edwards spoke to the group on how far the school had come and ideas for future development. Mrs. Edwards was head of the P.T.A. when Calera began laying plans for the rebuilding of the school two years ago.

After an invocation by Tim Loftin, Gail Thornton led the filled auditorium in the pledge of allegiance. Calera band's trumpet section was featured playing the national anthem. The three main speakers were Gary Griffith, student council vice president, Perry Barnett, president of the council and Mrs. Edwards.

Teachers were introduced and school rules were covered before pupils began breaking up into homeroom groups and moving into classrooms.

The first day seemed to go smoothly as the Calera students became adjusted to their new surroundings.

Shelby Memorial plans get C.C. approval

by Rhodes Johnston

Members of the county commission apparently liked what they saw when the Shelby Memorial Hospital Board unveiled its $13.5 million expansion plans last Tuesday.

Commissioners Jake Morris, Ned Bearden and Alpha Lowe gave the hospital board a vote of confidence after questioning hospital financial advisor Sonny Gauntt and bond attorney John Adams on the role of the 4 mill county hospital tax in the expansion bond issue.

Probate Judge Tommy Snowden, who has been critical of hospital expansion plans recently, thanked the board for the presentation.

"We appointed this board," said Bearden. "I believe that the men we appointed to this board are capable of running the hospital."

The hospital expansion will create 41 new beds, a new kitchen and pathology department and a new emergency room. Forty four thousand hospital and 44,000 square feet will be county. remodeled.

The hospital received $586,000 from the county tax levy in fiscal 1977. Gauntt explained that the county had obligated 75 percent of the levy as backing for two earlier hospital bond issues totaling about $9 million. He said that by pledging the 75 percent to the upcoming bond issue as well the taxpayers would save $5.3 million over the 27 year life of the

In response to a question from revenue from the tax the hospital would be in a very weak financial position and would find lenders scarce and interest costs prohibitive.

Hospital Administrator Richard Lind said the hospital was trying to become an independent hospital center in an effort to provide adequate medical service to its patients and to attract doctors to the county.

Lind cited studies showing a need of between 22 and 40 doctors in the county by 1987.

"These doctors need a place to practice," said Lind. "Last year we cafetorium, another elevator, a had no beds available at Shelby Memorial for 70 to 365 days."

Lind said the expansion would square feet will be added to the create 92 permanent jobs in the Under National Health Planning Guidelines which are to go into effect on that date, a target of 4 hospital beds per 1000 population will be set as a planning goal. The six county planning district of which Shelby is a member already has 5.4 beds per 1000. In Jefferson County there are Morris, he explained that without the 6.5 beds per 1000 and statewide there are 4.7 beds per 1,000.

Lind said that the new expansion will take care of the doctors currently planning offices in the hospital

Birmingham Regional Health Systems Agency planner Bill Ringo said the BRHSA expected Shelby Memorial to be "a dynamic leader"

Ringo said he liked the concept of strenghtening county hospitals because county hospitals are accountable to the public, with board meetings open to the press and finances a matter of public record.

The issuance of $9.8 million in bonds for the proposed expansion would bring Shelby Memorial's total debt to $36,688,670 with a due date of 2009. According to Gauntt the debt service would be approximately $1 million per year.

Sheriff C.P. Walker Shelby County Sheriff Columbiana, Al.

Dear Mr. Walker,

I am now a resident of Shelby County and am proud of this fact. I am a Christian, a father, a grandfather, a business man and pastor of the Klein Baptist Church of Harpersville route one. I moved here from a neighboring county which is full of go go lounges, open barrooms, gambling, drunks walking the streets and many other forms of vice of which I have seen none of these things existing in Shelby County. I praise the Lord for this fact.

Mr. Walker, my wife and I will be doing everything we can from now through election day to keep our present sheriff and his force in office. I see no reason for a change. Why take a chance on someone new when we have someone that has already proven the kind of officer he is. Being a dedicated Christian, I believe in standing up for what is right and I believe you are right for Shelby

Sincerely Yours, Rev. Aubrey C. Todd A concerned Baptist Minister

The preceding letter is an example of the opinion of a relatively new resident of Shelby County. The opinion is based on comparisons and observations made by many newcomers who have experienced living in other areas of this state.

The overshelming facts have indicated that Sheriff Walker has grown with the county and has the ability to profect the future needs of this county far enough in advance to do something

An example of Sheriff Walker's ability to project future needs is his creation and development of various innovative programs. We will limit ourselves to dealing with one such program, that being the Shelby County Youth Aid Bureau.

Sheriff Walker foresaw that the rapid growth in this county would indicate an increase in the number of young people in residence.

He was also knowledgeable and sensitive enough to know that a number of these young people would be in need of some type of assistance from program other than entering the criminal justice system.

Through his dedication and his belief in our county's yound people, he searched for and acquired funds to provide such and alternative.

It has been our honor to participate in this program which is so designed to reach out and touch troubled youth.

This agency, created by Sheriff Walker, has acted as a catalyst and a model for other programs throughout the state.

It is our opinion that a man of this nature should remain in office to continue the philosophy of fighting for our young people.

With this in mind, we hope that other newcomers, as well as other residents, will join us and show their suport by voting for our Sheriff, C.P. "Red" Walker.

Alabaster increasing water supply

by Bert Seaman

Growing pains aren't bothering the city of Alabaster.

While a continuous increase in population can sometimes present a thorn in the side of cities trying to provide adequate services, Alabaster city officials are making provisions for the future.

In order to ensure an adequate water supply for the influx of new residents, the city last year began a water expansion project expected to cost over a million dollars.

The undertaking includes drilling a new well, putting up a half million gallon storage tank, laying additional lines and installing more fire hydrants.

Mayor Harold Davenport credits the expanded water system for being one of the reasons the city was recently given a number 7 rating by the state Fire Underwriters Association.

According to the Mayor, who is also chairman of the city's Water and Gas Board, the new well should furnish about 1.5 million additional gallons of water a day. He mentioned that this would bring the city's total capacity to approximately 3,872,000 gallons a day.

The test hole was drilled last November. And the contract for the actual well was awarded during the summer to Alpine Construction Comapny for $119,656.

Lindell Wright, owner of the company noted that Alabaster is "blessed with an abundant water supply." However, he reported alluvial formations in the area was causing the drilling to go off line.

Drilling was suspended while Wright looked for more sophisticated equipment which includes, he said, a special hammer and percussion bit.

Otherwise, the well construction seems to be in good shape. After the casing was installed in the 40 foot deep cavity, concrete was poured and then

Wright says he's hoping to be finished in three months but he noted the last well he drilled for the city took a year to complete.

The location of the new well is on 8th St. at the site of the city's number one well, closed down a year and a

Now being fabricated the $198,800 storage tank will be located on County Road 264.

The project was financed by the sale of bonds amounting to $1,300,000.

Quashing any alarm that might arise about water rates going up, the Mayor pointed out that Alabaster customers now have the lowest rates in the county. This has been brought about, he explained, because all the profits from the sytem are "plowed back into the Water and Gas Board."

There's a lot of difference between voting for someone you think will win and voting for someone you want to win.

There's a lot of ways to pick a winner. Some people think the candidate who spends the most money is the candidate who will win. If that's the case, Fob James will be elected Alabama's next governor. As a multi-millionaire, he started out with the most money and as a candidate he's spent the most money. Some people think the candidate who has the most billboards will win. In that case, Mr. Baxley will be our next governor. He's got the most billboards. They don't say anything . . . other than show you his name and his picture . . . but he's got the most. Still others believe that the candidates who win the most support from special interests . . . from the lobbyists and pressure groups . . . will win. If that's the case, Mr. Brewer will be our next governor. But behind all this political opinion, there's still a lot of difference between voting for someone you think will win and voting for someone you want to win.

If you want to vote for the one candidate in the race who's talking about how Alabama can avoid a tax increase . . . who's telling the lobbyists and special interests to go take a walk ... who hasn't tried to buy or barter for the governorship, then vote for Sid McDonald. If everybody who wants Sid McDonald to win will vote for Sid McDonald, then he will win.

Shelby County has the signs of the VEER brings problems as the Wildcats experienced last Friday against Montevallo. With more work, and a few breaks in the tough schedule, Shelby County can get turned around and end with a winning season.

Montevallo caught a lot of fans off guard last Friday. You have to remember that the Bulldogs have almost the entire defense back from last year, and they're all quick as lightning. That made the difference in the game against the Wildcats and will make a big difference in the games ahead. The offense is also going well under the direction of Kevin Hughes who played second string behind Terry McCarey the past three years.

With a more consistent offense, the Bulldogs could continue their domination of the Area.

They just might do it.

Shelby Academy has not only improved its attitude, but its caliber of play. The Raiders looked tough Saturday night, and with a little adjustment in the right places, Shelby Academy will turn in a fine season. This week the team meets a tough opponent in CVA, and the outcome is heavily in the Rebels favor. The Raiders may get sidetracked this week, but they should be back on the right road for next week.

That's the way it looks after this first week. Till next Montevallo defense scorns Wildcats as Gilliam engineers another upset

by Richard Crosby

"Our offense just isn't ready to play yet. That's ail there is to it. Our defense played well enough to win the game if our offense had contributed."

That's how Shelby County's Mark Bradley assessed Friday night's game against the surprising Montevallo Bulldogs who pulled yet another upset over the Wildcats.

"When the other team doesn't score but 12 points you ought to win," continued Bradley. "We're disappointed, but not discouraged. We're totally sold on the things we're doing, and we're going to stay with the same things and work hard to do them better.'

Montevallo coach Richard Gilliam was more than pleased, but an accident on the sidelines had put him in too much pain to talk at length about the game. (See separate down pass. The conversion attempt

The Bulldogs dominated the statistics with a total offense of 278 yards to Shelby County's 157.

Quarterback Kevin Hughes turned in a credible performance, gathering 84 yards in 14 carries.

The Friday night contest at Montevallo got off to a slow start, with Montevallo drawing two off-sides penalties after receiving the kick, and then fumbling on its own 26

Bulldogs win, but coach breaks leg

by Richard Crosby

The third play last Friday night of the Montevallo-Shelby County football game turned out to be very unlucky for Bulldog head coach Richard Gilliam.

"Shelby County faked a dive up together when Coach Gilliam was the middle and started trying to go hit." around the end toward us "recalls coach Kurt Pnazek. "We never thought that the play would get all the way to the sidelines.

"I think four players all piled "People thought it was worse than it looked," remarked Gilliam from his hospital bed Sunday night. "My glasses were shoved into my nose and I was bleeding a little."

What put Gilliam in the hospital was a broken leg. The break wasn't discovered until noon Saturday.

"After the game Friday night I went to the emergency room at Shelby Memorial and had X-rays taken, but they sent me home. Saturday the pain got so bad I went back and a specialist found the frac-

The injury raises questions concerning how the team will be managed, but Gilliam has already been working out schedules.

"Kurt's gonna handle it for the first few days. I hope to be there by Wednesday," explained Gilliam.

Hindered by a cast that goes from his foot to his hip, Gilliam will be riding in a wheel chair most of his time for the next six weeks, and then will be involved in therapy while learning to use his leg again. Therapy is normal procedure for leg fractures.

"If it had to happen it couldn't have happened at a better time," commented Gilliam who's wife explained "He'll be out there (on the field). You couldn't keep him from

Are you satisfied with the performance of your State Legislature for the last few years??

> THINK AWHILE... It's Time for

Candidate for Representative House District 52

As an Independent Business Man, W.E. "Bill" Morris will work for:

A more efficient state government. Three or four times in the last 4 years Sonny Moore and the legislature had to be called into special sessions to complete the work that should have been done in the regular sessions. Our government should not be operated on a crisis to crisis basis. With dedication, leadership, and hard work we can eliminate special sessions and the money saved can be spent on more worthwhile programs or taxes can be reduced. Why could Sonny Moore and our legislators pass in 5 days what they wouldn't pass in 5 months?

2. A more efficient highway department and completion of the interstate system, construction of new roads where needed, and re-surfacing of our broken-up state and county roads -- my opponent (Sonny Moore), was one of the major supporters of Senate Bill No. 464 (75) that increased the truck weight limit for Alabama roads. I will especially work hard to get state roads 119 and 25 widened and re-surfaced.

More efficient and systematic planning in our school systems with the very best quality education for all people.

Limited home rule.

Allow local government to make some local legislation and eliminate the waste of our tax dollars by a state wide voting on purely local matters.

A new, modern state constitution. We now have over 400 amendments to our present constitution which was adopted in 1902. This 1902 constitution specified that legislators get expenses 7 days a week, 12 months a year -- the expenses was then $4.00 per week. Now it is up to $300.00 per month. I will investigate the validity of the $300.00 per month for the time that the legislature is not in session. I will introduce legislation to exclude Saturday and Sunday from legislative expenses. No one can justify being paid by taxpayers to take care of their private business on Saturday and go to church or fishing on Sunday. This will save the taxpayers in District No. 52 over $600.00 a month.

If You Believe as I do,

Linemen of the Week chosen

by Richard Crosby

With the arrival of football it's again time to start the annual naming of Linemen of the Week. Each week the Reporter names a lineman from each school, as nominated by the coaches.

At the end of the season, a Lineman of the Year will be named. Last year, Montevallo's Tim Otts was the recipient of the first award. This year looks to be another close race for the coveted title.

Six linemen have been named following the first week's action by county teams. Shelby County High and Vincent both felt that they had no lineman deserving of the honor.

Montevallo's Sam Purnell, a senior for the Bulldogs, is this week's deserving lineman. Coach Richard Gilliam noted that Purnell had 10 individual tackles and two quarterback sacks. He's the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Purnell Sr. of Montevallo. Of note, Purnell was mentioned by many fans who attended the game.

Shelby Academy's Lineman of the Week is Jeff Hall. A junior, Hall plays tackle for the Raiders and turned in a worthy performance last Saturday night. He's the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hall of Montevallo.

Thompson's Keith Huddleston graded 78 percent in the Warriors game against Jemison last Thursday night. That performance earned him the right to represent Thompson on this week's lineman list. Huddleston wears number 68 and is the center for Thompson.

Chelsea named Dale Hollis to the Reporter's lineman roster. Hollis plays offensive guard and nose guard for the Hornets. A senior, he thers 14-7 win over Bibb County. wears number 62.

Hornets sting Minor 12-0

by Richard Crosby

Chelsea's Hornets got off on the right foot last Friday night as Minor Christian became the first victim on the football field. The Hornets caught the Stars by a 12 to 0 final

"They whipped us the first quarter," commented coach Richard Conkle, "but, we came back. We felt like we played as well as we could considering that we had to play a week earlier than we had originally planned.

I also felt like we were in better shape physically than they were," Conkle concluded.

The Hornets battled the Stars before a partisan Chelsea crowd which packed the bleachers and encircled the field.

After struggling by both teams in the first quarter, Chelsea got on track with a 60 yard drive that resulted in six points as Charlie Hardin scooted into the end zone on a 17 yard scoring play. The conversion try for two failed.

The score stood at 6 to 0 till the final minutes of the game. The Hornets cashed in on another drive, this one a 55 yard grind, with Steve Shaw racing the ball in from 20 yar-

It's time we took politics out of our highway program.

It's time Alabama had a long range highway plan and stuck to it. Fob James believes highways should be built in the right place, at the right cost, and for the right reasons. The highway department's job is to build roads, not political empires. Fob James knows the importance of a safe and efficient highway system. Without such a system a state's economy suffers and its people die needlessly on dangerous roads. Fob James is in a unique position to build the kind of highway system Alabama deserves. He is a civil engineer with roadbuilding experience and past president of Alabama Citizens for Transportation. Fob James will work to build Alabama the best highway system possible at the lowest cost.

Recently I checked with my local Boy Scout regional director for present prescription for poisonous snakebite. "Ice down the bitten area (with cube or crushed ice in a bag) and get the victim to a doctor," was his guick answer. This conforms with the E.S. Army treatment I received by request three or four years ago. In other words, keep the victim quiet and get him to a medical station.

I haven't dug into reasons for dismissing the age-old treatment that has been in vogue for a half century or longer, but I have my suspicions. First of all, I'm sure many thousands of persons have been put to needless agony and fear with the painful and dangerous treatment when the snake was possibly not even poisonous.

I presume the overall change in treatment resulted from greater damage to the victim in following the five rules and possibly deaths that resulted not from the snake venom but from shock, loss of blood, etc. For example, cutting the fang punctures could result in cutting a main artery. The victim could then bleed to death or else suffer fatal shock. Suppose you

The 'mistreatment" in snake bite might greatly exceed the number of 10 to 12 deaths from actual poisonous snakebits! Another thing - how many persons pack a snakebite kit when hiking or camping?

If I were along and close to civilization and my car, I would possibly resort to the complete treatment provided I could administer it. By the way, who also carries ice along when he's traveling light in the woods to put over the fang punctures?

Thompson coach Larry Simmons changed his mind. "After seeing the films, we played better than I thought," stated Simmons late Sunday night after the coaching staff had finished grading the film of the Thompson-Jemison game.

"I'm disappointed that we made some mental errors and our defense got out of position some times, but I think we played better than I would have told you after the game."

Thompson rolled to a 32-6 decision over the Jemison Panthers last Thursday night at Jemison.

Thompson scoring started early. The first score capped a fourty yard drive that Troy Tannihill finished with a 12 yard burst. Steve Smitherman added the PAT. That score came on Thompson's first

The Warriors opened the second half with another scoring drive. Tannihill scored his fourth touchdown of the night on a ten yard run. Again Thompson failed to negotiate the extra point play.

The Thompson defense claimed the final Warrior points of the night, Linbacker Brent Davenport intercepted a Jemison pass and raced 27 yards for the goal line. Steve Smitherman added the PAT to make the final score 32-6.

Tannihill collected 81 yards Thompson. Also gaining ground for the Warriors were David Cofer with 62 yards and Wade Bolin with 40. Bolin also passed for 140 yards, completing eight of ten passes.

The Thompson-Bibb County game will be played at Thompson as the Warriors host their first game of the season. Thompson can be on the road to another great year if corrections can be made for some of the first game 'jitters' and the offense and defense continues to imporve.

The run capped a 55 yard drive by the 'Jackets. Again the conversion attempt failed, but the home stands were wild as Vincent led 12 to 8.

The 'Jackets got backed up deep in their own territory in the last minutes of the game. Aided by a five yard penalty, Abrams held Vincent to fourth down, moving the punter for the 'Jackets between the goal posts awaiting the snap.

But, the punt was not to be as the snap from center went over the punter's head and out of the endzone for a touchback.

After another exchange, Abrams had the ball on the Vincent 30 with just two minutes to play. The visitors were aided by a penalty which gave them the first down. Abrams' quarterback faded back in the pocket and threw a perfect strike to his wide receiver in the endzone for the go ahead points. The Vincent defender fell down trying to get back to cover the receiver.

Vincent made a gallant attempt to try and come back, but a 15 yard penalty broke the drive to move the ball and the game ended.

"A combination of fumbles, missed assignments and penalties cost us the game," analyzed Vincent head coach Gary Garrett. "We only ran 33 offensive plays. You can't keep the defense out there the whole Bena Massey happily tripped down the ramp wearing a beautiful size 12 blue chiffon evening dress.

The favored colors for fall seemed to be burgundy, mauve, and plum, with the neutrals following closely, especially in sportswear.

The dresses were for the most part of the loose fitting blouson type of soft, swirling fabric. Edwina Carlisle looked smashing in her short mauve disco dress which flowed loosly and fluidly with her every movement.

For boys, the ski sweater is the big item for fall, worn with corduroy slacks, as is the 'grease' jacket made popular by T.V. and movie star John Trovolta. This jacket is very casual and must be worn with jeans. Jeff Cull, looking anything but 'greasy', modeled this one very well.

The only evening pantsuit shown was worn by Nancy Hahn. Made of soft, flimsy material, it featured tight peg legs stopping just short of the ankles, worn with extremely high heeled slippers of gold straps. This style will take some getting used to and should be worn only by those with a great deal of self-confidence and a taste for high fashion.

Pantsuits for day wear are still in but with a more narrow leg. Worn with a knit vest, the 'big' sweater, or blazer, an 'over the shoulder' bag and a carelessly draped woolen scarf makes for the popular layered look. A jaunty beret adds a dashing touch as demonstrated by Samantha Tarter.

Attorney General

Charlie Graddick has aggressively prosecuted criminals for almost eight years. And he's convicted over 95% of those he has tried.

Graddick has convicted more murderers who have received the death penalty under present laws than any other prosecutor.

Graddick does not plea bargain with murderers, robbers, dope pushers and burglars.

Graddick has obtained the toughest and longest sentences for drug pushers in Alabama, including the first conviction of a heroin dealer for murder.

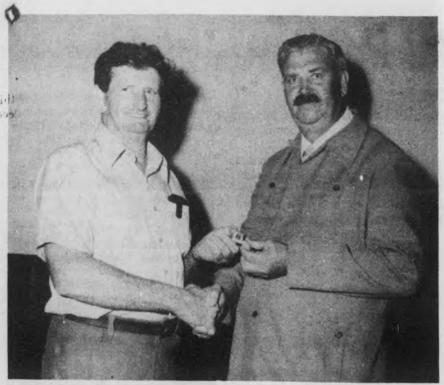

Graddick believes we must set stiffer sentences for career criminals -to keep them off our streets for good.

Graddick prosecuted Thomas Whisenant last August in Birmingham for the murder, rape and mutilation of four women in Mobile. Whisenant received the death penalty. Recently, Graddick has been criticized by some of his opponents for pushing too hard for the death penalty. However, Graddick is convinced capital punishment can be an effective deterrent for these horrible crimes.

Elect Charlie Graddick Attorney General. Graddick will stand up for lawabiding citizens and fight criminalswhoever and wherever they might be in Alabama.

Chelsea Scouts scale heights, explore depths

by Shelba Nivens

Chelsea Boy Scouts have enjoyed a summer filled with fun, awards and a lot of hard work. They have won honors on things from hiking to cooking. They hiked trails to sunny mountain peaks - along with a few cloudy ones -- and dark caverns deep into the earth. They forded streams, scaled rocks and made their beds for weeks at a time beneath the stars.

The Chelsea troop began their summer of activity "right after school was out last spring," says Scout Master, Ray Shirley, "when the whole troop spent a week at Camp Sequoyah in Anniston." Here they learned a lot of new skills and earned several merit badges and skill awards. Then they spent one week spelunking, or 'caving," at McMinnville, Tennessee here they stayed underground for around sixteen hours "without seeing the light of day." "We hope to go up there again in September or October," says the scout leader.

Several boys from the troop attended leadership camps during the summer. Michale Cleveland. Johnny Simmons and Jeff Little attended the Brown C II Training School, an advanced training school for leaders, at Camp Sequoyah. Jack Shaw, David Cleverland and Bert Pittman attended a Woodlore Camping School sponsored by the Ala-Fla Council at the Cahaba Wildlife Management Area in Centreville. "It is the only one in the country that we know of," Scout Master Shirley told us. "We think it's a real honor that we had three boys attend." He says the troop is also proud that one of its members won the highest award made during the Woodlore Camping School. The "First Class Scout" is elected by his example, his high spirit, his enthusiastic participation, his Scoutcraft skills and his desire to become "First Class." Jack Shaw of Chelsea was awarded this

The Woodlore Camping School is for the purpose of teaching scouts camping technique and wilderness survival. Participants are then to return to their troops to each other boys what they have learned. During the week in Centreville, scouts even built their own furniture for wilderness living. They studied and experimented with various methods of preparing and cooking foods and various ways to build fires for varying needs. At the end of the week, each patrol was given two rabbits and two chickens to kill, prepare, cook and serve to themselves and their leaders. "And we had to mind our manners at this meal," says

This week from our mail box came a letter from our good friend Jesse H. Merrell, native born Shelby Countian, who left his home town in Shelby, and has made good in Washington, D.C. as president of Merrell Enterprises which he owns and operates. Merrell states he has read these articles in the Shelby County Reporter and agrees that one vote has played a vitally important role down through the centuries. He has done a more thorough research than I have on this subject and has sent me a list of instances where one vote decided the election. We share this information with you hoping these historic facts will stimulate a higher percentage of voters to exercise the franchise than has been recorded in the past few elections.

Here are some facts revealed to us from Jesse's letter. We quote:

"Only last year, on Dec. 15, New Jersey's income tax was approved by a one-vote margin. The deciding vote was cast by Sen. John M. Skevin or Orandell who left a hospital bed and voted from a stretcher in the hallway outside the Senate chamber.

By a one-vote margin, the Maryland House of Delegates approved a bill on March 28, 1974, lowering the legal drinking age from 21 to 18.

Here are some others:

By one vote: Marcus Morton became governor of Massachusetts in 1839.

By one vote: The House of Hanover won the English throne in

By one vote: France was changed from a monarchy to a republic in

By one vote: Oliver Cromwell won control of England in 1645.

By one vote: Charles I of England was executed in 1649.

By one vote: Washington, Oregon and Idaho became a part of the U.S. By one vote: Texas was admitted to the union in 1845. By one vote: Rutherford B. Hayes became President over Samuel J. Tilden in 1876.

By one vote: John Quincy Adams became President in the deadlock between Adams and Andrew Jackson in 1924.

By one vote: Thomas Jefferson became President over Aaron Burr in 1800 by a House of Represenatives vote.

By one vote: President Andrew Johnson was saved from impeachment in 1868.

By one vote: A Texas convention voted for Lyndon B. Johnson over ex-Governor Coke Stevenson in a 1948 contested senatorial election.

By one vote: The German Nazi Party elected as its leader in 1923 -a little known corporal named Adolf Hitler.

By one vote: Congress saved the U.S. Army from immediate collapse by voting on Aug. 12, 1941, to extend the Selective Service Act of 1940, which was about to elapse, for another 18 months. Less than four months later, Dec. 7, 1941, Japan attached Pearl Harbor.

A paper-thin voice is a powerful persuader."

Multi tiers of English silk illusion, edged with Venise daisies, cascade to cathedral length

by Ken Williams

No family today should be without hospital and medical insurance of some kind. Severe economic hardship is the risk involved withour this type of coverage. It is a hard fact that the cost of a hospital room has gone up 100 percent in the past ten years (and more than 500 percent in the past twenty-five years). Doctors' fees have increased by almost 50 ercent in the last decade. Part of the higher cost of getting sick is caused by increased wages in the health fields, but new and expensive tests and procedures in hospitals are also a factor.

The vacation season is almost over; before long we will be back in the routine of school and business. Now is the time to reevaluate your insurance coverages by discussing your insurance needs with a representative of MMI INSURAN-CE AGENCY, 2052 Oak Mountain Drive. As a nationwide company with local facilities, we can tailor your policies to suit your personal leeds. Talk with us about omeowners, auto, fire, IRA plans, oats, health and accident, life,-ny kind of personal or commercial isurance. Call MMI AGENCY at 53-4000. We are open Mondays rough Fridays from 8:15 until 45 p.m.

NDY HINT: nomeowners' insurance policy is expensive than separate policies fire, theft, and liability verage.

The United Penecostal Church of Vincent has been undergoing major renovation the past two weeks. Reduced to just four walls before the reconstruction started, the building when finished, will have a new porch, roof, ceiling, entrance way, and the outside walls will be bricked over. Regular Sunday services will resume this Sunday according to Pastor Brent Reynolds. Helping with the roofing job Saturday afternoon were Joe Herrod, Richard Davis, Joe David Herrod, Tony Reynolds and Robert Malone. The old steeple from the church (foreground) will not be replaced. Major county industry buys in Birmingham

Although it is the life saving services that are most often emphasized, Shelby Memorial Hospital is also a major county industry.

With over 450 employees, Shelby Memorial is second to the county school board in number of people on the payroll

The hospital spends an average of 1240,000 per month on supplies, everything from intravenous solutions, to cleaning solvents and business

Hospital financial officer Ralph Underwood budgeted an extra $21,400, or nine percent, for supplies for 1978-79 to meet inflation.

Administrator Richard Lind said the hospital expected to hold its cost increase to 10.7 percent next year.

Costs at the hospital rose 15 to 16 percent last year. Lind said this was due primarily to an employee wage

Jordan said that although no medical supply houses had yet located in the county, over one-half of the salesmen that the hospital does business with are county residents. He explained that most of the salesmen with major supply firms live "We shop where we get the best in company-owned houses. The area like Shelby County as a good

Library on wheels covers 150,000 miles

by Ruth Ann Dunn

When the Shelby County Bookmobile circulates books, it literally circulates. In its fifteenth year, the rolling library has covered more than 150,000 miles carrying millions of books to county readers. During the first ten years of its existence, the bookmobile passed out more than 3 million volumes.

The current summer program, ending this week, has brought at least 6,500 books to adults and children

Unfortunately, the close of the summer season ended a week early due to the failure of the van's air conditioning system.

Rose Grady, librarian for the bookmobile, said the service normally would close down for a week to straighten up and prepare for its second season, so the air conditioner almost quit at a convenient time. Only three days of service were missed.

"We run a 12 month schedule," she said. Nothing stops the van baring ice or snow on the road or a

Firm buys records

The County Commission at its meeting Monday granted a new Shelby County title company the right to purchase microfilmed county records from a private firm, Roberts & Son.

Officers of the Cahaba Title Company of Pelham appeared at the Commission meeting to make the Officers Martha Ferguson and Dan Spitler explained the county's history on microfilming records of paying Roberts & So to microfilm county records until 1972. After that date Robetts microfilmed the records without cost to the county and collected fees from Jefferson County title companies that wanted copies of deeds, abstracts and other records.

The microfilmed records are stored at Roberts & Son as a safeguard in the event of damage to the original records in the courthouse.

Shelby County based companies had not been given the same access to the microfilmed records in the past.

Jack Atchison, president of Shelby County Abstract Co. of Columbiana, objected to the move saying it amounted to a county subsidy of a private company in the pre-1972 period when Roberts & Son was paid to duplicate the records. Since 1956 he said his company was also microfilming the records with his own equipment at considerable expense to him.

in voting unanimously to provide every company equal access to the microfilm at Roberts & Son, the Commission noted that it would help a new Shelby County company become established, in turn keeping work in

During summer, with school out, one would think the number of school-age readers inclement weather as well as making it would surpass that of adults. But easier to carry away more books. Hot cornbread and cold buttermilk. Rev. Padgett Cope looked back across the years Sunday and remembered how he enjoyed visiting in the home of Mrs. Ethel Mullins where the two items were always

Even though it was 27 years ago when Cope served as pastor of the Helena Baptist Church, he still has a vivid recollection of his visits with Mrs. Mullins and her late husband Fred. "They were always loyal supporters of the church," he declared.

But this week the 86 year old woman is leaving the community that's been home for most of her life. She's moving with her daughter and son-in-law to Homewood.

To recognize all that she's meant to the church and community, a tea was given in her honor Sunday afternoon at the church where she's been a member for 72 years. One guest described her as "being related to about half the church."

A silver tray from church members was presented to Mrs. Mullins by Jimmy King during the morning service. Her testimony, written several years ago, was read by Lemoine Bramblett.

And her beliefs were also reflected in a vocal selection by Travis Collins. The choir director sang, "The Longer I Serve Him, the Sweeter He Grows.

Up until this week, Mrs. Mullins has lived on the same property where she grew up. As she engaged in some reminiscing, the Helena woman recalled that she started school in the community but attended high school in Columbiana.

The tornado that swept through Helena stood out clearly in her mind. "The only thing saved from our home was the clock," she said.

Mrs. Mullins gave the clock away just last week, but the rest of her possessions are safely ensconsed in her new home at 107 Lacerne Blvd.

Mrs. Lyman, a native of Fort Mill, S.C., was educated at Winthrop College in Rock Hill, S.C., and came to Montevallo in 1915 as secretary to President Thomas Waverly Palmer. On October 17, 1923, she married Willis Hart Lyman of Montevallo, afterward moving to Boothton where she was employed for a number of years as secretary of the Boothton Mines. Later she returned to Alabama College, serving until her retirement, as secretary to President Arthur Fort Harman.

A member of the D.A.R. in Fort Mill from 1910, she transferred her membership in 1927 to become a charter member of the David Lindsay Chapter, Montevallo, in which she chaired numerous committees and held many offices, including the Regency from 1952 to 1955. She was also treasurer of the Alabama State D.A. R. Officers Club for many years, and in 1959 was State Chairman of the D.A.R. Resolutions Committee.

Mrs. Lyman was an Episcopalian and active in church life for many years. When her health began to fail she moved from Montevallo to be near her family, and died in North Carolina after suffering a stroke. She is survived by one sister, Miss Julia Boyd, and six

Melba Till continues to proclaim innocence

Looking more like a candidate confident of winning the election than a former office holder facing a prison sentence, Melba Till Allen stopped briefly in Alabaster Friday as she helped her husband campaign.

In a Montgomery press conference the previous day, the former state treasurer had charged that a conspiracy was responsible for her removal from the office her husband is now seeking.

Asking that Attorney General Bill Baxley or a special prosecutor conduct a probe of those she said plotted against her, Mrs. Allen declared, "I think they'll be surprised at what they Speaking to the Reporter in a supporter's office, Mrs. Allen said she was confident of vindication.

"I'm sure we will never know everyone who has participated in this plot," she said, "but we have enough evidence to warrant a full scale investigation.

The Birmingham News was named by Mrs. Allen as being involved in the plotting and she accused Alto Lee, former chairman of the state ethics commission and Melvin Cooper, director of the commission of violating the state ethics law.

Charges she made against the paper included knowledge of the outcome of her trial before a verdict was handed down and acquiring information from stolen bank

Questioning the conduct of the Ethics Commission, Mrs. Allen wondered why she was never given a hearing before that body - why they turned her case over to the local DA instead of the Attorney General since it's a state matter - why they gave her a copy of their report only 15 minutes Representative Sonny Moore waves to friends as he and his family arrive at Valley School's political rally.

Sheriff Red Walker and coroner Ed Burdett were among the first to hand their cards to Dan Acker as he arrived at the rally.

Still friends, even though they're both vying for the office of county coroner, Ed Burdett and Billy Thompson greet each other with a handshake.

Upon his disappearance the Sheriff's Dept. was notified, as days went by with no word, Mr. C.P. Walker's office was called by many of his relatives. One of the sisters called on 3 occasions, and not the same day, trying to get to speak to Sheriff Walker, and was told that he was not in. The message was left by the sister for him to please call her. She has yet to receive a call from Mr. Walker. And as to date, nothing has resulted in this case. We feel and I'm sure you must also, feel that ample time has passed.

Now time has come when a qualified, honest, experienced, dedicated professional candidate is available, to take over the Sheriff's Dept. and can possibly uncover something in this case. I'm sure that if J.F. "Buddy" Glasgow is elected, the people that work with him, won't work in fear, as long as they perform their duties, of losing their jobs unless they campaign for him come election time. The candidate most qualified for Sheriff of Shelby County is none other than J.F. "Buddy" Glasgow. Remember to pull the Glasgow lever on September 5th.

Montevallo going ahead with city maintenance, garage building

The construction of a municipal maintenance building and garage for city vehicles in Montevallo is one step closer to reality.

During this week's city council meeting, bids for the construction of the building were opened and the apparent low bidder is the RHP Construction Company, Inc., of Valleydale Road.

After a complete review of bids received the city is expected to issue a contract for erection of the building.

The new facility will be located on Selma Road, adjacent to the city's sewage disposal plant.

When completed the building will serve as a garage for all municipal vehicles including trucks, tractors, paving equipment, back hoes as well as police cars. All such equipment is now parked outside and is exposed to the weather.

The building will also serve as a maintenance facility and will house shops, workrooms and offices for street, sanitation and utilities personnel. Council members expect the building to be completed before this winter's rainy season begins.

RHP Construction Company's bid is for $22,950. Representatives of the Montevallo Library Board were present at Monday night's meeting. Dr. Libbie Rodgers asked council members to consider raising the pay of City Librarian Mrs. Mayme Yarbrough to $4 an hour. Dr. Lucille Griffith, chairman of the Library Board, requested certain improvements to the city operated library. Bill White of the Alabama Power Company presented an outline of energy saving improvements that could be added to the library.

Mayor Ralph Sears told Library Board members that their requests would be considered by the city's Finance Committee when the committee formulates a budget for the 1978-79 fiscal year. The city's fiscal Vear begins October 1.

A discussion of this year's dog detention week was led by City Clerk Don Hughes and Police Chief Troy Kirkland. The week of October 2 - 9 was designated Dog Detention week. During this week all dogs within the city limits must be kept on leash or otherwise "kept up". Special dog detention personnel will be on duty during the week to pick up dogs running at large. Dogs taken into custody will be housed with a local veterinarian where owners may claim them after purchasing tags and having the animal innoculated against rabies. Montevallo Fire Chief Mike

When selecting new curtains, think of the likes and dislikes of others in your family. This of course, is an addition to consideration of color coordination for the entire room. Each, for example, may like a particular color. All the favorite colors may go well together and this simplifles the problem. The whole family may like a patterned fabric of those colors for the living room. Dislikes should not be ignored either. Have accurate measurements when buying or having curtains made. Hardware should be installed before the measurements are taken. Use a yardstick, a folding rule, or a steel tape for measuring.

Buxahatchee C.C. to change ownership

by Richard Crosby

Calera's Buxahatchee Country Club will be changing ownership in the next few days. By a vote of the membership, the 160 acre golf course will become the property of Howard Hall, Sr.

The agreement is pending final approval and deed changes which should become effective by the end of the week.

The initial cost to Hall for the lub, which is composed of a nine-hole olf course, club house, swimming pol, tennis courts, and golf cart sildings, is reported to be $150,000 nich is owed to the Farmer's Home dministration and other creditors.

The jail was completed at a basic construction cost of $1,988,215 but other costs connected with its construction bring its total value to well over $2,300,000, according to county records.

There are no bars in the facility. A heavy plastic glass was used instead, along with an ususual building design for security.

Three architectural firms participated in the design and construction of the jail: Heery and Dedication ceremonies and open Heery of Atlanta; Grove, Haack and Associates of Ft. Lauderdale, and Dampier and Harris of Alabaster. Conner Brothers Construction Co. of Auburn won the contract for constructing it.

When the first design was submitted, the jail was found to have room for ten fewer prisoners that the original request had called for. When the Shelby County Reporter called this to the attention of authorities, the building was-redesigned to accommodate 77 prisoners.

The building has separate facilities for men, women and juvenile prisoners. Several sections of the jail can be closed if the jail population does not require their use.

In general, prisoners will be housed in 'pods' where eight prisoners share a common day room, and shower, but each has his or her own private cell.

The architect and trustees John Pruett and Larry Dillard reviewed the site of the station last week and decided the original adaptations would need to be changed. Now, instead of locating extra office space in the attic area, a room would be added at the rear of the building. After looking at the grade of the land, VanPelt said the architect had decided the second plan would be best.

The location and acquisition of a was discussed. VanPelt said Al Jack VanPelt III said he felt sure, Carraway, of the state fire insurance rating department, had agreed to a plan where North Shelby could, temporarily, house a truck at Inverness if Inverness was willing, and still receive a class 7 insurance rating. The plan would call for a first response agreement with the Pelham Fire Department. VanPelt said in conversations with Pelham officials, Pelham was initially unfavorable to such a plan.

A first response agreement would mean a person in charge, upon decide which department, Pelham or North Shelby, would be able to reach the fire first. The area most involved would be Indian Springs Ranch. There would be some calls in North Shelby's area Pelham could reach first.

Pelham officials and trustees planned to meet with Carraway to see if the rating officer would allow a mutual aid plan between the two groups and still give north Shelby a class 7 rating.

Mutual aid would mean North Shelby would answer all calls in its area but would be able to ask Pelham to back them up with larger fires.

"I don't know what will come from this," VanPelt said.

The next meeting of the trustees will be in their new location at Valleydale Road and Indian Lake Trail in the conference room of Hershell Trim's office building.

Spending at UM affects area

Editor's Note: Dr. William Marxsen, a member of the University of Montevallo's College of Business faculty, recently completed a study of the economic impact of the University of Montevallo on Shelby County. The study was done as a part of the university's Mission and Goals Study.

Results of the program seem significant to all citizens of Shelby

The Reporter is pleased to present this study in a three part series. Part II

University of Montevallo Spending Patterns

University related expenditures fall into three broad categories: 1) direct University spending, 2) spending by employees of the University, and 3) student spending. Each type of spending will be estimated below for the academic year 1977-78. The estimates are taken or calculated from a wide variety of sources, including University budget summaries and other records and surveys of faculty, staff, and students.

1. Direct University Spending

The University's total expenditures in 1977-78 were $9,272,020. This spending was financed with funds from tuition and fees, private gifts and grants, revenues from auxiliary services, unspent surplus from previous years, federal funds, and finally and most significantly, state appropriations. The last item, state aid to the University, amounted to approximately $4,790,000, or roughly fifty percent of the University's expenditures. The expenditures, themselves, were divided amont personnel costs, purchases of goods, services and equipment, and to a minor degree grants, benefits and interest on University debts. During the year, employee wages, salaries and benefits amounted to $5,446,558, with 84.3 percent of all employees residing in Shelby County. Those employees residing in Shelby County, in turn, spent a substantial portion of their incomes within the County, which further stimulated the incomes and spending of others. These patterns of expenditure will be examined in detail below.

University funds was devoted to paying wages and salaries, purchases of goods and services were important also. In 1977-78, such purchases amounted to $3,425,892. Due to the University's proximity to Birmingham, with its commercial scale and diversity, it is not surprising that the University spends more on goods and services outside Shelby County than within. Nonetheless, spending within the county is still quite substantial and during 1977-78 it totaled $1,062,026. Once again, those who provided these goods and services earned increased incomes and spent more themselves.

2. Faculty and Staff expenditure

Shelby County residents employed by the University earned over $4.5 million in wages, salaries, and benefits during the 1977-78

Although the largest portion of academic year. They, in turn, spent almost $2 million of this income within the county, which ultimately generated roughly another million of spending by other county residents whose incomes were raised by the faculty-staff expenditures.

3. Student spending

Approximately twenty-two hundred of the University's students were from outside of Shelby County. While attending the University, roughly half of them resided in dormitories on campus and ate most of their meals at University facilities. Nonetheless, they still spent approximately $300 each during the 1977-78 academic year in Shelby County business establishments. This ultimately had a significant impact on overall County spending, contributing almost one-half million dollars. Roughly six hundred non-county residents moved into non-university housing within the County and spent substantial amounts on housing and in local businesses. Altogether, their activity ultimately contributed over $1.5 million to county spending. Another 478 students commuted to the University from outside of the County. Not surprisingly, each of then spent relatively little within the County. Nonetheless, they did contribute over one-hundred thousand dollars to overall spending within Shelby County. x

student body is from within the County. About half of these students commute from their homes or apartments, while the other half reside in domitories on campus. It seems reasonable to assume that most of those who reside in dormitories would have gone elsewhere to college had facilities not been available within Shelby County. Consequently, the presence of the University increases their spending within the County (since they would have gone elsewhere). People in this category ultimately contributed almost two-hundred thousand dollars to County spending in businesses. Of the remaining three hundred Shelby Countians who commute to classes, roughly 60 percent live with their parents or own their own home and 40 percent either rent or reside in some form of student housing (e.g. fraternity house or student union). Again, it seems reasonable to assume that a substantial portion of these students, especially those who rented or otherwise lived away from home, would have gone elsewhere to college. As a result of this role played by the University in keeping college students in the County, all of their spending in business establishments will be included in the calculation of UM's overall impact. This overestimate of the University's impact will be offset by ignoring the rent paid by that substantial portion of Shelby County students who no longer reside with parents. In 1977-78 Shelby County commuters to the University spent roughly $445 thousand in County and still live in harmony with business and industry?

This is one of the questions that will be debated at a public seminar, "Preservation without Utilization," to be held Saturday at Brierfield Ironworks Park.

The seminar will take up the broad subject of historic preservation as related to public policy such as land condemnation, land use planning and

Other questions on the list for discussion include, "Who decides how to use public or private historic lands?" and "Should heritage preservation stand on its own merits, or is use the key to preservation?"

The one-day seminar, open to the public is co-sponsored by the University of Montevallo, the Alabama Committee for the Humanities and Public Policy and the Bibb County Heritage Association.

EPA increases Helena funds

The Environmental Protection Agency has approved an additional $114,115 for construction of sewage treatment works in the town of Helena, Congressman Walter Flowers announced last week.

"This latest grant brings to Cemeteries are one way that history is preserved. But vandals are taking their toll on some of these last resting places of the county's earliest

In recent days, Ed Vaughan of Calera came across a cemetery located on land he says was the old Thompson farm in Siluria. One grave had been broken into and tomb stones had been pushed over and broken.

The condition of this cemetery had been noted on the cemetery census report of Madine and Earl Evans who assisted the Historical Society in that undertaking last year.

According to Kate Reese, who headed up the project with her husband John, the census workers reported the plot had been recently vandalized when they visited the plot and the grave of James Monroe Scott had been opened.

Heartworms Can be Prevented by Charles H. Thornburg II, DVM

Heartworms are one of the most serious threats to the county's dog population. I see hundreds of cases a year, and sometimes as many as ten in one day.

In order to prevent their occurrence, puppies should be placed on medication at approximately three months of age.

Dogs in this area who are outside the home and not on preventative medication will probably develop heartworms by the time they're three years old or even earlier.

Because this is such a dangerous disease, dog owners should have their pets tested and protected.

Heartworms are worms which live in the right side of the heart. They grow to be 11 to 14 inches in length and resemble small spaghetti in appearance. In severe cases, there can be 100 or more in a single dog's heart.

Adult heartworms give live birth millions of offsprings called microfileriae. The microfilariae circulate in he bloodstream until a mosquite ingests them while feeding on a dog. These microfilariae become larvae inside the mosquito and are injected into a dog while feeding. These larvae grow for awhile and then migrate to the heart and become adult MMS heartworm.

In this manner, the mosquito acts as a reservoir as well as a carrier of heartworms. The only way a dog can contact heartworms is by being bitten by a mosquito which has previously bitten an infected dog. The life cycle of the heartworm requires approximately 4 months for completion.

Diagnosis of heartworm disease is confirmed by a blood test in which the microfileria are observed. When microfileria are present, adult

Senior citizens impressed by jail

by Ruth Ann Dunn

"If I had to be in jail, I believe I'd like to get into this one," said Gerald Fulton, Friday.

Fulton expressed the sentiments of more than 60 senior citizens touring the county's new $2 million facility in Columbiana.

The seniorites, arriving by bus from Calera and Vincent, were the first group to formally tour the jail. Most were part of the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission's senior group with some from RSVP (Retired Senior Volunteer Program.)

Probate Judge, Tommy Snowden welcomed the crowd saying, "We're honored to have you be the first group *button which provides hot water for to tour the jail."

After gathering for Sheriff Red Walker to explain the security, communications and cell systems, the citizens broke into groups led by Walker, Snowden and Sheriff's assistant, Tom Barnes for the tour.

Walking through the jail, the senior citizens could be heard making such comments as, "Some of us ought to be living here," "Look at this carpet," and "They're going to want to get in jail!"

Walker, explaining the door locking system, displayed a master key which is capable of unlocking every door in the building.

One woman, raising her hand, questioned Walker about what would happen if he lost the key. Walker assured her there was a spare kept in a

"When we tour the kitchen," Walker said, "you'll be able to see a walk-in cooler where the garbage will be kept."

Snowden added, "You'll be able to see the first refrigerated garbage in the county."

Other features of the jail include individual cells for up to 74 prisoners with stainless steel shower stalls on each cell block. The prisoner need only press a button and a timed amount of water for his shower sprays

The water fountains have a special such things as instant coffee or tea.

The old image a cell block invokes of prisoners peering through bars into a single open dimly lit hallway is not reflected in the Shelby County jail.

A skylighted hallway gives access to glass enclosed groups of cells. Every cell has its own window allowing sunlight to flow in.

"This is a pretty good size thing," said Snowden.

He invited the senior citizens to the dedication ceremonies Sunday, September 10, saying Chief Justice "Bo" Torbert would speak at the

"We're expecting a big crowd," Snowden added. "It's a fine facility." Later, while touring the jail, the Reporter overheard a senior citizen nervously say, "I hope the sheriff doesn't lose that key while we're in

UM trustees adopt Mission-Goals report

by Marcia M. Sears

The University of Montevallo's Board of Trustees formally adopted the report of the Mission and Goals Commission at its meeting August 30. Dr. Bill Ernest and John M.

Harbert III served as co-chairmen of the Commission during the nine-months study by faculty, alumni, students and community leaders. The study was suggested ty UM President James Vickrey shortly after his arrival at the Montevallo institution last year.

The study re-affirmed that the university should remain a relatively small university emphasizing undergraduate liberal arts teaching.

At the meeting, Dr. Bill Hamer told the trustees that 1,572 students were residing in campus dormitories the first week of registration, even though the capacity is just 1,472.

The basements of Fuller, Napier and Main were pressed into service for housing students until the expected readjustments are made the first week

Hamer said that many students are commuting from their homes because the university could not house them, and he felt that some students decided not to attend Montevallo when they could not find housing.

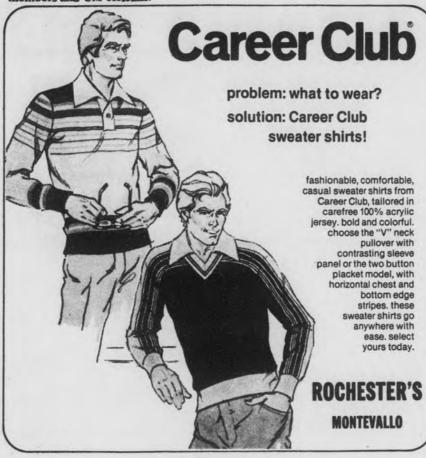

Holland Floyd reported that considerable repair work was done in Main, Tutwiler and Hanson Halls during the summer, especially in replacing plumbing and fixtures.

In other business the trustees heard plans for a concerted drive for contributions into a central university fund, with coordinated efforts for seeking bequests.

Town Talk

UM students Susan Gore, a junior from Birmingham and Carol Dabbs, a junior from Hueytown receive literature about Montevallo and Shelby County from representatives of the Montevallo Chamber of Commerce, Clara Hegwood and Billie Lacey, during registration held last week on the UM campus. An information tent located outside the campus student union building was manned during registration week by Montevallo Chamber of Commerce members and UM officials.

Premiums paid on automobile insurance in most states depend on many factors. These include place of principle garaging, age, sex, marital status, size and value of the car, purpose for which it is used, the owner's traffic violation and accident record, and the amount of protection the car owner wishes to have. One way to lower insurance premiums is by converting a present automobile insurance policy to one with a higher deductible (the deductible is the amount paid out of. pocket before an automobile insurance company begins payment.) Many states have legislated higher deductibles in an effort to control rates. "No fault" is another idea with the same objective.

Fund raiser succeeds

by Marcia M. Sears

What does it take to raise funds for a worthy cause in Shelby County? Dozens of civic minded groups could answer that question, because almost every week some group somewhere in the county is undertaking a major fund-raising campaign for a worthwhile project.

Here is a rundown of some of the effort that the Montevallo High School Athletic Boosters went to in raising money for the school's athletic program on Labor Day.

First of all, the club had to advance about $1,000 to buy the food for the meals to be sold at the Montevallo Labor Day celebration.

Most of the money went for the purchase of 56 pork shoulders. The rest of it went for rolls, and ingredients for baked beans and cole slaw.

To break even they knew in advance they would have to sell at least 400 dinners. They had no assurance it would not rain, and thus wipe out their prospective customers.

But with all the risk involved, they went ahead. Committees were assigned to the various chores. Men gathered the hickory logs for the open fires at the Montevallo City Park, and started firing up at 2 p.m. Sunday afternoon. Working in shifts throughout the night, club members turned the shoulders with pitchforks every few minutes. The meat was done by 8 o'clock the next morning.

Women members of the club pitched in Labor Day morning and started cutting the meat from the bone. Other women went to the Middle School cafeteria where they grated unknown numbers of cabbages for the coleslaw, and baked great pots of beans.

Then came the job of putting together the plates in styrofoam containers to sell at the park. Cars and trucks ferried the plates between the Middle School and the park. Five or six persons sold them to the crowd.

By 12 o'clock noon, they had passed their break-even goal of selling 400 plates and were on their way to making a little money for the school

Home Decorating TO THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERT

Stone Age man invented wall coverings when he painted figures on his cave. Around 5000 B.C., Egyptian pharaohs decorated their walls with huge mosaics of ceramic tile. In China, wallpaper entered the scene about 200 B.C. During all this time, wall coverings had only an aesthetic purpose. Castle living changed this. Royalty of the Middle Ages began using fabric wall coverings for insulation as well as ornamentation. With the colonization of America, homes reflected a more simple way of living and solid whitewashed wall took over. As affluency flourished, so did decoration, and heavily patterned wallpaper became stylish. It remained stylish until 20 years ago, when wallpaper was discarded for gallons of pastel paint. Recently, wall coverings again have come in vogue.

Defense makes difference

Raiders victorious over CVA Rebels

by Richard Crosby

Coosa Valley all but dashed its playoff hopes last Friday night as the Shelby Academy Raiders put a winning attitude and supreme effort together to claim a 14 to 6 victory.

"I feel like we beat a very good ball club," stated Raider coach Gene Hulsey. "Our kids wanted it terribly and just went out there and took it. I believe we would have won the game regardless of whether (Steve) Willingham played the whole game or not. Our kids wanted the win that bad."

The Raiders relied on the running of Sammy Nabors who collected 99 vards in 15 carries, and quarterback Joey Martin who engineered the offense and gained 63 yards himself.

Coosa Valley scored first, with Willingham throwing a 25 yard touchdown strike to Keith Holdbrooks which moved the ball to the Raider one yard line. On the next play, Willingham dove across the goal line. A bad snap on the point after left the Rebels with only six

The Raiders retaliated with just a little over five minutes left in the half. Marching 67 yards in 14 plays, the Raiders scored on a five yard run by Nabors. The conversion for two points failed and the half ended in a tie, 6 to 6.

That was the final score of the evening as another packed house witnessed the second Raider win of the year. Last year, Shelby managed only one victory.

"Both our defensive and offensive units went beyond what was expected of them," praised Hulsey. "That's what won the game for us. Our kids are concentrating on the game and not making mental errors that are common in the first games of the season."

Coosa Valley's quarterback, Steve Willingham, left the game early in the second half after suffering a broken jaw on both sides. He was scheduled to have his jaw wired Tuesday and doctors say it will be six weeks before he will be back in action.

The Rebels meet Chambers Academy this Friday in a tough game that gets even tougher with the absence of Willingham. The Raiders meantime will be facing Faith Academy of McCalla.

Shelby Academy gained nothing from the win over Coosa Valley other than to remain undefeated. This Friday is a must win for the Raiders as far as post-season play is concerned.

Wildcats lose at hands of powerful Aggies

Despite improvements, Shelby County again became a Friday night victim. The Aggies of Sylacauga exploded for 34 first half points, added seven more in the second half, and then sat back and watched Shelby County claw for 14 points before the game's final horn soun-

"Our offense has improved. Defensively we stunk, but were no worse than we were in the Monvallo game," commented Shelby County coach Mark Bradley.

"We could play Sylacauga 10 times this year and not win. That's how good a football team they are. I'm not down on our kids. They'rwe giving it their best. I expect them to mprove each week.

"We played almost exclusively our young players the second half. My goal is for the program," Bradley continued, "to get quality players who play that way. We're going to keep working to build a solid program here. You can't compromise on what you believe in."

The Wildcats watched Friday night as the Aggies started the route with a 25 yard touchdown pass and a 20 yard run count for the first two Aggie scores. In the second quarter, Sylacauga again passed for another score and ran for one.

Just before the half, the Wildcats lit up their side of the scoreboard when James Kidd raced 67 yards for the goal line on a draw play. Keith Wilder added the PAT.

The Aggies got their last score in the opening minutes of the second half on a 46 yard run. The final PAT put Sylacauga ahead 41 to 7.

Near the end of the game, quarterback Dana Vansant directed the Wildcats downfield and scored with game's scoring.

'Jackets cut down Lincoln 14-7

It makes a difference when you don't fumble. That's what the Yellowjackets found out last Friday night as they downed Lincoln 14 to "Holding onto the football helped. Cutting down on the penalties helped. Executing better helped. And, we came up with the big play when we needed it."

That's how coach Gary Garrett assessed the game.

"We had an outstanding defensive effort. We had two goal line stands that held off Lincoln scoring attempts."

Vincent struck paydirt first, as Everett Abrams picked up a Lincoln fumble on the 10 and ran it into the endzone. The PAT attempt was wide. That score came with 1:04 left in the first quarter.

With six minutes left in the half, Cedrick McCrimmon streaked to the goal line on a 25 yard run. That score was set up by an interception by Mike Richey. The conversion attempt failed.

Chelsea draws standoff against Briarwood

by Richard Crosby

"Something always happened everytime we got ready to score." That's how Chelsea coach Richard Conkle explained the 0 to 0 tie his team played to against Briarwood Christian last Friday night. "We whipped them everywhere but where if counts: on the scoreboard," stated Conkle.

The Hornets mounted three drives deep into Briarwood territory but penalties and tough calls turned them short each time. Quarterback Steve Shaw suffered a concussion in the first half.

"I like to think we would have scored in the second half if he had played," stated Conkle about his signal caller. Conkle advised that Shaw should be ready to go this Friday against Pelham.

The closest Briarwood could get to the Chelsea goal line was 20 yards out. "They've got a good ball club," said the Chelsea head coach.

The tie game makes Chelsea still unbeaten and the Hornets have yet to be scored on this year.

The Hornets travel to Pelham this week in what is becoming another big county rivalry. Last year the Panthers won their first inter-county game, defeating the Hornets 13 to 8 at Chelsea.

Conkle said of this week's foe, "Man, they are tough. I don't know whether we can stay on the field with them."

Conkle added, "This bunch of seniors beat them as a junior team twice. They feel like they can whip them. I'm not sure, but you can bet we're going to give all we've got." This week's game shapes up to be a deciding one for both schools, and an overflow crowd is expected to be on hand. You'll have to come early to get a seat.

Mike Watkins led the Panther attack with 76 yards on the ground. Passing, he completed four of 15. Defensive end Scott Fowler led in tackles with 11, followed by linebacker Tommy Wash with 10.

Thompson rolled up its second win in as many games last Friday by anilating Bibb County 46 to 12. "There isn't a whole lot to be said about it," coach Larry Simmons commented.

The real test for Thompson is this Friday when Clanton comes to Warrior country. "If we can play with those boys then we'll know what kind of football team we have," Simmons said about the upcoming battle.

The Warriors rolled up 374 offensive yards in the Bibb County game. Wade Bolin led the rushing attack with 105 yards and threw four of five passes for 100 yards.

Bulldogs ready to re-enter county football scene

by Richard Crosby

Montevalo swings back into action this Friday as the Childersburg Tigers come to town, and from all indications, the Bulldogs are going to have their hands full.

"They look awful big and they have some tremendous players," remarked coach Richard Gilliam. "Their number one runningback is supposed to be back. He was hurt at the start of the Comer game."

Gilliam, who wears a cast from his toe to hip, handles practices for the Bulldogs from a golf cart which was loaned from the University of Montevallo. "Dr. Leon Davis and Jimmy Jones arranged for me to us it," stated Gilliam who thanked the men for helping him through this inconvenience.

The Bulldogs have some question marks. "The entire starting backfield is injured," stated the coach. "All hopefully will be healed by game time."

The Childersburg game came about due to schedule conflicts. Frances Marion went into another Area which left a date to be filled. After some changes, it looked like the Bulldogs may only play a nine game schedule, but a one-year contract was worked with Childersburg. The teams will split the game receipt after expenses have been paid.

Childersburg has yet to win a game this season, falling to both Sylacauga and B.B. Comer. Those losses eliminate the Tigers from post-season play, but the team is much tougher than the record indicates. This Friday night may prove to both Montevallo and Childersburg what lies in store for the rest of the season.

From "Accidental Facts," 1977 edition, published by the National Safety Council, I note there were 1,200 deaths relating to firearms accidents in their last year of reported statistics. I do not include the thousands of deaths that are self-inflicted with guns annually. However, the anti-gunners always add their figure to whatever else they can find.

Even though you may be a seasoned hunter, put gun safety at the top of the list of all involved activities. I've heard there are legal pitfalls for careless hunters. For example, you might stand your gun against a car while you eat lunch. The gun is loaded, the safety off; it falls and shoots a companion in the foot. You could be sued!

I've heard of cases of manslaughter convictions in which the victims were hidden in foliage and hunters fired without checking to see if game animals were shaking the

The non-newspaper portion of Coosa's printing paper business has the past 15 years.

S.B. Pinkerton, Division Vice President, Marketing and Sales, explained the business development plan. "We had to recognize that the basic products of our operation are newsprint and market pulp. They provide the solid foundation for our business. From a marketing standpoint we felt the need to build a broader product base that would complement our equipment and not interfere with our commitments to our original newsprint and pulp customers. We also recognized back in the early 1960's that part of the graphic arts field with really significant growth potential was the non-newspaper groundwood specialty area--paperback books, popular and trade magazines, brochures, special inserts and comics."

He said, "Some manufacturers have moved into the groundwood specialty field as a matter of survival with older outmoded equipment. We are proud of the fact that every groundwood printing paper customer we have is a customer by selection."

Pinkerton said, "We are using wide, fast, modern equipment to make

He said the stability and compactness of Coosa's groundwood specialty printing paper business are illustrated by the fact that nearly all the field sales work is accomplished by R.L. The total in-house sales service activity is managed by Lew Riddlehoover of Sylacauga and Frances Hubbard of Talladega. Coosa has many other interesting groundwood printing paper customers including such publications as Astrology, Science Digest, Inside Detective, Front Page Detective, Crossword Puzzle Magazine and Highlights for Children. The schedule section of the 20 million weekly TV Guides sold south of the Ohio River is also printed on Coosa groundwood printing papers. Coosa's largest specialty printing paper customer in Alabama is Sylacauga's Dixie Color, which prints colored comic supplements for the Sunday editions of more than 110 Southeastern United States newspapers, in addition to many special inserts and flyers for such well-known retail firms as Sears, Woolco and K-Mart."

Said Pinkerton, "In the trade, at least, Coosa is looked upon primarily as a newsprint and pulp mill. "Last year, dry weather killed all my pastures. So I went up to the FMX® and told them I was looking for something to winter my cattle on. They recommended the Ninak ryegrass.

"We planted seven acres and put 70 cows on it. That's too many cows, but we didn't have any other grass for them at the time. They ate it down in about three weeks; then we started feeding hay and used the field for some weeks as a lounging field.

"Finally, we pulled the cows off and went in and spread ammonium nitrate. You can imagine what the field looked like by then. You wouldn't have thought there was a thing alive out there. But in two weeks that Ninak was knee-high again.

'We also had a comparison with some regular ryegrass we planted. It came out taller, but when the cattle started grazing, it went down faster and didn't come back like the Ninak. Ninak also lasted longer, about a month longer before the dry weather got it. We had cows on it the second time for about six weeks.

'Ninak is a good grass. We were just looking for something to get us by, but it did more than that. We're going to plant some more of it this fall."

Tally shows who won where in sheriff's race

by Marcia Sears

The voting patterns in the September 5 sheriff's race in Shelby County are the subject of much discussion this week, particularly among long-time observers of the local political scene.

People are asking, "Where was Glasgow's strength?" "Where did Red Walker, Jack Haynie and John Palmer

The total official vote in the county was 7,678 for Glasgow; 5,266 for Walker; 830 for Palmer and 286 for Haynie.

In order to give an in-depth picture of where the support was for the two leading candidates, the Reporter compiled a rough tally of the vote by communities. It is not an official count. We put it together merely for comparative purposes and some of the count may not be exact. But we feel it is accurate within a few votes in each community.

One of the big surprises came in Alabaster, where Sheriff Red Walker has always been strong. This time Glasgow captured the vote in Alabaster with 1424 votes, compared with 724 for Walker. (This count includes Siluria and Camp Branch

Calera, Pelham and Wilsonville also went almost 2 to 1 for Glasgow. Glasgow carried Montevallo, Pelham, Columbiana and several other communities. Red Walker won his biggest margin in Beat 12, the Cahaba Valley, where his vote was 878 over Glasgow's 805. But even so, Walker carried only the boxes at New Hope church and Inverness. Glasgow carried the boxes at Camper City and Bryan church.

Other communities where Walker carried the vote were Harpersville, Vincent, the Narrows, Turner (Beat 5), Vandiver and Westover.

According to the Reporter's informal tally, the votes by community we re as follows, with Glasgow's vote listed first, Walker's Alabaster, 1424 to 724.

Calera, 671 to 327. Columbiana, 696 to 392. Harpersville, 160 to 236. Helena, 230 to 228. Montevallo, 646 to 570. Pelham, 772 to 336 Vincent, 195 to 210 Wilsonville, 380 to 196. Wilton, 104 to 71. Beat 12, 805 to 878. Chelsea, 200 to 144. Turner, 60 to 62. Shelby, 243 to 183. Vandiver, 60 to 88. Sterrett, 71 to 55. Dogwood & Ebenezer, 249 to Pea Ridge, 103 to 68. Westover, 134 to 150 Bowles Springs, 45 to 26. Beat 22, 73 to 59. Beat 23 (Narrows) 13 to 35. Absentee, 80 to 62.

John Palmer and Jack Haynie both waged good races, but their candidacies were overwhelmed by the power contest waged by Glasgow and Walker which captured the public's attention.

Palmer ran strongest in his home territory in Beat 12 and surrounding areas and Haynie drew a good vote from his home area of Pea Ridge.

Mayor Ralph Sears congratulated finance committee chairman J.A. Brown for working out a balanced budget and then urged all chairmen to bend every effort to keep their expenses within budgetary limits.

The '78-'79 general funds budget represents a $106,800 increase over the current operating budget.

Primary sets record for voter turnout

The number of people who voted in Shelby County last Tuesday may have been the largest turnout in the history of the county.

In the Democratic and Republican primary elections on September 5, a total of 14,750 Shelby County voters went to the polls. There are 30,329 names on the list of registered voters in the county, but many of them are thought to be the names of deceased persons, or of persons who have moved out of the county. Of the votes cast in the governors'

More than a hundred people who were affected by the shortage attended the Pelham Council meeting Monday night to voice complaints about the

There was standing room only in the council chamber during the three hour meeting where residents questioned city officials about the lack of water.

Mayor Burk Dunaway told the crowd that an undetected leak in a water line plus the loss of water from several fire hydrants that had been turned on and left running overnight, had caused the depletion.

Although breaks occur in the water lines from time to time, mainly due to construction, Mayor Dunaway related that "This is the longest it's ever taken the city to find one.' City officials expect that a fourth well, in which a pump is now being installed, should produce an additional 720,000 gallons a day. But they point, that even at the present time, the city is pumping twice as much water as should actually be needed.

"We have more than an adequate supply of water," Councilman Ray Hamilton emphasized.

But since no one seems able to understand where all the water is going, the city is continuing to seek out ways to increase their supply. Negotiations are now in progress for an existing well, and on Sept. 9, bids will be let for the construction of a half million gallon storage tank,

The city is also planning to continue efforts to get a permit from the State Health Department for filtering water from rock quarries in the area for industrial use.

"I think people in the community should work with the city in trying to solve the problem, instead of continuing to gripe about it," he remarked.

However, a Wooddale resident reflected the feelings of the majority. He complained that water in his area was off at frequent intervals. "And this has been going on for a year and a half," he said in disgust,

Another Wooddale resident said that when the water supply began to get low Friday evening, she filled pitchers and her tub. "But no dishes got washed over the weekend," she related, "I just got them out of sight in the dishwasher.'

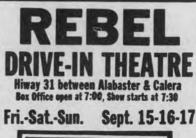

Families with swimming pools were more fortunate. "I dipped water from the pool for bathing and to use in flushing the toilet," remarked one homemaker.

No more paying for food stamps in '79

The 2,170 people in Shelby County who benefit from the food stamp program will see a change around the first of next year.

That is the date when people will stop paying for food stamps and will receive bonus stamps free.

The change in the program was andated by Congress last fall, but will not become effective until January of 1979.

Nell Fulton, Director of Shelby County Department of Pensions and Security said she has had many questions about the date the changes will occur. She explained the change depends on regulations issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Mrs. Fulton said that in Shelby County in a recent month, the food stamp program provided $95,451 in stamps, of which $62,588 was in free stamps.

Under current rules most people pay a certain amount in cash, for stamps that are worth much more in food buying power than what was paid

A typical family of four might pay $77 for $174 worth of stamps, thus receiving $97 in free stamps. After the change goes into effect the family will pay no money but will receive, free, the $97 worth of stamps. The value received by a particular family will continue to depend on the household size and net income.

Elimination of the purchase requirement will be particularly helpful to the elderly and the very poor, Mrs. Fulton stated, because these groups often find it extremely difficult to come up with the necessary amount of cash each month to buy their stamps.

UM spending multiplies thru county

Editor's Note: Dr. William Marxsen, a member of the University of Montevallo's College of Business faculty, recently completed a study of the economic impact of the University of Montevallo on Shelby County, The study was done as a part of the university's Mission and Goals Study.

officials are often acutely aware of the status. As a state agency, the University of Montevallo pays no property taxes on its buildings and grounds and no sales tax on its direct the presence of the University, nonetheless, enhances tax revenues in three ways and thereby more than completely offsets any revenue losses which result from its exemption from taxes. The University's beneficial effects on local tax revenues include the following: increased municipal sales tax revenues, due to the increased University; the extra property taxes dollars. paid by new residents attracted into the County by the institution; and increased property taxes from other residents of the community whose property is made more valuable by the presence of the University. The first two items, the direct and visible students and staff who rented their receipts, are measurable and substantial. The third effect, which owes to increased property values, is viewed by many as a mixed blessing. County tax revenues rise, but local residents, not associated with the University, find themselves paying higher taxes. But the citizen who complains that his property taxes may be double what they would be in the absence of the University should realize that it is because his property is worth twice as much.

It would be very difficult to estimate the magnitude of the third effect, that of increased property values on tax revenues, but it is Local residents and elected probably substantial and goes a long way toward offsetting any revenue fact that colleges enjoy tax exempt losses due to the University's tax-exempt status. But other hand, lend themselves easily to straightforward calculation. Municipal sales tax revenues, based on a one-percent rate in Alabaster, Columbiana, Montevallo, and Pelham, totalled more than twenty-one thousand dollars on faculty, staff, and student expenditures in business, while the University collected municipal sales taxes on its food and bookstore spending associated with the operations of almost twelve thousand make direct payments to the County tax office, the owners of the property include such taxes in the rent they charge and therefore act merely as middlemen between the residents, who are the actual taxpayers, and the tax collector. For 1977, University personnel paid more than twenty-eight thousand dollars through their landlords in County property taxes. Thus, the total Shelby County property taxes paid, both directly and indirectly, exceeded seventy-five thousand dollars in 1977.

All told, taxes paid to county and municipal government exceeded $108 thousand. Local governments usually constrain their expenditures and level of service by the revenues they receive. Consequently, these extra tax revenues from University sources permitted those governments to spend that much extra in their provision of community services. This spending also produced a multiplier effect. Therefore, the ultimate impact on spending within the County of University-related tax payments exceeded $160 thousand.

All of the effects on County spending levels discussed above are summarized in Table I. The grand total of all spending in the County which is attributable to the University's operation is almost $12.5 million, or

by Marcia Sears

The first act in what may be a bitter two-act drama unfolded at the County Commission Monday over who is responsible for paying a bill of $1,800.

When the bill for 70 hours of work by Burroughs Corporation computer operators was presented for payment, Commissioner Doug Ballard asked who authorized the work.

Fred Womble, head of the county's computer department said that Tax Assessor Bibbie Reynolds ordered the work done. He explained at length how he had prepared an edit print-out, and left it for the tax assessor's department with a note asking they mark the errors. He said he was working nights to get the abstracts printed out, and asking for corrections to be made during the day.

He told the Commission no note was left for him, and he assumed the work was satisfactory until the next day when the Burroughs operators came in to take over.

He said he could have finished the job within two or three days.

When the Commission called in Mrs. Reynolds, she disputed Womble's story, saying she had been put off repeatedly since May and had to meet the state's deadline, so she ordered the extra work.

She said she did not know that Burroughs would charge for the work. Commissioner Doug Ballard then inquired why Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden or his administrative assistant Carlton Franks had not anticipated the problem, knowing the outside operators were in the computer room for a week. "If this had to take bids," Ballard said.

Everybody said they had tried to contact Snowden, but he was out of aloud why, since they had bought a new bigger computer, and hired Womble as an expert, there was so much confusion over the computer.

Mrs. Reynolds expressed great dissatisfaction with the work of the computer department in meeting deadlines and in providing usable print-outs.

Womble said his program for the abstracts was satisfactory, and that the Burroughs people used his program, correcting only the errors that he knew were in the material, and had expected to correct himself.

Judge Snowden chided Mrs. Reynolds that he never met the state's deadlines when he was Tax Assessor. He just called up Montgomery for an extension of time, he said.

work should receive priority on the computer was brought up, with Mrs. Reynolds asserting the tax records had been ready since May but were not put The Commissioners wondered through the computer until the first part of August. Franks contended that the county payroll had to be the first priority of the computer. "If we don't get the checks out on payday, I don't want to be around here," he said.

Mrs. Reynolds retaliated, "If the tax records aren't complete on time, there won't be any tax money to meet the payrolls."

One of the Commissioners commented to Mrs. Reynolds, "When you come down and start hiring people in the computer department, it looks like you've exceeded your authority."

The Commission asked that written justification for the $1,800 bill be presented at the next meeting.

In Loving Memory of Milton M. Smith He needed the quite, so He drew him aside Into the shadows where they could confide; Away from the hustle where all the day

He hurried and worried when active and

He needed the quiet, though at first he rebelled,

But gently, so gently his cross He upheld, And whispered so sweetly of spiritual

Though weakened in body his spirit took

To height never dreamed of when active and gay

He loved him so gently, He drew him He needed the quiet, no prison his bed

But a beautiful valley of blessing instead; A place to grow richer, in Jesus to hide He needed the quiet, so He drew him aside. We love but once - forever We love and miss you.

Viewing pet's disease

Vet's audio-visual aid shows pet diseases

Columbiana veterinarian can graphically illustrate and help his clients better understand their pet's ailments and how they should be treated.

A valuable teaching aid is what Dr. Charles Thornburg II terms the $1,200 audio visual machine he purchased to help pet owners actually see what is wrong with their dog or

"What causes that?" is usually the first question a client asks after a diagnosis is made, Dr. Thornburg noted. So to reinforce his explanation, the veternarian inserts the appropriate tape into his machine and the client gets a second opinion while the pet is being treated.

Information on the tapes has been thoroughly researched and professionally put together in a presentation which lasts from 3-6 minutes, Dr. Thornburg said.

Oftentimes, he noted, the tapes help in clearing up misconceptions about a disease that has been handed down over the years.

Tapes dealing with mange and ear mites are among the most frequently used, Thornburg reported. And many pet owners have also been

In an article in last week's paper, the veterinarian pointed out that this disease is one of the main threats to the county's dog population.

An ailment that's common in puppies can be better understood by viewing the tape on Coccidia, which Thornburg says is similar to hook-

About 60 percent of the puppies under three months of age suffer from Coccidia, Dr. Thornburg reported. A very contagious disease which owners often mistake for hookworms.

So far, the Columbiana veterinarian has 26 tapes. Some of the other topics dealt with are: The Pet Population Explosion, Care of the New Puppy, Feline Leukemia, The Birth of Kittens; and several tapes on different types of internal and external parasites.

According to Thornburg, it isn't necessary to have a sick animal in order to view the tapes. And he points out that a group can watch a presentation as the machine can also be focused on the wall.

Several months ago, Dr. Thornburg recalled, approximately 30 Girl Scouts gathered in his office to view some of the tapes on animal

Mrs. Dale Moody and members of the Civitan Club came before the council to relate plans for their next project. The club will either decorate the lobby of the city hall for Christmas or prepare a billboard listing the town's events.

If eight is enough, then what about 14? That's how many people are occupying the William H. Palmer home in Inverness this week.

by Ruth Ann Dunn

The Palmer group is normally a large family, seven kids, dog Cholly, and Mom and Dad, but the added numbers are friends and relatives staying over for daughter Teri's wedding.

Originally from New Jersey, the family moved to Charing Woods Lane last July. As an accountant, Palmer had many clients there and one of them, Computer Services, Inc. asked him to move to Alabama for at least two years. But the family, said Mrs. Palmer (Jean) "loves it here. We're going to stay." Palmer now works for CSI full time, traveling between their Birmingham and Jackson, Miss. of-

When the Palmers first moved in their house, it had four bedrooms, three baths, a living room, dining room, kitchen and family room. They immediately began finishing the basement area to add two bedrooms, another bath, another family room and an office. Palmer flew to Alabama three months ahead of his family's arrival and found the house. Jean soon followed, looking at houses herself. "I still liked this one best," she said.

The contemporary home has the majority of rooms on the upper level which is even with the front yard. Out back, the sun deck sits high above the downward sloping land lending a beautiful view. As with most homes, the family room is the center of activity.

"Most of our friends in New Jersey thought we were crazy," Jean said, for moving to Alabama. Many thought of Alabama as an area lacking civilization. "It was a hard decision, a big decision, to move," she said.

Living all their lives in various Jersey townships, the Palmers were used to being close to stores. "It was hard at first getting adjusted when grocery shopping," Jean said. "If I forgot things, like bread, 'I'd have to get in the car for another trip to the store. I'm a little better organized now," she said.

Now when Jean grocery shops, she stocks up for two weeks at a time."I buy 14 meat meals," she said, "and put vegetables with it later."

Recently she began filling her two freezers for the winter by putting up 60 pounds of spaghetti sauce and a bushel of peas. "My kids love spaghetti and meatballs," she said.

Jean finds she is cooking too much food per meal these days with the two oldest boys, Bill, 22, and John 21, away from home. Bill attends the University of Northern Colorado while John works with a landscaping company in New Jersey. Jean claims the two boys were her biggest eaters.

There will be one less plate at the table with daughter Teri, 19, marrying and moving out.

Still at home are Jim, 16, Jean Marie, 15, Jo Ann, 13, and Dianne, 8. Palmer's father also lives with the Coordinating the acitivities of such a large group comes naturally for Mrs. Palmer. "Jim, you go finish cutting the grass. John, how do you feel? Well, maybe you'd better go back to bed."

· None of the children left at home drive, so Jean and William take them to activities such as carpet golf or bowling. They catch the bus to school. Since they belong to Inverness Country Club, the kids are within walking distance of tennis courts and a swimming pool. The Palmers do not have to face the rush hour traffic into Birmingham each morning and afternoon.

Mom and Dad Palmer enjoy golf at Inverness. They usually play on Sundays and Jean golfs nine holes with a ladies' group every Wednesday.

Jean said they always planned for a large family, at least six kids, and added, "They say lots of children around keeps you young."

"Wherever we've lived in the past we've always been the largest family in the neighborhood," Jean said, "and it looks like we've made it again here." Presently, she does five loads of wash daily for the group.

The family attends Our Lady of the Valley Catholic Church on Highway 119.

Back at home in Princton, New Jersey, the family just about filled a whole row in church, but here, Jean said, they usually attend mass at different times.

Other differences between New Jersey and Alabama they've noticed include prices for food and clothing. "When we first moved, I found meat was a lot cheaper here, Jean said, "but canned goods were less up there."

Clothing is priced about the same, she said. What really amazed the Palmers was the considerably lower property taxes in Alabama.

Despite the differences, the Palmers have adjusted their lifestyle to keep in step with Alabamians.

"We've found a lot of good friends here," Jean said, "We're going to stay."

Parks to offer discount

Governor George C. Wallace announced this week that Alabama State parks will begin offering a special discount package to senior citizens in the near future.

Effective October 1, the Alabama State parks will offer special discount rates to all visitors who are 65 and older, according to Governor Wallace.

State Parks Director Sidney B. Bledsoe, Sr. said that the new program will offer a 50 percent discount on various activities in the State parks to include camping, picnicking, green fees on golf courses, boat rentals, fishing, swimming, tennis, bicycling and tours to Alabama residents who are 65 years of age and older.

"We feel that this program offers significant benefits to our fine senior citizens who have worked and produced and contributed so much to the welfare of our state who now must live on fixed incomes. Hopefully these benefits will allow our senior citizens to better enjoy the facilities in our parks that they have helped to build and develop," said Wallace.

Conservation Commiss

W. Hodnett said that he did not feel that this new program would overtax the already tight financial situation in the State parks system.

Senior citizen card holders will be exempted from paying the 25 cents entrance fee that is presently charged at most State parks. Also, persons confined to a wheelchair will be admitted to all park activities listed in thé program for senior citizens free of

The State of Alabama already offers a hunting and fishing license to citizens over 65 for the nominal rate of 25 cents and those licenses are good for a lifetime.

Hodnett also noted that senior citizen cards are available at all State park offices. To qualify for such a card, a person must be a legal resident of Alabama and be 65 years of age or older. The one-time fee for a senior citizen card will be $10.

In announcing the new program, Hodnett and Bledsoe said that the aim of the new program is to have more of Alabama's golden agers enjoying their State parks.

Johnny aren't patients...they're volunteer at St. Vincent's while Johnny is a clerk in Shelby Memorial's emergency room.

> What makes Joni and Johnny so unusual is the fact that no one in their family is connected with the medical profession and that both have jumped into the field so wholeheartedly.

Joni, in a single summer, earned her Nightingale Lampin, a feat which usually requires two summers' work. Aiding in the recovery room, she put in more than 350 hours of service between June 12 and August 22.

Getting Joni to the hospital each day was a community effort said her mother, Jean Morgan.

"She would ride back and forth with neighbors," said Mrs. Morgan, particularly Dr. Koopman who lives two doors down from the Morgans.

"Boys don't usually go into that," Mrs. Morgan said.

Johnny and Joni humorously speculate about combining their careers. "Joni says she's going to be the doctor and I'm going to be her assistant," he said.

"We have reversed roles here," laughs Mrs. Morgan.

They have other interests, too. When she wasn't volunteering at St. Vincent's, Joni was at home tending a pea patch. She picked and sold more than 30 bushels of purple hulls and pink eyes to raise money for a typewriter; this summer's project.

The profits from Johnny's job will go toward a car of his own, "I want a Gran Prix," he said.

Swapping stories about their jobs, Joni tells of a little girl and her doll which she tended to in the recovery room. "She had had an operation on her head so the doctor bandaged her doll's head, too," Joni said.

Johnny is the first person the patient in the emergency room sees. He said he has encountered people who couldn't talk when brought in, particularly wreck victims. He has to communicate with such people by Mrs. Morgan doesn't exactly know what got her children so interested in the health field.

"Joni has been interested in biology since the fourth grade," she said, "when she got her own microscope and began making slides."

She said Joni had always kept a jar of formaldehyde filled with snakes, frogs and insects for scrutinization and dissection. To back up this statement, Joni went to her room and returned with a peanut butter jar containing creatures found in the back yard.

Johnny's interest in medicine was a by-product of his first love-business.

He was originally placed in the business administration offices at Shelby Memorial and was transferred to the clerk's job in the emergency room when a place opened.

His mother said he first got the hospital job because of his outstanding typing skills. "There's one sentence I can type 125 words per minute," Johnny added.

His intention to combine business and medicine, grows daily and he plans to work for his EMT (Emergency Medical Technician) certificates when he finishes high school.

Joni's future plans include obtaining her 500 volunteer hour pin by AEA holidays this school year. "I'll work on weekends, Christmas holidays and AEA," she said. She hopes to enter St. Vincent's School of Nursing when she finishes high school.

That game will be played in Montevallo with kickoff at 7:30.

The star of the evening was runningback David Cofer who accounted for 187 yards and five touchdowns. Kicking specialist Steve Smitherman got five points, quarterback Wade Bolin six, and Cofer claimed the other 30.

Thompson so completely controlled the game, that at halftime the score stood at 35 to 0 and the Thompson reserves took over.

To Richard Crosby Sports Editor Letter to Editor:

To say the fans in Chelsea are slightly angry with you would be saying it mildly. We do not feel like being abusive to you, we only feel like you used poor taste in words by saying our team lacked "Gumption." I'm sure you do not know our team well enough to talk about gumption. Both of my sons have played on Chelsea teams for 8 years; they both made "All County," and since I have only missed 2 ballgames in 8 years, I feel qualified to say that Chelsea's teams have always had "Gumption."

And since I'm sure you've been passed along the definition of

"Gumption" I won't repeat it, other than to say that we would most definitely appreciate a better choice of words from your column concerning our Football Team. We are proud of them, as always, and we do get mad when we are knocked publicly.

We're not always winners, but the pride remains. You were the target of many many jokes and cracks at our ballgame Friday nite and our "Pep Rally" fans were informal of your remarks so altho you provided some "humor for us" your column was in poor taste for Chelseans.

Dove season arrives Saturday

If you haven't had your gun checked out yet, you may find that hitting a dove is a lot harder than it used to be. Dove season opens this Saturday, and large crowds are expected at all dove shoots.

Bringing down one of those darting gray ghosts is tough, but the rewards at the dinner table make it worthwhile.

Some of the dove shoots scheduled that I've learned about are as follows:

- Bearden's Dairy in Helena.
- Clifford Moore's in Wilsonville.
- Bearden's Dairy in Vincent.

- Bailey's Dairy in Bessemer. - Hind's Dairy in Pelham.

- Smith Farm in Wilsonville.

- Sherwood Stamps' farm at Moores Cross Roads.

Most of the news on the whereabouts of the birds isn't good. Unless we get some rain and relief from the hot weather, Saturday could be a long wait for nothing.

Otherwise, I prefer to hunt in Wilsonville. Last year I had great results and I'm hoping for more of the same this year. Vincent also had a great shoot last year.

One final note, and this is about who rains shot down on you.

fishing, in 1978, 50,390 saltwater striped bass fingerlings were stocked in Lay Lake. That's a 50 percent increase over the previous year. Since 1969, 276,706 fingerlings have been put in Lay Lake. Lake Mitchell and Logan Martin did not receive any saltwater striped bass last year. By the way, Lay Lake was one of the leaders in receiving bass fingerlings.

Good luck this Saturday and don't forget to wear shooting glasses if you're on a crowded field. Seems that there's always someone

Of the major pieces of furniture used to equip our homes, most reach no higher than midwall. If we did nothing to inject variety through window treatments, wall-hung accessories, or accents, the effect might be a montonous. Although you may never have thought of it in this way, the commonest device for securing height variety is through the use of draperies or window treatments. Since windows normally start at or near the celling line, it is necessary only to accent an architectural feature already present in order to get whatever emphasis on height you wish.

Beautiful window treatment starts with BECKy'S INTERIORS, Main St., (P.O. Box 22), Calera, 668-0249. We feature custom made draperies, using the finest fabrics available, and expert workmanship. Youngsters who want to get into football, which, she explained, is easier the action in every football game can now have that opportunity.

Registration for the YMCA's flag football program is getting underway. Students in grades one through six are eligible to participate in the eight weeks of league play which will conclude with a round robin tournament.

Developing basic skills will be the emphasis of the Y's seasonal sports program. Basketball will be offered in the winter, and soccer in the spring.

Discussing the football program Y Director Molly McGregor stressed that the sport is for everybody, not just those who excell or meet a weight requirement.

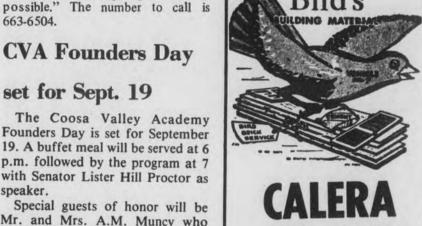

She pointed out that a sense of team play and healty spirit of competition is developed. But she emphasized the most important aspect of the program is "what happens to the kids as people-their personal and social development, their skills, attitudes and behavior.

In order to make the games and practices more convenient for parents, the Y is scheduling most of the workouts at the schools students attend. And games will be Saturday mornings so dads can watch.

All games will be played on the YMCA field located at the 600 block of First Avenue West in Alabaster.

The Y director commended the volunteers who are coaching the teams. "If they hadn't been willing to give their time," she said, "this program wouldn't have been possible.

Alabaster Welcome Wagon brings cheery 'Hi' to newcomers

Howdy neighbor

Anita Bailey (1), hostess of the Alabaster Welcome Wagon, greets newcomer Ginger Reed. Bailey carries a basketfull of information to new residents.

books, found in the attic of the Shelby calls for such material. County Court House, have been compiled into one volume. "I did it to make them accessible to the general public for research, and for the Historical Society in particular," says copier, Kate Reese. She added that "apparently, no one has had access to them all of these years because they were in the attic."

The old pension records were discovered by CETA workers while compiling lists of Shelby County Court House records. Upon learning that the inventory was in progress, Reese asked the workers to watch for a particular book that she had seen earlier in the attic, but could no longer locate. "Evidently, some one had just walked out with the book," she said, "because the CETA workers did not find it, either."

However, the Chelsea researcher was quite happy over the discovery of the pension records of Shelby County Confederate soldiers and widows. She feels that they are very valuable as research material. She says that Elizabeth Wells, Special Collections Librarian at Samford University, told

If you are a newcomer in the Alabaster area, the Welcome Wagon may soon be rolling your way.

Anita Bailey, hostess for the Alabaster Chapter of the nationally known firm, delivers a basket of free gifts to willing new residents.

"Most, over half, of the people do not know what the Welcome Wagon is," she said. "They think it's a gimmick and that I'm trying to sell them something."

What the group, in its 50th year, does, is try to make new residents feel at home. Information packets on local civic groups, schools in the area as well as facts about Alabama for out-of-staters, are taken to the resident's home by Bailey and assistant hostess, Joyce Edmonds.

The gifts, such as a potholder, coffee scoop, box of salt, and a keychain are provided by a sponsor. As a hostess, Bailey is employed by the Welcome Wagon and is compensated by the firm for her visits. The Welcome Wagon, in turn is paid by the sponsors for advertising their services to newcomers.

But the initial welcome by the hostess does not end the service of the Welcome Wagon to residents.

The Welcome Wagon Club, meeting monthly, provides a medium for new people to group, get acquainted and share what they've discovered about their new home.

"For this area, the meeting is in Pelham City Hall," Bailey said. Areas of interest within the club include arts and crafts, creative cooking, bowling and bridge playing.

Bailey said when she tells newcomers about the club, "Immediately they jump back and say, 'Do I have to do what you do?' "

Bailey averages 25 to 30 visits each month in combination with the assistant hostess. She said the job has "I bet I've visited at least one house on every street in the subdivisions."

In the last two months, she has noticed a definite increase in the number of new people. Bailey learns the names and addresses of the residents from the Gas and Water Board. She picks up cards with the information weekly.

"An average call usually lasts 20 to 40 minutes," she said, "depending on the person and how much they already know about the area."

The hostesses try to visit within the first two to three weeks after the newcomer moves in, "but sometimes it's longer, sometimes it's sooner."

Alabaster's Welcome Wagon was reactivited two and a half years ago.

The Reporter traveled with Bailey on one of her visits to Port South subdivision to the home of newcomer from Montgomery, Ginger Reed.

Reed asked questions concerning schools and churches in Alabaster as well as the location of a pediatrician. The visit lasted almost an hour. "This is more or less the best way to help the

She said, unlike Giner Reed and her family, many of the new people are from entirely different regions of the country which makes it a larger adjustment for them.

"I visited with three new people from New York last week," she said. "It's to tally different here, the schools, the lifestyle, everything.'

Of her work, she said, "It's a responsibility. You learn a lot of things." But she added, "It's not really a job, I thoroughly enjoy doing it."

Purpose of joining the two systems is to make it possible to use water from both cities in case of an emergency such as a power failure, the collapse of a well, pump failures or in case of a major fire.

A valve will be installed and kept closed between the two systems. The Water system engineers representing both Calera and Montevallo will make a study to determine capacities and capabilities of the two systems in the event of a long term shutdown in either municipality.

Work on the interconnection is expected to begin this week.

Attending the meeting held in Montevallo were J.C. Rowe, chairman of the Calera Water Board and H.D. Bright and Terry Snow all from Calera. Attending from the Montevallo Water Board were chairman James Seaman, David Nichols, Alvin McGaughy and City Clerk Don Hughes.

Stewart campaigns at breakfast meeting

U.S. Senate candidate Donald Stewart drew a capacity crowd at the breakfast meeting of the Shelby North Kiwanis Club Tuesday morning.

The Alabaster restaurant's dining room was filled with Shelby County residents who came out to hear the candidate in the last week of his campaign for the seat now occupied by Maryon Allen, the widow of the late Senator Jim Allen.

Stewart told the crowd if elected he would be a strong voice for Alabama in the Senate.

He noted that his opponent did not even cast a vote on the Highway Trust Fund when it came up in the Senate recently. "If I had been there I'd have stayed in the trenches until they had to carry me out." He claimed that when the bill was killed, it meant letting the Northeast section of the country "take our road money away from us."

He also cited his opponent's failure to vote on a farm-export bill which he said was of importance to Alabama farmers.

He said he was glad to stand on his record of service in the State Senate, and urged voters to examine his record. "It may not be the best in the world, but it's the best in this campaign," he said.

Model of mining cars

J. E. Harris, a 71 year old retired miner, shows Montevallo City Clerk Don Hughes a model of two Civil War mining cars unearthed recently near Gurnee. Harris, using a picket knife and jig saw, fashioned the models from scrap wood such as apple crates. The only directions Harris used were photographs and a word description found on the front page of the June 8 issue of the Shelby County Reporter. Harris was employed by the Roden Coal Company of Marvel from 1928 to 1954. After retiring from the mines he served as janitor in Alabama College's Ramsay Hall for fifteen years. He started making the models of the old mining cars a week after the pictures appeared in the Reporter, He completed the job late last month.

Alabaster struggles to adopt new budget

by Bert Seaman

Anyone who handles the family purse strings knows the difficulty of making ends meet. But it's even more of a headache for a city to try and balance its budget.

Members of the Alabaster City Council had expected to adopt their annual budget Monday night. But finance Chairman Charlotte Burke reported that expenditures exceeded revenue by $70,000.

So the panel will be looking for ways to cut corners or else find some means of increasing the city's income. Burke told the council that the proposed budget amounted to $793,500.

Even though revenues have increased by $100,000, the finance chairman related that expenditures have taken an even bigger jump, amounting to an additional $170,000 over last year. "We've gone up one side and down the other studying the figures," declared Burke. "But there's no way we can keep providing services to our expanding population without more revenue.'

One of the services that will be requiring more money is garbage collection. According to Councilman Jack Zuiderhoek, the cost of pickup service for 2,100 customers will increase by about $30,000 this coming

He pointed out that the present collector's contract expires in December and that the city is getting ready to advertise for bids. In talking to contractors, Zuiderhoek said he'd learned the pickup cost per unit had risen to between $3 and $4, which would bring the total cost to around

Moving on to a problem that rivals garbage in creating problems for the city, the council considered the resurgence of roaming dogs. The problem had been thought licked after the leash law was passed, but the dogs seem to have gotten the upper hand

Zuiderhoek reported that Clyde Massey had offered to pick up canines running loose for a three month period to try and get the dog population under control again.

The council voted unanimously to give Massey the job which would include picking up dead dogs.

Telling the council about a Park and Recreation Board meeting last week, Board Chairman Zuiderhoek related that Friday and Saturday nights had been set aside for youth activities at the depot.

He said that clubs in Alabaster wanting to reserve the facility for meetings should make requests known at the Park Board's next meeting Oct. The Board recommended that the expired term of Jean Smitherman, one of the first members, be extended to a full four year term, and the council Giving the Fire Department report for the month of August, Councilman Wayne Lucas reported that 56 runs had been made.

Several visitors attended the council meeting and told the panel about problems in their areas. These included an infestation of rats due to overgrown grass; inadequate drainage so that water overflowed the road, and trucks stopping in a no parking zone which created a traffic hazard.

Mayor Harold Davenport said the problems would be looked into and he reported on the effectiveness of a traffic light the city had been after for three or four years.

He noted that the traffic flow on Industrial Park Road had greatly improved since the installation of the

The land across Valleydale Road that extends up to the southern boundary of Riverchase (bordered by new and old Highways 31) was changed to B-2 by a vote of 3 to 1, with Leslie Todhunter voting against the change. Councilmen Ray Hamilton, Willard Payne and Roy Jowers footed for it. Councilman John Tanner was absent.

Several members of the audience at the City Council meeting asked to be heard, and Mayor Burk Dunaway allowed then to make points that had not been brought up at last week's meeting. But he reminded the audience, "Last week was the public hearing" and discouraged old arguments being mentioned again.

One person asked, "Why are you voting aginst so many of us who don't want these areas being zoned

Councilman Roy Jowers defended A story inside the section on the the city, "It's commercial already and we have to have commercial areas if cabin they built this summer gives we are going to survive as a city."

On another zoning matter, Joe Stanford spoke for a group of four residents of "Morgan Hill" which was Fall is the time to brace your zoned commercial at last week's home and yard for Old Man Winter's meeting.

He said he and the other residents this special information will be useful of the area would like to enter a formal legal request that the property

Mayor Dunaway also reported that the water crisis was over. He said the water tanks filled up last week and have been in good shape since Fire Chief William Bryars mentioned that the Calera Fire Department provided a pump and tanker truck on standby basis while the city's water supply was low, and he expressed his appreciation.

Dunaway remarked that Alabaster gave Pelham water until the pressure dropped too low in Alabaster. Helena and Birmingham water boards were unable to help because their facilities were already being used to capacity, Dunaway said.

Mrs. Valenti told the Reporter that when water problems became severe seven months ago, the residents of the section found they had no representation without going all the way to Representative Sonny Moore and Senator Lister Hill Proctor. Residents of the area know that if they are annexed to a city, their property tax will go up by the number of mills the city collects.

Some of the fringe benefits are: (1) increased self-confidence and poise (2) experience in communicating with others (3) valuable training in self-expression. For the state winners, there is also the broadening experience of a five day tour of Washington, D.C. In 1974, the S & L sued the Erwins to get the house trailer, claiming nonpayment of the loan. The Erwins filed a third party claim against the manufacturer, Shiloh Homes, Inc., alleging defects in construction making the trailer uninhabitable.

After lengthy legal hassles, punctuated by attempted repairs to the trailer that were unsatisfactory to the Erwins, a decision was rendered in August 1977 throwing out the S & L's repossession bid, and awarding the Erwins $1000 against Shiloh Homes.

Unsatisfied, the Erwins (represented by Richard W. Bell, Pelham) appealed, saying 1) the court should have rescinded the original sale, and 2) $1000 damages was not enough.

Judge Holmes, writing for a unanimous Civil Appeals Court, denied the appeal on both points, because No. 1 was raised for the first time on appeal, which is too late, and because, on No. 2, Judge Sharbutt made a personal inspection of the premises, and other evidence supported his determination that damages were

Judgment in Alabaster rape case upheld by Criminal Appeals Court

Saying "We have searched the record for error and have found none. The appellant received a fair and just trial. Accordingly, the judgment of conviction is affirmed," the Alabama Court of Criminal Appeals last April, in an opinion that has just recently become final, upheld a rape conviction from Shelby County.

According to evidence in the case, Kenneth Lee Rhine, 19, grabbed his victim around 6:15 or 6:20 p.m. on March 3, 1977 in the parking lot of an Alabaster Shopping Center, as she was not obtained voluntarily, and returned to her car after grocery should be excluded as evidence.

Shoving her into her car, Rhine drove out into the country, raped her, and took $20 from her. (He was not prosecuted for the robbery.)

Driving back to Highway 31, Rhine reportedly got out of the car and began running down the road, where he was arrested at 7:30 p.m. in front of the Saginaw Lime Plant.

Taken to the Alabaster police station and read his Miranda rights, Rhine confessed to abduction and Upon request, Rhine also gave police his undergarments, which revealed blood and semen staind when examined.

At trial, Rhine's Birmingham attorney contended that his confession was involuntary because Alabama police allegedly threatened him, and because he was mentally deficient, having completed the ninth grade at

Rhine further argued that his victim was helped in identifying him in court through illegal prompting from photographs, and that his underwear

Eighteenth Judicial Circuit Judge James H. Sharbutt denied all four arguments, and submitted the contested evidence to the jury. The jury convicted him.

Rhine's attorney pressed the four arguments before the Criminal Appeals Court, claiming that Sharbutt erred and this warranted reversal, or at least a new trial.

Judge Bowen, writing for a unanimous court, found Sharbutt's rulings correct and affirmed.

An application for rehearing was denied in May, and a request to the Supreme Court of Alabama for certiorari was denied on July 28.

Barring further prosecutions on the one hand or escapes on the other, Rhine can count on being paroled after one-third of his sentence, or 16 2/3 years. (Spring, 1994).

Underthe Good Time Law, the Pardons and Parole Board can reportedly cut this in half, to 8 1/3 years (late 1985).

With the concurrence of his warden (supposedly, this is rarely given), this can conceivably be reduced still 5 5/9 years (Early 1983).

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, a member of the FDIC.

Williams said, "If you know how to handle it." Redneck was the equipment manager for the Mignon baseball team in the middle 1920's. In those days textile mills had baseball teams talented enough to play

"We'll manage," Stuffy Stewart answered. Stuffy played for the Birmingham Barons. For several years, after the season was over in the Southern League, the Barons had come to Sylacauga to play. And every year they had managed to win, usually by the skin of their teeth.

Stuffy passed on out of sight and Redneck got busy with his work, He wouldn't see Stuffy again for three

First, let's say a word about the crowd. They had come from everywhere, Goodwater, Talladega Springs, Fayetteville, Childersburg, and every cow trail between the Coosa and Jackson Gap. They lined each foul line four deep and ganged up behind home plate, hundreds of 'em, yelling for their heroes.

The first two innings were scoreless. Earl Whitehill, pitching for the Barons, looked unbeatable. And Jim Roberson, pitching for Mignon, looked just as good.

In the third the Barons got a man on second, with a single to left and a wild pitch, with two out. Another single scored him and the score was 1

It stayed that way until the seventh when Mignon scored twice, on a single through the middle and a double to right and another single.

The eighth was scoreless. In the ninth the Barons got the first man on, a fluke single that dropped between three players. The next guy bunted, a little dribbler that got the runner to second. The next man flied to deep center and was out on a tremendous catch. One more out

And that's the way it was in the last of the ninth, with Mignon batting, and a man on second and a man on third and one out. Mollie Brasher, coaching at first, called time. He went out and talked with the guy on second and the guy on third and came back to his spot behind first. That was Mollie for you. He could beat you a dozen ways and usually did one way or another. There are dozens of guys, from here to yonder, who know what I'm talking about. Guys who tried to beat Mollie's teams in the 20's and 30's and 40's, always had to play like the dickens to do it, if they did.

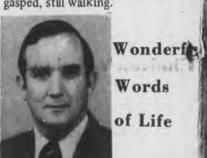

The batter hit the ball to short and the shortstop bobbled it, but hi throw was in time to get the runner at first. When the ball hit the glove Mollie fell backward, grabbing his chest and struggling for breath. You could hea him groaning in left field. Flip Nuer the Baron first baseman, rushed over and started working with him. Th ump hurried over, followed by th players on both sides. All the player except the man on second and the man on third. These two just stool there, watching Mollie, and when h raised his right arm they starte running. When they both had crossel home plate, Mollie jumped up an started laughing.

Our Misunderstood Bible

The bible is the world's greate seller, most popular book, and me influential book, yet it is the world most misunderstood book. The cause this misunderstanding is varied.

First many people misunderstand the whole Bible. Some think it is a frau that is, they misunderstand its source (II Timothy 3:16, 17; II Peter 1:21 Others misunderstand its purpos Instead of understanding the Bible furnish man unto very good work, the feel it to be a fable. (II Timothy 3:1) 17.) Still others misundertand God Word, thinking that they can destroy i However, the Bible is indestructable and it will face us in the judgmen (Mark 13:31; John 12:48; Revelatio

Second, many people misunderstan the testaments. They are just as apt go to the Psalms as to Acts to find the plan of salvation. The inability to right divide the Word of God is the father many religious errors. We now live under the reign and rule of the New Testament. The law of Moses (OI Testament) was to last until Christ die on the cross (Galatians 3:19); Chris nailed the law to the cross. (Colossians 2:14.) Today we must hear Christ. (Mathew 17:15; Hebrews 1:1,2.) The first covenant was taken away that we might have the second. (Hebrews 1(1))

Poll shows Alabamians like UM to remain small school

A statewide poll conducted as part of the University of Montevallo's Mission and Goals Study reveals that three Alabamians in four believe that UM should remain a "small university of high quality."

Results of the scientific survey and copies of the mission and goals study adopted Aug. 30 by UM's Board of Trustees were mailed this week to members of the Alabama Commission on Higher Education (ACHE) said UM

Agricultural info given over phone

Anyone who would like to hear the latest agricultural information may now call Washington, D.C. direct.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture announces this week the "Farmers' Newsline" which promises the latest crop, livestock and farm economic information.

The number to dial, toll-free, is 1-800-424-7964.

The service is available 24 hours a day 7 days a week.

Ed. Note: When the Shelby County Reporter dialed the number Thursday, the recorded announcement gave an update on the cattle situation in the United States. "There were 16% more cattle being raised on Sept. 1, 1978 than on the same date in 1977," and, "Texas remains the leading cattle state with 1.9 million head."

President James F. Vickrey, Jr. "This poll is significant for at least two reasons," Dr. Vickrey said. "First, it involved actually asking the citizen-taxpayers of Alabama what kind of institution they wanted UM to

"Second," he added, "its results strongly support the independent judgment of our Mission and Goals Commission that 'quality' and not 'quantity' should continue to be the educational watchword at UM."

Other major findings reported to ACHE included --- Three Alabamians in four UM should continue to maintain low tuition costs. -- Four in five responding believe it is important for UM to offer adult education courses, and nine in 10 believe that UM courses should be readily available to students, with three out of four supporting off-campus credit courses.

-- The vast majority of those with an opinion believe that Montevallo should receive more funding from the Alabama Legislature.

Beware of new breed con artists by William Webster that you and everyone that you know, propositions - deals which must be Director FBI

One of the most despicable thieves prowling our streets today is the confidence swindler - a scoundrel who often preys on our elderly citizens. Regardless of the number of warnings issued by police departments, many older Americans are still being bilked out of their life savings by con artists using such swindles as the Bank Examiner Scheme and the Pigeon

Recognizing the earmarks of these schemes can help you to avoid falling victim to them. Here, then, is how they work.

In the Bank Examiner Scheme, the con artist, posing as a bank officer or a police officer, asks you to withdraw money from your bank account so that he may trap a dishonest teller. After you make the withdrawal, you are to meet the swindler away from the bank and give him the money so he can "compare the serial numbers" and arrest the employee. The money, according to the con man, will be immediately redeposited to your account. Once you give the money to the phoney officer, he goes back into the bank and then out another door with all your money. Of course, he does not work for the bank. He makes his living cheating people.

The Pigeon Drop is usually worked by two or more con women. The first swindler pretends to find a money-filled envelope lying near your feet on the street. The swindler's partner walks up and demands that the finder split the large sum of money three ways. It is suggested that the three of you put up five hundred or a thousand dollars in "good faith" money. You are selected to hold all the money for thirty days. If no one claims the lost money, the three of you will meet again in the same spot and split the find. You, of course, are to hand your "good faith" money over to the other two women. All the money is wrapped and tied. You are given the envelope that was found. It now actually contains cut-up newspapers, the money having been switched by the swindlers during the wrapping. Of course, by the time you become suspicious and look into the package the con artists are long gone with your "good faith" money. You

"Our system of justice in this state is operating in a businesslike fashion and is the envy of every other state in this country," Justice Shores told a civic club audience in Mobile.

Justice Shores said that just a few short years ago the state's courts were bogged down with congestion and absolutely no fiscal accountability. "Today," she said, backlogs have been cleared and for the first time in the history of the state we know the cost of providing judicial services in Alabama.

"I am tired of hearing distortions about the cost of the system," she said. "Sure, it is costing more from the state budget. When you transfer 1,000 employees from county payrolls and put them on the state payroll, it's going to cost the state budget more.

addition to this," she said, "county governments continue to receive a share of court system revenues." The first woman to serve on Alabama's Supreme Court said that

"perhaps it will be only after the political season has subsided that a true picture of the improvements which have been made in the state's judicial system will be projected to the people of Alabama."

Flag sacred symbol to reader

When I was young, I recall, standing at the graveside of a young farmland who was killed in the Korean struggle. A vivid impression was burned into my memory as I watched a broken hearted mother with her face buried in the American Flag crying, crying, as she returned to the earth what was given to her 19 years before. I watched as the parents, who were old while they were still young, carried the Flag as though it was a new born child to an old truck to return to the farmland that had always been their life. Thousands upon thousands of other mothers and wives have left graveyards embracing this most sacred symbol of American Freedom.

The Flag means many things to all of us, but most of all it represents a 200 year struggle to stay free. Even while in school I had a feeling of security while the Flag stood watch above the roof tops of the schools. Today the company I work for flies a Flag above the plant and I'm very proud of that.

Now, with all this said I would like to make one simple statement. Near the town where I live, Calera, there is a business that is open for the purpose of selling beer, like a bar, above the door of the business, flying proudly is an American Flag. Something is wrong about that.

It's time we stopped taking the Alabama farmer for granted.

Agriculture is the biggest industry in Alabama, contributing more than $1.5 billion to the state's economy each year. The Alabama farmer produces enough food for himself and 56 other people and, along with other American farmers, is the greatest producer in the world. But changing times and increased urbanization have pushed the farmer into the background. Now that we need him more than ever, the farmer is often forgotten. Fob James believes it is time we realized the debt we owe the Alabama farmer. The Trio features Daniel Sher, pianist; Dinos Constantinides, violinist; the Thaddeus Brys, cellist. All are members of the LSU School of Music faculty.

The program will include music by Beethoven, Joaquin Turina, and Felix Mendelsohn-Bartholdy. The concert, presented by the UM Guest Artist Series, will begin at 8 p.m. in UM's LeBaron Recital Hall. The public is invited at no charge.

Calera considers changes in building permit costs

City Clerk, Lemoyne Payton told the Calera Council Tuesday night that their city had essentially the same building code as Montevallo but, "We don't enforce ours.'

At the council's request, Payton had consulted Montevallo on the handling of building permits and inspections. Calera council members have been considering changing the basis for setting building permit prices.

Mayor George Roy, upon learning Montevallo Planning and Zoning Board meets monthly, suggested the Calera Board begin holding meetings more often. Currently, the board has quarterly meetings.

He said, "The board is not as active as it should be. It is our intention to get it more active."

In other business, the council approved the minutes of a budget meeting held September 13. The next budget meeting is set for Tuesday night, September 26.

The council heard a representative of an investment brokerage firm who brought a plan for financing the completion of the city sewer system. All council members agreed no further work could be done on the completion plans until the recommendation of the EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) and AWIC (Alabama Water Improvement Commission) is received.

Users warned of possible hazard in tool's wiring

The Portable Appliance and Tool checked and repaired free-of-charge. Group, McGraw-Edison Co., Columbia, Mo., in cooperation with numbers, consumers may contact the U.S. Consumer Product Safety CPSC's toll-free hotline at Commission (CPSC), has announced a voluntary repair program for about 16,000 six-inch bench grinders, which may pose a shock hazard, according to the Alabama Department of Public

A protective sleeve insulating a lead wire may wear through on some of the units, bringing the wire into direct contact with the motor shaft and possibly resulting in severe shock if the tool is not properly grounded and if the user is grounded or touching a grounded metal object such as a water pipe. Two cases have been reported where the insulation has worn through, one of which resulted in a shock.

The tools were manufactured from April through July 1973, and for imited periods between February 1977 and January 1978.

The repair program applies to the ollowing models of six-inch bench rinders purchased after June 1973 and not showing any three-digit date ode embossed on the nameplate (e.g. 57C): Manning Bowman model 715100, Toastmaster model 5577, ower House model 711100, J.C. enney model 4030, Western Auto-Wizard model Poe 6203A, Ward's Power Kraft model FGB-5102A, and K-Mart model 30-09T1.

The fact is that clearly identifying the origin of Orientals is difficult and even the experts disagree. A well-designed Oriental will have straight borders or several borders, clarity of color, and sharp definition in the design. If it is an old handmade Oriental as opposed to a new machine-made rug of Oriental design, buy the former. He wasn't a tall man in statue. but a little man with a big heart. He went to work in the morning, and sometimes didn't get through until after dark.

He and Mother scrapped just to make ends meet, so that all of us would have something to eat. He built this house that we all lived in, with the help of some of our kin. But now he is gone to haven. where he'll never feel no pain. He'll never have to worry about the coldness or the rain. He's up there working on a mansion with a hammer in his hand. Doing something for the main man.

Or he may be building a table, with nine golden chairs, hoping that some day his family will sit up there. But now he is gone and left us all alone, for we will have to be so strong.

Be more like sister and brother and help one another and pull together and make this family one. Then our daddy will know that his work on earth has been done.

progressing, engineers working on four laning Hwy. 280 expect the project to be completed ahead of schedule.

According to Project Engineer Ellis Perrin, the job should be finished by June 1979.

But some residents living along the route aren't altogether happy about the effect of the new road on their property.

Mrs. Mildred DeStafino, who lives near the top of Double Oak Mountain, became alarmed this week when huge boulders began to block the driveway leading to her home.

She was also concerned that her access to the highway was up too steep a grade, plus the fact that water was pouring down the incline when it rained, causing flooding on her property.

However, the boulders have now been moved, and Highway Department officials have assured Mrs. DeStafino that an access road will be built allowing her a good entrance onto the

At the rate construction is Engineer K.B. Davis, the access road will be extended an additional 500 feet east to give Mrs. DeStafino a better connection with the highway.

The service road will also keep Mrs. DeStafino's driveway from being too steep, Davis said. But he related there isn't much that can be done about the water situation.

"In road building, we always try and keep water in the same course it's always been in," the engineer remarked. And since the area is mountainous, he indicated that water apparently has always run onto the

But Mrs. DeStafino thinks the road construction has worsened the situation and claims her driveway has been washed out during a storm. She also recounted that water was "knee deep in her son's yard, which is adjacent to her own.

Highway Department engineers say they try and work with families along the construction route in trying to solve any problems. But Mrs. DeStafino fears the road project will According to Construction cause a devaluation of her property.

Columbiana decides to go into garbage collection business

New Christmas lights will be shining down on Columbiana streets this year and city fathers also hope to improve the garbage collection situation.

At a called meeting last Thursday, the panel agreed to buy 12 rebuilt units from Dixie Decoration and to approach merchants about paying the cost of lighting in front of their businesses.

With a deduction for the city's old lights, the total cost of the new units will amount to $4,980. By asking merchants to bear part of the cost, the city will be able to stay under the bid

Since the contract for the city's garbage collection expires in November, the panel took a hard look at doing the job themselves. And although some viewed the undertaking with trepidation, the council finally decided to give it a try.

According to Finance Chairman Paul Smith, under the contract providing back door pickup service this past year, the city lost between $10-12,000.

With rising prices, Smith reported the same service next year would put the city $27,000 in the hole, "And we can't eat that," he declared.

The panel had hoped to acquire a used collection vehicle from the City of Gardendale. However, their bid of $20,500 was too low.

Smith reported the council would continue to look around and try and get the best buy in a garbage truck.

While considering the "do-it-ourselves" proposition of collecting garbage, Councilman Bill Seales was fearful labor problems and breakdowns of the vehicle would both be sticky problems.

But Wayne Crowson, who sells garbage collection vehicles, told the council the demonstrator truck he would like them to buy, would be repaired the next day in case of break down. He also mentioned a backup truck would be provided. Crowson's price was $31,800.

Since extra men would have to be hired to continue back-door pickups, the council agreed they would probably have to go to curbside

However, they stipulated that physically disabled customers and individuals over 65 would still have their garbage picked up at the backdoor.

The panel seemed to concur with Councilman Harold McCord who expressed the feeling the city should try picking up garbage for a year under the supervision of City Manager, Buck

"If it doesn't work out, we can alwa ys sell the truck and get out of it," he remarked.

Football on his mind

Football is in the faces and minds of everyone lately, and this tricky double-exposure by Richard Crosby illustrates that football players are concerned about it too. Calera's Ricky Winterbottom is the faceless

Calera claims second win of '78 with victory over Montgomery Catholic

by Richard Crosby

Despite a scoreless first half, the Eagles regrouped in the locker room and came out with scoring in mind....it didn't take them long to accomplish that goal.

On the second-half kickoff, Arthur Johnson recovered the ball on Catholic's 35. Four plays later, Gary Griffith connected for a 17 yard touchdown pass to Bill Seay. Gary Smith carried for the conversion to make the score 8 to 0.

In the fourth quarter, the Eagles got eight more points with a six play 89 yard drive. Smith carried the final 14 yards for the touchdown and then two yards for the conversion, making the score 16-0.

Calera coach Rick Cairns. "We played without (Steve) Roberson most of the game, that hurt us."

Roberson suffered a slight shoulder separation last week, but came into the game in the third quarter to engineer the Calera offense. Although he didn't get hit on the shoulder during the game, he did get bumped around a bit and now it seems that the senior signal caller will be out for this week's game against Jemison.

"His not playing is really going to hurt us," stated Cairns. "We've still got a couple of other places where play. Last year we beat them with a blocked punt which we ran back for a touchdown," Cairns commented. Last year the score ended with Calera 12 and Jemison 7.

The Eagles' game drew a big crowd despite threatening clouds. Cairns cited Dale Smith as his leading defender with 21 tackles and one pass interception. Also turning in a good performance were Tommy Lee Thomas, Jeff Stewart and Curtis Barefield.

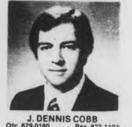

Gary Smith led all rushers on offense with 146 yards in 23 carries.

Jemison comes to Calera for this year's game which is one of the hottest rivalries in the area. Fans can expect a tough game regardless of injuries that may keep some of the Calera regulars from playing. A win this week could prove that the Eagles are indeed a team that has to be reckoned with and from all indications they will have to be.

Ground squirrel heavily hunted

For Better Hunting and Fishing by Earl Franklin Kennamer Do you realize the ground squirrel is heavily hunted? According to the 1975 National Survey of Hunting & Fishing, hunters spent more than 36 million days hunting ground squirrels and woodchucks, the latter better known to most of us as "ground hogs."

These two mammals belong to a group of game which receives little publicity or attention. In second place in this group is the crow. The fox ranks third, and the coyote, fourth. These species are usually considered economic pests and are not hunted for food. A Tennessee writing buddy and hunter, when we were at the recent Outdoor Writers Association of America meeting at Virginia Beach, smacked his lips and told me he had just fried a young woodchuck. "Mouth watering!" he said. I tried crow once a wildlife banquet and declared, "Never again!" I believe I can now understand the expression, "Let 'em

While we're on hunting statistics you should also know big game hunting draws the biggest spenders. The 16.3 million small game hunters spent only 1.69 billion dollars, while 13 million big game hunters spent 2.56 billion dollars! Individually, the rabbit and squirrel shooter plunked down $103.68 for the season, as compared to $196.92 by the deer, elk, bear, etc. nimrod. Small game hunters also went afield more than twice as many days as the big game hunter. Moral of these data: if you want to make that outing dollar go farhter, stick to hunting tree branch bushytails and brierpatch bunnies.

Raiders win again

by Richard Crosby

The Raiders continued their quest toward the Private School playoffs with another victory last Friday night. Shelby Academy claimed a 20 to 7 win over visiting Talladega

Coach Gene Hulsey praised his team for its effort. "We played really well," the coach commented. "We gave up only four first downs and they (Talladega) couldn't have gotten more than 30 yards rushing."

"Our defense put in a total team effort. Everybody was around the ball," stated the Raiders head coach.

Shelby's first score came in the second quarter at the culmination of a 54 yard drive. Jeff Lackey carried the final 13 yards for the six points. Quarterback Joey Martin connected with Randy Calhoun for the conver-

On the Raiders next possession, they drove 62 yards for their final score. With 7:01 left in the game, Sammy Nabors burst for a 45 yard touchdown run. The PAT was wide.

In the final minutes of the game, Talladega got a consolation score set up by a long pass completion. The PAT was good, but it was too little too late as the Raiders claimed their fourth straight win in as many

The Raiders head this week to Southern Academy and then to Warrior the next week. "I think we'll play well on the road," commented Hulsey. "We don't think it will be much different. The team is beginning to be a real close-knit group."

Hulsey named Clifton Garrett, Jeff Hall, Brendon McClary, Jeff Lackey and Jim Terrell as defensive stalwarts in the game.

Southern Academy has a record It wasn't until the fourth quarter of 3-0-1 and has a real fine ball club according to Hulsey. "They are about the best in 2A competition," according to Hulsey's estimation.

Hornets sting T.C.T.S. 14-7

by Richard Crosby

"It feels good to win," states coach Richard Conkle. The Hornets claimed their second win of '78 last Friday by downing an improved T.C.T.S. team 14 to 7.

The game wasn't as close as the score indicated though as the two interceptions on defense. Chelsea team gave up a fumble early in the third quarter which Talladega picked up and took in for a 27 yard touchdown. That score was made against the number two offensive unit, Chelsea's Conkle said.

Chelsea never led Talladega in the game as the defense allowed only 89 yards rushing while protecting a 14-0 lead. Chelsea's younger players saw a lot of action in the game.

The Hornets scored first on a 75 yard drive with Chuck Cox getting the call for the final seven yards.

same as last

If history does repeat itself, then the University of Montevallo can anticipate a pretty good year in golf when the regular season rolls around

On Thursday, Sept. 14, the UM golfers took part in the Troy State Invitational at Rolling Hills Country Club in Montgomery, and the Falcons came in with an 18-hole, four-player score of 315, good for 7th place out of eight teams.

On the face of it, that doesn't appear too impressive, but as Gregg Smith, one of last year's players who is back from his second season, noted, "We started off just this way last year. We came down to Rollin Hills and shot a 317, which was disappointing, and that's what we did this year -- we played bad."

It is a matter of record that, before the fall was out, the Falcons had won the North Alabama Invitational in Forence, then proceeded to finish second in the NAIA District 27 Tournament in May to cap off the finest year in UM golf

"I was disappointed in their play, and I'm sure they were, too," said UM coach Leon Davis. "Gregg and Les (Holcombe) and Barry (Greene) are much beter than they showed, and I think Jeff Stonebraker was just trying too hard, this being his first tournament for us."

In the recent primary Mrs. Jim Allen—running to complete the two years of her husband's term in the U.S. Senate—carried 55 out of Alabama's 67 counties.

Now she asks Alabamians for their support to keep going the conservative principles and work carried on so long and so well by her late husband, Senator Jim Allen. Mrs. Allen has already worked diligently in the U.S. Senate making these key votes this summer:

FOREIGN AID

Mrs. Allen has voted against over $10 billion in foreign giveaways, including: June 26-against this year's multi-billion-dollar foreign aid package. June 28-against State Department programs for "international development assistance. July 31—against proposed contributions to foreign banks.

GUN CONTROL

Mrs. Allen opposes government interference with the Constitutional right "to keep and bear arms.

June 27-for an appropriations amendment prohibiting funding of regulations which would require registration of firearms.

NATIONAL DEFENSE

Like Jim Allen, Maryon believes our country must be strong to remain free. July 11—for continuation of B-1 bomber research and development.

TAX RELIEF

Maryon Allen continues the fight for reduced federal taxes on wage earners and small businesses.

August 5—for tuition tax credit.

Pledge—to vote for the Tax Reduction Act of 1978.

In all, Mrs. Allen has cast 167 votes since being appointed by Governor Wallace in early June. Help her keep going Jim Allen's fight and yours by sending her back to the U.S. Senate with your vote on September 26.

UM downs Tuskegee

Are the University of Montevallo the team to beat, even if others say it. Lady Falcons the team to beat in Alabama small college volleyball this

The fact that the Lady Falcons posted a heart-throbbing 3-2 victory over Tuskegee Institute, the defending state champion, in their season-opening match at Montevallo last Tuesday evening, Sept. 12, would seem to indicate that they are. But, UM coach Beverly Warren isn't quite ready to stake her claim to any first-place ranking - not yet, anyway.

"Beating Tuskegee, which was probably the team to beat in most people's minds, puts us in kind of an awkward position," Coach Warren admitted. "The other teams will be 'up' for us now, and we will be 'the game' for them. Sure, some teams will the perfect pass like we have been be gunning for us, but I can't say we're doing.'

BECKY HENSLEY SAYS...

For this one particular night, however, Montevallo was the team to beat, but the Lady Falcons were not without some close moments in this rematch of last year's state championship contest.

Although pleased with the win, Coach Warren realized that "we are weak where I expected we would be in teamwork. By that I mean that we did not talk and communicate as well as I thought we should have, so some of our plays were not run the way they should have been. I expected that early, though.

"We will be working on our consistency now, because we are still unpredictable. We also must learn to play everything, instead of waiting for getting a cancellation, Pelham took the final two minutes when Wintermid-field and then drove the ball into the endzone.

Actually Pelham had two early opportunities to put points on the scoreboard.

In the first quarter, the Panthers blocked a Bulldog punt and carried it into the endzone, but the ball was called back and Pelham was assessed a roughing-the-kicker penalty.

Again in the first quarter Pelham took over the ball on the Bulldog 30 and drove inside the Winterboro 10 yard line. On fourth down, the Bulldogs stiffened and held the eager Panthers from paydirt.

This week Pelham faces an apponent it has never beaten. Oak Grove has claimed a victory for the past two years over the Panthers, and although they haven't won a game so far this year, the Tigers are always a tough opponent for the

"We're just going to have to bring up some people from the Bteam," stated Bailey. "We've been averaging one operation a week," commented the coach who has lost five starters thus far this year. Three of those are out for the year while the other two are expected to return before the season ends.

"Injuries and illness have taken their toll," stated Bailey who explained that he wasn't offering that for an excuse, but more of a way of explaining that the team has had to bring in younger starters to replace those who haven't been able to play.

Pelham only accounted for 76 yards total offense in the game played at Winterboro. "Our defense played real well but we stayed out there so long they wore us down. But, we'll go along and play respectable," Bailey concluded.

While injuries have certainly limited the panthers offense, the attitude and willingness of the team remains very much alive, and you can't count the team out. The team is still contending to establish a winning season and as tough as they play you can bet the Panthers will

by Marcia M. Sears

Charles Knowles will be the new Shelby County Superintendent of Education. He led the race in Tuesday's runoff election by an unofficial vote of 7,556. His opponent, Dr. Norma Rogers, tallied 5,311 votes in the contest.

In the race for Shelby County Tax Assessor, Bobbie Reynolds kept her post with an unofficial narrow vote of some 6,298 against her opponent, Annette Skinner, who polled 6,085 votes. In this race, it was back and forth all during the evening as votes were tallied, with the outcome uncertain until all boxes were in.

The place on the Shelby County Commission was taken by Alabaster Mayor Harold Davenport, who outpolled Charles Seales by a margin of about 449 votes out of some 11,800

Charles Knowles majority was heavy in most areas of the county, but Dr. Rogers outpolled him heavily in Beat 12 (north Shelby County) and was ahead in Paelham and Chelsea.

In the courtroom just after his election was assured, the Superintendent- elect told the Reporter, "Naturally, I'm very proud, and especially impressed by the interest the people showed in this race, with almost 13,000 voting. I have to express my appreciation to all those who worked in the campaign. We ran on an "All the Children" platform, and in order to be successful, we're going to have to have the support of all the people and I earnestly solicit their support."

In races of statewide interest, Shelby County voters went heavily for Fob Ames for Governor over Bill Baxley, With 32 of 37 boxes counted the tally was running about 7,106 to George McMillan was the favorite of Shelby County voters over Bert Bank in the race for Lieutenant overnor.

Howell Heflin was the local choice over Walter Flowers for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by veteran Senator John Sparkman.

Donald Stewart surged ahead of Senator Maryon Allen in the Shelby County vote. With five boxes still out, STewart polled 6,498 votes to Mrs. Allen's 4,828.

Charles Graddick swamped Joe Fine in the local vote for Attorney General by a vote of more than two to

Other Shelby County favorites Engineer Henry Padgett went into were Don Siegelman for Secretary of State over Martha Adams; Annie Laurie Gunter over Juanita McDaniel for State Treasurer; and Pete Matthews over Charles Gaddy for Public Service Commission, place 1.

Water slide project halted in Alabaster

by Bert Seaman

While water slides are considered a ot of fun, residents of the Hickory Hills area of Alabaster don't want one n their back yards.

However, the Mayor didn't show ip for what the group believed was a cheduled meeting. But Davenport plained the next day, he hadn't been ware of the gathering.

Although he said he'd discussed a neeting with Mrs. Sandra Templin, pokesperson for the Hickory Hills esidents, Davenport reported he adn't been able to contact the uilder, Greg Taylor who was to be

But when Davenport failed to appear at the Monday evening neeting, the crowd at city hall considered presenting their petition bearing 107 names to the Mayor at the Thompson-Shelby County High School game in Columbiana.

After some discussion, the group indicated they would pursue legal means to settle the problem, believing that the city wasn't going to help

Defending his position the next lay, Mayor Davenport declared that he'd been working on a solution to the problem since it had been brought to

"My concern is for the people of that area," Davenport said, adding "We're trying to find out now where the city stands.'

After Templin met with the Mayor on Tuesday, it appears that the unhappy subdivision residents will it for the city to take the next step.

Area residents have been perturbed about the recreation facility being built in their residential neighborhood, and have been trying to resolve the problem for the past two

They contend that traffic would create a major problem on the dead end streets in the neighborhood,

Computer printing of word 'Leeds' on tax notices causes confusion

No one in Shelby County is going to be charged for "Leeds City Tax" unless they own property in that section of Leeds which is within Shelby County.

Tax Collector Fay Quick has been receiving dozens of telphone calls since the tax notices went out last week from people who are confused about the printing lines on the notices.

Mrs. Quick explains that when the forms were printed, the names of the ten cities that lie totally within Shelby County were printed on the forms with a space for showing how much tax a citizen owed for property within Quick issued the following statement

The sum is repeated on the right hand side of the form as "City Tax".

The confusion arises because the word "Leeds" was not printed on the forms in the same style as the other towns, and had to be added by computer. It unfortunately appears to be on the same line as the words "City Tax" giving many people the idea they are being charged for "Leeds City smaller business aircraft. It will require land acquisition to do what is in the plan we have today, but it can be revised: less in fee simple, more in easement." The proposal does not include widening the runway, he said. The County Commission voted to

DPS director Fulton to retire

Nell J. Fulton is retiring this week after 28 years as Shelby County's Director of Pensions and Security.

She assumed her duties on June 1, 1950 with a staff of seven. The work of the department has grown to the point that the staff has now reached

Mrs. Fulton told the Reporter she has been happy to see social services expanded as times have changed during the years she served as director.

Services in the field of protecting children and adults from abuse and neglect have been developed, and a program for handling children in foster care has been increased.

Several other programs, including food stamps, are among recent additions to the overall services of the department.

During Mrs. Fulton's tenure, the county offices have been in four different locations, beginning in the old county courthouse. The offices were moved to a house across the street, then moved to the courthouse annex when it was built, and in recent years was moved to its present location in the Community Facilities

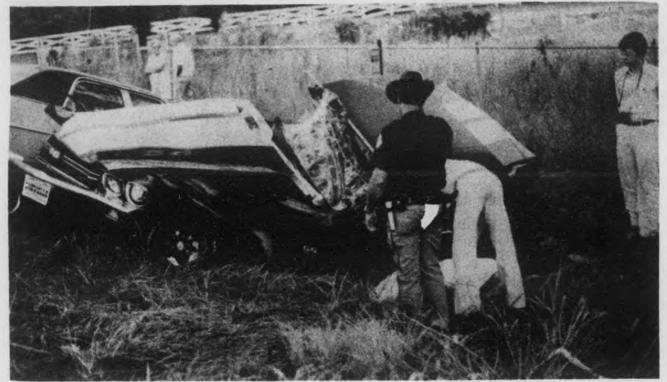

Mrs. Fulton is a graduate of the University of Alabama and Tulane School of Social Work.

She is a member of the American Public Welfare Association, held the office of vice president of Alabama Association of County Directors of Pensions and Security, and is a member of the Alabama Conference of Social Work.

Library Board seeks funds

The Shelby County Library Board wants the county to budget $69,633 for its needs in the 1979 fiscal year.

Mildred Harrison, Board chairman, and all members of the board appeared at the Commission meeting Monday to make their request.

Mrs. Harrison outlined the critical situation at the library, by pointing out, "We have not added staff in nine years and have had very little increase in budget. Yet the population of the county has grown tremendously." She added, "Inflation has cost a 25% reduction in buying power."

At the same time, she said, the number of books circulated has grown to 400,000 and 2,000 new borrowers have recently been added.

"County growth is what has gotten us in this crunch," she said.

The board wants to add an McGraw, Mrs. Tom Harper and Mrs. assistant director to help with the increased work load and wants to increase the salaries of the present workers, some of whom "have worked for the library for years and still make very little more than a beginning to prepare the budget for the next courthouse worker."

If approved, the new assistant director would be paid $5,000 from county funds and a matching amount from a federal grant.

Mrs. Harrison said, the library has cut back on utility bills to the extent the building is hot in summer and cold in winter. There has been no hot water since April as another cost-cutting measure, she said.

Librarian Sidney Teague also presented a strong case for the budget increases. Board members present were Mrs. Albert Scott, Mrs. Richard Among facts that were brought up in the discussion were "Bessemer is the relief airport for Birmingham. Shelby County is not," and "The principal users of the airport are businessmen from north Shelby County who utilize their aircraft for business where speed is a factor."

Area residents said planes fly so low over their homes they can sometimes read the numbers on the planes.

Those who attended the meeting were: Mrs. Hugh Youngblood, B.V. Hansen, Elaine Richmond, Mrs. Frank Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Thomason, Mrs. Jack L. Ward, Bill Knowles, Letha Hopwood and Mr. and Mrs. Forrest R. Crim.

Pemberton of Route 1, Calera was apparently killed instantly in the U.S. Highway 31 accident.

State Troopers said Pemberton was killed when the northbound Chevelle he was driving ran off the right hand side of the road, then pulled back onto the pavement and collided with a southbound car.

The southbound Plymouth was driven by Jack Wyatt of Calera. Wyatt was taken by ambulance to Shelby Memorial Hospital. He suffered broken bones, internal injuries and lacerations, according to reports.

You've made provisions to guard your money against theft. Or have you?

Any money you own that isn't workingearning money for you-is steadily losing value. In fact, the dollar you earn today will buy about one half of what it would buy in 1967. The thief that's stealing from all of us is inflation. Don't let the money you've worked to earn lose its buying power before you get to use it! With a United Federal Telephone Transfer Account, you can put all your non-earning money to work and still have it available.

When you need it, just pick up the phone and call us. United Federal will transfer your money right into your bank checking account. That way your money will earn 51/2% interest compounded daily, right up until the day you transfer it. Keep $1,000 or more balance in the account and make any number of transfers of $100 or more. It's free—and transfers can be made any time during working hours by telephone or in person.

Let us figure what your non-earning funds would earn in this account—then decide for yourself if it's worth a phone call. Look around. There's probably a United Federal "Office" where you are right now. Reach for it, call for

Bureaucracy can be curbed by recycling

Creeping bureaucracy.... Increased costs of government.... These concepts are deplored by almost everyone, and by no one more than a person who is running for a public office.

Around election time the voters seem to wake up with a shock and realize governmental costs have run away from them. How did it happen? When did they go up so fast?

Sherman Holland told the County Commission Monday that he could build an agri-center building for less money than the building proposed by M.M. Argo and his associates.

Holland also said that the county itself could build it for less than either of the private firms, because the county would get an interest rate of about 6% where private firms would have to pay over 10%.

The Commission has been studying the need for more space for county offices for several months, and the private firms have advanced plans to build space to house the various agriculture-related agencies in one building on county property near the present location.

Nobody apparently knew that Shelby County would be charged for the special computer production work. The men from Burroughs Company who did the work told the County Commission Monday they were not aware at the time that the company would charge the costs of the production work to the county.

The problem arose when Tax Assessor Bobbie Reynolds asked Burroughs to see why the county computer was not turning out the work she needed by a certain deadline. They told the Commission Monday they found a key punch error, corrected it, and then ran off the lists in 90 hours.

The Burroughs company had previously helped the county on several occasions in transferring from the old NCR computer to the new Burroughs last spring, without charge.

The incident has highlighted personality hassles within the courthouse and among office personnel who depend on the Burroughs Co. suggested to the Commission that Fred Wamble, the new computer department director, has not had time until now to set up an organization of the files and programs. Bethea Company were renewed by the June 1, 1950, Last January I made my County Commission Monday after an appeal was made by company attorney Wheeler Smith.

The exemptions were originally granted for 10 year periods, but the company had failed to renew them when a merger took place last year.

The Commission had discontinued granting tax exemptions for new or expanding industries, but because these exemptions had been made long responsibility law back in the fifties, ago, the Commission agreed by a 3 to 1 vote (Jake Morris casting the negative vote) to continue them until the time they would normally have under that law now.

Smith said that 300 people are employed at the Bethea plants in Shelby County. He also said the company is adding $11/2 million in new good time for citizens to look at the needs of their county government and help their elected officials make some hard decisions. Should another new government building be built in Shelby

There is no doubt the work of government offices that serve Shelby County is increasing with the population growth.

Changes in the court system, with the addition of two assistant district attorneys, a district judge, and next January, with the addition of a third circuit judge, all require more physical space so the officials and their staffs can handle the work of justice.

The new tax reappraisal has added voluminous new records and maps to the tax assessor's office.

At the same time, however, computerization and microfilming are reducing the amount of space required for many records.

The new jail will clear out the entire third floor of the courthouse annex within a few days. The old Columbiana elementary school (owned however, by the state, not the county)

Right now, in Shelby County, is a will be available in January when the new school is completed.

Is more space really needed? Can existing spaces be converted to new needs? What will it all cost?

The County Commission is seriously studying plans advanced by two private groups to build an agri-center building, and is also studying the relative costs of having the county build it.

Every new building requires utilities, telephones, janitors and repair. Every new office employee requires a desk, a typewriter, and, apparently, a coffee maker, to handle a day's work. Every item increases the cost of government.

By the time this is read, the new county officials will be elected, and charges of "bureaucratic waste" and governmental inefficiency" may die down. But if the voters want to see that governmental costs in Shelby County increase only in proportion to growing needs, they should talk to their elected officials right now and let them know what they really think about the matter.

Pelham resident states displeasure with council

Letter to Editor:

I was completely shocked at the procedure and attitude of the Pelham City Council when I attended their meeting on September 18, 1978 at the Pelham City Hall. I was there, as were many others because of a zoning vote on their agenda concerning two tracts of land along U.S. 31 and old Highway 31 near Riverchase, Woodale and Indian Hills.

School buses load and unload in this area every school day. If a child is ever involved in an accident (and it could be one of my boys) or killed because of the heavy traffic load B2 zoning can cause, I know each councilman will remember how he voted and if he forgets I'm sure the area parents will remind him.

The Pelham City Council voted the exact opposite of how the citizens of the areas had asked them to vote. The Council made it very clear they neither cared about the concerned citizens involved, nor would they respond to them.

Well, Mr. Councilmen Jowers, Hamilton, Payne, Tanner and Mayor Dunaway, the citizens of Pelham will respond on the next election day for Pelham City Councilmen and Mayor.

For those not there I would like to note that Councilman Todhunter voted against the B2 zoning on one of the tracts involved. Councilman Tanner was absent.

Words of Life

Our Misunderstood Bible (cont'd) Though God intended for man to be able to understand the Bible, many do not have a proper concept of what the Bible teaches. Among the causes are the following:

Third, many people misunderstand the books of the Bible. The books of the Old Testament point to Christ's coming. (Genesis 3:15) The Old Testament books served as a schoolmaster to bring us to Christ. (Galatians 3:24) The Gospels produce faith in Christ (John 20:30, 31) Acts of Apostles tells one what to do to become a Christian; it is the book of conversions. The Epistles tell how to live the Christian life. Revelation depicts the triumph of God's people over evil.

Fourth, many people misunderstand the verses of the Bible. Many have not understood that the Bible was broken down into verses by man. They expect too much from one verse. They expect to get the whole plan of salvation from one verse. However, there is not one verse in the Bible that gives the whole plan of salvation. We must take the whole counsel of God. (Acts 20:27) We Fifth, many people misunderstand stated, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved" (Mark 16:16), some try to get salvation before baptism in water. Though Peter commanded, "Repent and be baptized for the remission of sins" (Acts 2:38), some try to get remission of sins before baptism.

The time has passed so quickly.

I have had many interesting experiences and have seen many changes come about in our welfare program in Alabama. Some of these we have liked and some we have not. We have known all along how hard it is for you to live on a grant that may not even be 50 % of your budgeted need, which is based on the agency's budget

I am afraid it is the fault of all of us public welfare workers in Alabama that the true welfare story is not told to the public, especially to the legislators, until a real crisis arrives and then sometimes it is too late. You see, we are so bowed down with required paper work and complexities of the program that our time and energy is used up. We must give the paper work priority lest we lose the federal funds which you need desperately. I think it is going to be necessary that each of you tell the welfare story, your own story, to the people and especially to those who represent you in state government. I think you will be heard.

"We also had to replace some parts," remarked Brasher, adding that the mill which hadn't been used for years, was found covered with leaves.

It took several months to clean and repair the equipment, but that was only one part of the project. Perhaps the most trying part of the undertaking was training the two young mules who had never been harnessed.

But Bob and Jim, the names given to the animals, proved Saturday they'd learned how to perform their task. With only occasional coaxing, they trod the circular path around the mill in the same manner as their ancestors.

Besides working with the mules, the enterprising family also grew the cane on land near the Antioch Church where Brasher is pastor. "We ordered the seed from a catalog," Brasher recounted, plowed the land, and tended and harvested the crop.'

Whether or not the family repeats the operation next year depends on the boys, Brasher says. Friends and neighbors who were on hand Saturday to watch or help with the operation and taste the syrup undoubtedly hope the Brashers will do it again.

Needless to say, we at Southern Railway are happy about all this because each time the South grows, we grow, too.

After all, who do you think carries the raw materials to the new plants that are part of this growth? And their finished goods to market? In large measure, we do.

And, as the South's population grows who do you think brings the things these people need? The cars, the carpets, the appliances, the clothing, the sporting goods and the food? Largely, we do.

But, we're not growing just to keep up with the ever-increasing population. We're growing to be prepared for an even bigger

"Family-Centered Maternity Care"

The Childbirth Center, located on the north end of the hospital, introduces the first birthing room in Alabama approved by the State Department of Public Health and the first known facility in the Southeast which is specifically designed for family-oriented childbirth.

The Center will focus on the concept of infant-mother bonding and family-centered maternity care, encourage modified rooming-in and include pre-natal classes and post-natal instructions in newborn care.

Conventional labor and delivery facilities and a 10-bassinet nursery are also part of the Childbirth Center.

Shirley reunion

slated Sunday

The Shirley family will hold their annual reunion this Sunday at the home of Gene Shirley in Helena.

All the family members are invited to bring their dinner and eat under the trees on the lawn.

Shirley said he expects 75 to 100 members of the family to come, some coming from as far away as Chicago and New York.

Dinner will be served at 12:15.

Alabaster zoning

City Council minutes show that the designation of the land previously owned by Earl Standifer, was changed from R-1 to B-2 in 1973. The Mayor pointed out that the Planning and Zoning Board had recommended the change because the steep grade of the property made it unsuitable for housing.

The contractor had reportedly planned to put up an office building, but recently sold the land to Taylor. Notice of the change was posted in four public places as prescribed by

Plans for the recreation facility were approved by City Building Inspector Milton Allen, and a septic tank and field lines have already been put in.

In addition to Hickory Hills residents, names on the petition protesting the water slide belonged to homeowners in nearby Brown Circle, Lake Lane, and Hillwood Sub-divisions,

Montevallo Council approves bill payment, clears way for new fiscal year

Montevallo's city council, in an effort to "clear the decks for the new fiscal year" approved payment of all bills during its regular meeting Monday

City Clerk Don Hughes explained that all bills on hand would normally be paid during the first week of October. Because the city begins a new fiscal year on October 1, Hughes requested approval of the council to pay bills on hand in an effort to close out the 1977-78 fiscal year.

In other business coming before the city's governing body, five applications for beer or liquor licenses were submitted to the council. Council members rejected two applications and postponed action on the other three. (See separate story.)

Councilman Herbert Milstead, chairman of the city's streets committee, reported to council members that the project of paving nearly a block of Wilson Drive is complete except for the curbing on one side of the street. Milstead and Hughes also reported receiving compliments from officials of other cities on Montevallo's new street identification signs.

Council members approved a suggestion by Milstead and Hughes that curbing on a half block of Valley Street between Middle and Vine Streets be painted yellow.

The possibility of establishing an office for the city's Recreation Director was discussed. No action was taken. The possible consolidation of the city's Park and Recreation Board with the city's Park and Recreation Committee was discussed. Action may be taken on this proposal during the next meeting of the council.

Helena PTA compiles cookbook

Have you ever dined at a friend's house and savored a particular dish only to have your 'friend' refuse to divulge the ingredients of the treat?

Now, through the efforts of the Helena Elementary P.T.A., you'll be able to compare and swap tried-and-true recipes of Helena residents.

The P.T.A. has compiled a cookbook of recipes ranging from the before-meal appetizer to the after-dinner dessert and everything in "Our Favorite Recipes" contains 325 easy-to-follow guides for preparing foodstuffs.

The culmination of a year's work, the cookbook also has charts of information on carving meats, deep fat frying and seasoning foods.

Mrs. Fred (Jane) Holmes, librarian at Helena Elementary, helped gather the recipes for the book from residents and friends.

One of her many contributions to the cookbook is "Dill Seed Casserole Bread," a different taste in bread

Pointing out the recipe on page five, she said, "If you don't like dill, it can be left out." Another ingredient, cottage cheese, cannot be detected in the bread, she said.

Beer license denied in Indian Springs

A license to sell beer at a location across the street from Indian Springs School was denied by the County Commission Monday.

Real estate developer Denny Barrow asked the Commission to rule on the request he and others had placed several months ago. He explained that a convenience store would not come into the area unless a beer license were available, because food sales alone were not sufficient to support such a store.

Barrow cited statistics that convenience stores are a real service to the residents of the area, and that the average stay of each person in such a store is less than five minutes. "People don't hang around these stores."

The Commission said that the ABC officer for the county had not made a recommendation either way, because of the recent transfer of George Stove to other duties. The new person has apparently not yet been able to make a study Commissioner Ned Bearden noted.

Drive names chairman

St. Jude Children's Research Center has named chairmen for its fund drive in three Shelby County communities.

Gail Folmer will head up the drive in Columbiana; Mrs. Betty Parker is chairman for the Vandiver community, and Mrs. Mary Beavers is in charge of the door-to-door march in Harpersville.

Other key positions for the march will soon be filled, according to a St. Jude spokesman.

St. Jude's is the only research center dedicated exclusively to the study and conquest of catastrophic diseases of children.

The fund is planned for the week of October 3 through 8.

Cahaba Rescue hosts festival

The Cahaba Valley Volunteer Fire and Rescue Squad will sponsor a festival Friday and Saturday, September 29 and 30.

The festival will include a rummage sale, dart games and many other carnival-type games. Friday and Saturday nights the live band, Temporary Inn will play for a street

Festivities begin Friday at 10 a.m. and continue until midnight Saturday. The festival will be held where Highway 119 crosses Highway 280. Proceeds will go to the Cahaba Valley Volunteer Fire and Rescue Squad. Captain Gulledge is in charge.

Shelby County's Mark Bradley team didn't pull off the win."It hurts me real bad to lose. There were a lot of tears in the dressing room" Bradley stated.

"I'm proud to death of the way the players performed. We played a fine football team to a stand still. I've never been prouder!" Bradlev exclaimed.

The Wildcat head coach praised the efforts of many Shelby County players. "Our offensive line did a great job. I'm also very proud of James Kidd who blocked, ran and scored a touchdown. a fourth quarter drive with a fumble period, Shelby County's James Kidd rambled 18 yards for the game's first score. Kidd broke four tackles in route to the goal line. Scott Moody added the PAT to put the Wildcats on top 7 to 0.

The score came on a 53 yard march that included only two first downs and six plays.

Thompson's Troy Tannihill took the kickoff and ran it back 32 yards to start the Warriors on their own 47 yard line. Eleven plays later and four first downs, David Cofer bulled his way into the endzone from one yard out. Steve Smitherman added the PAT to tie the score at seven points apiece.

At the half, both teams had obviously disappointed that his almost equaled each others efforts as far as the statistics go. Shelby County had nine more yards total offense than Thompson, led by Kidd who was credited with 52 yards in 10 carries.

A renewed Thompson received the second half kickoff and starting from their own 27, the Warriors drove to the Wildcat five before being halted. From there, Smitherman attempted a 23 yard field goal but the kick went wide to the left and Shelby County took over with 6:02 left in the third period.

Twice during that march, Shelby County was confronted with fourth down plays, but a tough quarter-

Shelby County failed to move the back sneak by Head and an offsides penalty against Thompson kept the drive alive.

With 2:59 remaining in the ballgame, Kidd got the call from the 10 yard line. After bulling his way through the line and breaking several tackles, Kidd went down on the three and the ball popped loose with Thompson's David Cofer recovering.

Thompson then moved to just inches shy of the first down with 53 seconds remaining and then pulled the Wildcats off sides on a long count on the fourth down play.

That first down put the icing on the cake for Thompson who held on as the final seconds ticked off.

the six points. The conversion attempt failed.

Jemison evened the mark with just 50 seconds remaining in the half as Eddie Brown burst into the endzone on a one yard run. The Panthers conversion failed which left the score tied.

Visions of overtime started occurring to some fans as a tough third quarter failed to produce points for either team.

Bill Seav changed that just minutes into the final stanza on a thrilling 50 yard punt return for six points. Griffith ran the conversion to up the score to 14-6.

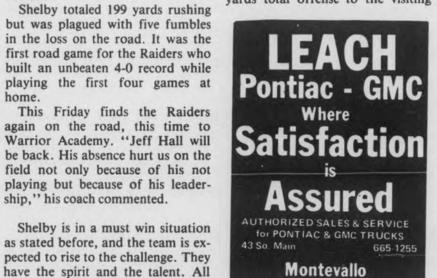

Calera started another drive late in the game. Seay got the call again and raced 35 yards for the gameclinching score. The PAT failed on Despite Seay's counting for all the points, Gary Smith proved he was back in top running form with 150 yards on 25 carries. Several times Smith seemed to have broken loose but the slippery turf tripped him up. Seay collected 50 yards on five carries.

Defense was the Eagles bragging. If there were any lingering questions about the strength of the unit, they were answered Friday night.

Dale Smith again led in the tackling department, but four other members also turned in fine performances. Lloyd King and Jeff Stewart each had 13 tackles and Arthur Johnson and Tommy Lee Thomas each had 11.

The defense only gave up 144 yards total offense to the visiting

"We've got out backs against the wall now. We can't afford to lose another game to make the playoffs," stated Gene Hulsey.

Hulsey related that the game was close all the way. "They had a good offense but didn't move the ball much on us all night."

Southern got its first score on a 37 yard field goal. Shelby got its only two points of the night on a safety after tackling the Southern tailback in the endzone. That made the score 3-2 after the first quarter, but Southern struck with quickness to get a better leading margin.

In the second quarter an 80 yard pass completion was good for six points. Add the PAT and Southern led 10-2.

That's the way the score stood until late in the fourth period when Southern scored the clinching touchdown. That score was aided by a major pass interference call against the Raiders.

"It was anybody's ball game till the final minute," stated Hulsey who added, "We didn't deserve to win but there aren't two touchdowns difference in us and Southern."

Raider's runningback Sammy Nabors collected 99 yards in 20 carries. Quarterback Joey Martin Egained 47 yards in 10 attempts.

catches giant bass

Gordon Kirkland of Columbiana landed a whopper of a largemouth bass last Saturday at a private lake in Columbiana.

Once the monster was put on the scales the weight was verified at 111/2 pounds.

It is naturally the largest bass Kirkland has ever caught. "Daddy has already cleaned it so I guess we'll be having it for supper soon," the 14 year-old son of Robert L. Kirkland stated.

Kirkland was using a purple worm with the giant jumped on the line. Last summer, the Columbiana Middle School student landed 81/2 pound bass.

Richard's Picks

by Richard Crosby

No matter what system I use I still can't get a perfect pick. So its back to instincts and luck.

PELHAM-THOMPSON - Too about all. Prediction: Thompson 48, Pelham 8.

CALERA-CHELSEA - The Hornets are hopping mad and they're sure they're a better football team than Montevallo made them look last week. With homecoming also in their favor it should be a tough game for both teams. If both teams can stay healthy the whole game Calera should have the upper hand. Prediction: Calera 26, Chelsea 21.

ACADEMY-SHELBY WARRIOR - The Raiders have to win and that situation should give them the incentive to pull out win number five. Warrior is going to be tough but in the end Shelby should have the trump cards. Prediction: Shelby 16, Warrior 7.

SHELBY COUNTY-BIBB COUNTY - The Wildcats need all the wins they can get and after two other county teams have beaten the Chocktaws, a third one should be easy. Prediction: Shelby County 15, Bibb County 0.

MONTEVALLO-JEMISON -Montevallo is a class football team and that should make the difference as Jemison loses another. It's the Panthers third county team to face and the results should be the same as the Bulldogs pull out another big win. Prediction: Jemison 13, Montevallo 32.

VINCENT-WINTERBORO -The Bulldogs are tough as Pelham found out two weeks ago and as Vincent will find out this Friday. I hate to spoil a homecoming but to 30 to 0. Winterboro won't as they defeat the Yellowjackets. Prediction: Vincent got its final score on a 40 yard pass 13, Winterboro 27.

COOSA VALLEY-BESSEMER bad Pelham has to lose another one, The Rebels need a win to keep but homecoming is not a game that playoff hopes alive and this week Thompson is going to lose. It might will be a tough test. If they can be close for a quarter but that's muster up the needed offense a win will be easy. If they rely on getting the breaks it could be the end. Prediction: Coosa Valley 12, Bessemer 8.

Here's hoping that I'm right or wrong depending on whose team you're cheering for.

Montevallo clobbers Hornets with five quick touchdowns

by Richard Crosby

If you missed the first quarter you missed most of the game. Chelsea watched Montevallo score three times without retaliating. "When my wife parked the score was 0 to 0. When she started walking around the field under the scoreboard it was 16 to 0, and when she got to the fence behind us the score was 24 to 0."

That's how fast most of the scoring went as Mrs. Richard Gilliam made her way into the stadium, according to her husband, Coach Richard Gilliam.

The Bulldogs upped their record to 2-2 with the decisive win over the swarming Hornets. Montevallo started the scoring quick as already stated. The Bulldogs took the ball on a 71 yard drive in six plays with Edd Green running the final five. Kevin Hughes passed to Marty Eddleman for the conversion.

On the first play of Montevallo's next possession, Hughes raced 75 yards on a quarterback keeper for six points. Sam Purnell ran for the conversion. After the kickoff, Jerome Tolbert intercepted a Chelsea pass and ran it back 32 vards for the third Bulldog score. That interception came on Chelsea's first play after receiving the kick. Edd Green added the conversion to make the score 24 to 0 and the Hornets found themselves backed against the

"We had some real crucial tur-novers early," commented coach Richard Conkle.

"We got behind quick. Montevallo has a real good football team. Gilliam had them ready. They really blitzed us in a hurry," the Hornet coach added.

Montevallo added two more touchdowns before the half. The first coming just one minute into the second quarter after a 64 yard drive. Purnell ran 10 yards for paydirt. The PAT failed as the score changed

Three minutes later, Montevallo

Eddleman. Again the PAT failed but the verdict was in.

"I was surprised at how quick the scoring came," stated Gilliam. "I was expecting a real hitting game but they didn't hit as hard as Thompson and Childersburg." Gilliam praised his offensive line which has undergone some recent changes. "They did a great job."

Defensive standouts were Tolbert

some luck to do. "We felt like we him out there. should have won the ballgame," stated Faith head coach Wayne Smith after the game. "We felt like we were the better football team. We enjoyed playing them though."

After a scoreless first half, Coosa Valley received the opening kickoff and raced for the goal line. The conversion failed.

The Rebels got their second score by intercepting a desperation pass by the Faith quarterback in the final seconds of the game. That put the ball on the three and they took it in from there.

"Coosa Valley couldn't do anything on us rushing," stated Smith. "We didn't have much trouble moving the ball, they just had a good goal line defense."

Rebel senior quarterback Steve Willingham saw limited action in the game. During the game against Shelby Academy, Willingham suffered a broken jaw. His jaw is wired

"It scared me to death when I saw him come in," stated Smith. "He could get hit and swallow his tongue

Home Decorating.

When re-finishing old furniture, you will find that paint and varnish removers are easy on your hands and are not the fire hazard they once were. Applied correctly, they can soften almost any amount of old paint and varnish. A quick rinse or brushing with water usually prepares your project for sanding and a brand-new, long-lasting coat of paint or varnish. When using presentday paint remover, you may find that the remover works better on tough paint if you first take off most of the residue with a scraper or putty knife. Then, rub it down with a pad of wet steel wool or a stiff brush dipped in water. When the wood is free of paint, rinse with water. Let the wood dry and you're ready to paint or stain.

'Jackets fall to Munford 21-18

by Richard Crosby

The game started like most games that Vincent wins, but it didn't end that way. The Yellowjackets dropped their third game of the year to Munford last Friday after leading 12

The lead was mounted in the first quarter as Mike Richey capped a fifty yard drive for a four yard run. Then Tony Abbott returned a munford punt 56 yards for another Vincent score. Both conversions failed, but Vincent seemed in command.

Behind 12 points, Munford woke up. Vincent fumbled on its own 15 and the Munford crew was quick to take advantage of it and at a PAT to make the score 12 to 7.

Minutes later, Munford pulled off a halfback pass good for 40 yards which put the ball on the Vincent three. Two plays later Munford had a touchdown, PAT, and the lead 14

Munford started the third quarter much as they had ended the second. This time they drove 60 yards for thier final score which upped the margin 21 to 12.

The Yellowjackets finally got back on the scoring track late in the fourth period with a 50 yard drive. Ouarterback James Oden passed 12 yards to Rodney Driggers for the score. Again the conversion failed.

Vincent had a final shot at taking a win, but was stopped by a penalty after driving to the Munford 30.

"Offensively we played pretty good," commented Vincent assistant coach Harold Garrett. "Mike Richey and James Oden did a good job moving the ball. Defensively, Mike Lee, Warren McGinnis, Aaron Baucum, Kenny Blankenship and Jimmy Womack performed well."

The loss moved Vincent's season record to 2-3 with a big game upcoming this week as the 'Jackets entertain Winterboro for their homecoming. Garrett described this week's foe as "Big team. They run from the 'I', the quarterback can throw real well and they grind out the yardage."

Garrett added that Vincent has been playing without the services of several of its regular starters. "We're hoping to have everyone back this week," Garrett noted.

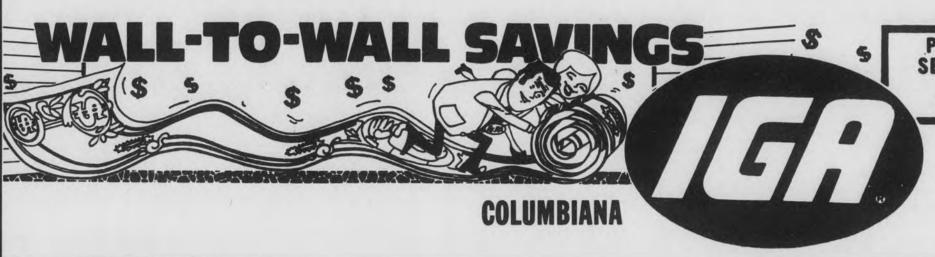

Winterboro is the second Area game for Vincent which earlier this season defeated Talladega County Training School. One thing in the 'Jackets favor will be the homecoming crowd which is sure to spark extra enthusiasm into the

Finally putting it all together, for one night at least, the University of Montevallo women's volleyball team scored a 3-0 shutout of Alabama A&M University on Friday night to complete a perfect 3-0 week of play. It was the first shutout of the season for the Lady Falcons, and raised their record to

Earlier in the week, the Lady Falcons had knocked off the University of North Alabama and the University of Alabama in Birmingha, both by 3-1 counts.

"I was much more pleased with our play against A&M than in our previous two matches," said UM coach Beverly Warren. "We ran our plays well, and we passed the ball well. Our serves were also excellent and kept them off balance."

"I've been quite pleased with the crowds," admitted Coach Warren, 'and I hope they keep coming, because I think we've got a good, exciting team."

After taking on Jacksonville State Sept. 25, the Lady Falcons have home matches Tuesday, Sept. 26, against Judson, and Thursday, Sept. 28, against Southern Benedictine. Both home games will be at 7 p.m. in Myrick Hall.

Collectively, Montevallo carded a 306 on Thursday and a 295 on Friday for a 601 score, finishing 18th among 28 teams entered. The 295 broke the UM record at Cullman Municipal Course of 297, set last year.

UM golf coach Leon Davis was quite pleased with the Falcons' efforts, pointing particularly to the fact that all six players shot sub-80 rounds both days. "I can't recall that ever happening at Montevallo," Dr. Davis remarked, "and I think it points up the fact that we have probably more depth than we've ever had."

The UM golfers take to the links again on Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 9-10, in the Opryland Invitational Tournament in Nashville. Tenn. Dr. Davis calls this one of the finest golf tournaments in the nation, and he and his players are eager to show their stuff among some of the finest collegiate golfers in the country.

Creek Bowhunters name club champs

It was no surprise that Kenny Abbott claimed the Men's AA Club Championship this past Sunday at the Creek Bowhunters range in Vincent. Abbott had won every club shoot this past year and scored an average of 532 in claiming the top men's award.

Also claiming championships in the Men's Classes were Phil Carter with a 480 average to take the A Class, David Raia the B Class with a 422 average, and Wayne Wood with a 370 average to take the C Class.

Pam Wood won the Women's AA Class with an average of 442. Debbie Simmons won the A Class, averaging 378, Marilyn King the B Class with a 364 average, and Linda Hoagland the C Class with a 316 average.

Kevin Greene won the Youth Boys A Class with a 510 average. Scott Reynolds won the B Class and Curtis Rhodes, Jr. the C Class.

Darrin Roberson won the Cub Boys A Class with an average of 552. Keith Abbott took the B Class, and Mike Sneed, Jr. won the C Class.

Paula Wood won the Cub Girls A Class with a 436 average. Patty Wood won the B Class and Tammy Abbott the C Class.

The Club Championship Shoot culminated the year for the Creek Bowhunters who are now preparing for the hunting season. Prior to the opening of the bow season on deer, the club annually holds a 'One Arrow' shoot.

The dates for the shoot have not been decided upon yet, but should be announced next week

Falcon basketball practice underway

Now comes the dirty work.

Players hate practice because they get too tired, it lasts too long, and the rewards are not obvious. Coaches hate practice because they have too much to teach and not tice; they just care about what the team does in a real game.

Nevertheless, practice is an important part of any team's work, opener, and I just hope we blend and it must be done. The University of Montevallo Falcons, who spent two weeks at the start of school in preliminary practice, begin the real thing this weekend, heading for the 1978-79 basketball season opener on Nov. 17 against Christian Brothers College in the Montevallo Tip-Off Tournament.

"I can't remember ever having so little experience returning," admitted UM head coach Bill Elder. The Falcons lost eight lettermen and have five returning.

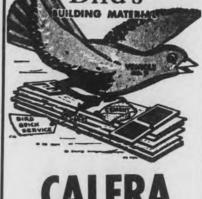

There are nine new faces on the roster, however, and Elder has been quite pleased with most of them, from all that can be discerned from a two-week workout

"There have been some surprises, and some disappointments, but I think most of these kids can play," Elder remarked. "Right now it would be really difficult to pick a starting five, because we have so many that are right close together, talent-wise."

So, it is with this group (unproven but talented veterans and unknown but promising recruits) that the Falcons steer toward the new enough time to teach it in. Fans season. "We've got a tough don't care what happens in prac- schedule, particularly with earlyseason conference games," notes Elder . "There's a lot to do and a lot to teach between now and the together and jell early.'

With plenty of application of that 'dirty work" in practice, it could happen. The result could be another fine year for University of Montevallo basketball.

Civitans hold auction to benefit YAB

Everything from a hospital bed to an alarm clock will be auctioned off by four Civitan Clubs on October 7.

The event being held on the parking lot of the Alabaster Shopping Center is to give the Youth Aid Bureau a hand in raising the necessary $2,000 for matching funds.

Montevallo PTA meets

Publicity chairman Emily Pendleton announces that the PTA has voted to hold four meetings this year. The second meeting will be on

Send soil samples

in early for tests

The Shelby County Extension Serivce wants all gardeners and farmers to get their soil sampled early this Figures just released show that Shelby Countians sent 774 soil samples to Auburn University last year. Extension Agent John E. Jones says, "This is good, but we still have far too many growers who don't take advantage of this valuable tool. Farming is risky and expensive enough these days without guessing on something as important as soil nutrients."

Soil testing can show whether fertilizers and chemicals are needed, and if so, it can indicate which kinds are needed.

Auburn University has been encouraging Alabamians to test their soils for years, and the popularity of the program is growing. However, there is a rush of samples in the period from January through March, and the overload causes delays in getting results.

To avoid the rush, homeowners, Sunday gardeners and farmers are advised to send samples from September through December for spring planted crops.

Soil testing materials are now available at the county Extension office in Columbiana. Those who cannot come to the office can be advised by telephone (669-6763) where they can get soil testing county.

December 11 at the Montevallo Middle School, and the last two meetings on February 5 and April 2 will be held at the high school.

The nation has 3.5 million-plus motorcyclists, even though the danger of a fatal motorcycle accident is four times as great as a similar chance in a car. In the mid 1970's, says the National Safety Coucil, more than 325,000 motorcycles, motor scooters and motorbikes were involved in accidents each year and thousands of them were fatal. The weather outside was gloomy Thursday morning. But the day was brightened considerably for James B. Cook of Calera when two visiting nurses from the Shelby County Health Department stopped by for a routine

Cook, who was 91 in June, has received Home Health Care service for the past three years. And his daughter, Mildred, who looks after him, was enthusiastic in her praise of the nursing care.

"They've been wonderful to come whenever I've called," she exclaimed. Ms. Cook said that it relieved her mind knowing that help was available whenever she needed it.

According to Health Department nurse Maxine Smith, quality care is provided at lower cost than most other agencies can offer, and there's no charge for extra visits.

She explained that when patients are eligible for Medicare-Medicaid, reimbursement was received from these agencies. "And then we can give free care to those who need it," she Hospital referrals help both doctors and patients to become aware of the service. "The cooperation we've received from Shelby Memorial has been great!" Smith declared.

She also applauded the response of local physicians. Smith, who has recently moved to this area, said, "I've never been so impressed with the cooperation between doctors and the Health Department."

But there's a need, Smith pointed out, for the department's services to become more widely known. "We're working on getting our name in the pot in Birmingham hospitals.," she reported, "and during the past month we've been doing some discharge planning in some of the city medical facilities.

These efforts on the part of the Health Department, she pointed out, will provide a continuity of care for the patient when he or she goes home.

Nurses only visit patients who are under the care of a physician and they follow written orders signed by him. outstanding" said Darrell McClain, that in addition to helping her the nursing services, "certainly are a boon to the doctor." for Scouting" was a community effort

Under the program's services, nurses visit patients twice a month and aides go by the home two days a week.

At the Cook residence, the nurse not only checks vital signs, but takes a few minutes to chat and show a receives, tells her the extra minutes spent are well worthwhile.

Mrs. Carrie Stoudemire is one of the patients the Health Department nurses look after in Montevallo. She's been living with her sister Mrs. Fannie Turner since her health failed five Beside having her vital signs checked by the nurse on Thursday, Stoudemire also received the ministrations of her aide. This included a bath and having her bedding changed.

But families of patients get assistance from the Home Health Service in other ways. Smith mentioned that instruction is given in caring for the bedridden and the terminally ill.

She went on to say that families are also shown how to care for a diabetic and instructed in the proper way to give an injection.

Physical therapy is another service the program provides, Smith said. She pointed out that the entire program is closely supervised and noted "We have our own state consultants."

Saying that home care is one of the Health Department's most important programs, Smith related that her nurses spend 60 percent of their time in this area of service.

Anyone who would like to find out more about the program which also serves Chilton County may call either 669-2171 or 755-1287.

OES thanks senior members

Sometimes the contributions of older members are forgotten by an organization. But in Vincent Saturday night, six senior members of the Order of Eastern Star were shown just how much they're appreciated.

"You've meant a great deal to a lot of people and especially to Chapter 241," Mrs. Betty Mehaffey told the members who were honored at a dinner held at the Community

Corsages were presented to Mrs. G.M. Gallups, and Mrs. Minnie Smith, and handerchiefs were given to D.B. Smith, L.L. Manes, Philip Oakes and G.M. Gallups. Mrs. Madeline Smith was not able to attend.

As she spoke to the honored guests Mehaffey said, "We can see the results of your good work and we need new members who can continue what you started years ago."

An account of how the Eastern Mehaffey and Margaret Davis.

Star began was given by Wayne Butler. Relating that the secret order began in France, he noted that it met with resistance when it was first introduced in the country.

It was finally accepted in the late 1700's, he told the group, with the first chapters being organized in Michigan. "Today the OES has grown into something we can be proud of," Butler remarked, "and we should be grateful to those who brought it about."

The longtime members of the Vincent chapter expressed their thanks for the occasion, saying it was a day they'd long remember.

Shelby Memorial's noise control device talks back

by Ruth Ann Dunn

That "Quiet Please" sign on the wall in Shelby Memorial Hospital means business. The sign talks back to noisy visitors and patients.

The device is a noise control unit with a beeper and flashing orange light that is activated when excessive noise is made in the area.

Originally installed at the Second Floor North Nursing Station, the beeper has since been fought over by the C.C.U. (Critical Care Unit) and the operating room staffs.

Martha Hill, operating room supervisor, said, "We just love that thing." She demonstrated how the device works, by standing near it and talking in a raised voice.

Immediagely, the orange light began flashing and a steady beeping sound was emitted.

The control device can be set on different sensitivity levels. It attaches to the wall resembling a smoke detector.

Shelby Memorial is conducting the noise control campaign to provide peace and quiet for patients If the plan continues to work, others may be placed throughout the hospital.

USC's offensive line chops up the Tide as Trojans settle a year long debt, 24-14

Budde, Foote, Howell and Munoz.

They don't exactly trip off the "WE DIDN'T DO anything partongue as, say, Miller, Layden, ticularly different today on offense," Crowley and Stuhldreher, or Blan-Houck added. "Our plan was to run chard and Davis, or even Howell to right at Alabama. We call it our 'big Hutson, but remember those names.

The Alabama Crimson Tide will.

You see, those names might have day. been overlooked in the shuffle, but they won a big football game for ing so, they cleared the way for Southern Cal in Legion Field last White, the super quick tailback who Saturday afternoon.

They were the key names in USC's stunningly one sided 24-14 upset win over Alabama. The Crimson Tide was the top ranked team in the nation going into the game and boasted the nation's longest winning streak at 12. They never led in the game, however, as John Robinson's young, yes young, Trojans (16 of the 22 starters will be back next year) held the upper hand the whole way and staked their case for taking over the top spot that Alabama will be vacating this week.

VAN HORNE, BUDDE, Foote, Howell and Munoz are the five men who make up the extremely good Southern Cal offensive line. And brother, those guys won the football game. They controlled Alabama's extremely good defensive line and cleared the way for Charles White to have a field day carrying the ball when USC wanted to run, which was often, and they held firm when quarterback Paul McDonald wanted to pass, which while it wasn't as often, it was quite effective.

"They owned the line of scrimmage," was the way Alabama coach Paul Bryant put it. Not only did they own it, they appeared to know exactly what Alabama would do defensively all day long.

And that's what happened --- they knew what was coming.

"We knew exactly what to expect," said Brad Budde, strong side guard. "They have a fast, quick defense and it has been working for them. We knew they wouldn't change.'

new they p defense," pointed out Hudson Houck, USC's top offensive line coach. "We knew Alabama would do what they have been doing because they have been successful with it. We had our opponent squad working their sets all week long and they did an outstanding job getting us ready.

"Our entire offensive line played a great game but I was especially proud of weak side guard Pat Howell. He had his worst day ever against line," White velled as ABC television Editor played every play except two. I Remember the names Van Horne, believe the conditioning of our guys paid off today.

So you see, Mr. White had a big day without the 1,278 pounds of flesh on the line.

"It makes our job more rewarding but it would not have been possible to know we have a back like White who works hard as hell to get the first down," Budde said.

"I think we proved today that we have a real strong offensive line," strong tackle Keith Van Horne said. "Our line was blowing off the ball and our backs were giving all their effort. Alabama is a fine defensive team. They are big and strong and fast. We knew it would take a total effort to beat Alabama.'

"We worked our butts off all week," smiled the weak tackle, 6-7, 280-pound Anthony Munoz. "We have a philosophy that if we play a team one year and they beat us, we play them a "pay back" game the next year. Today we were paying them back for last year. Besides, we were kinda fired up because they were ranked number one."

Alabama can bid farewell to the coveted number one ranking for awhile now, USC clearly whipped the Tide in every phase of the game. THE CRIMSON TIDE was not able to generate a consistent offense against the massive Trojan defense. Eric Scoggins, Rich Dimler, Myron Lapka and Ty Sperling did an outstanding job on the Alabama offensive line most of the day.

Alabama really only moved the ball consistently twice against USC. The first time, a 79-yard, nine play drive, failed to produce points on the board as USC stopped Major Ogilvie and Tony Nathan both at the goal line in a brilliant goal line stand. Failure to get anything out of the drive hurt Bama because the Trojans took the ball from their own one to a 40-yard field goal and a 10-0 halftime lead.

Alabama managed to get back in the game following the second half

Murray Legg recovered a Charles White fumble at the USC 41 two minutes into the second half. On the first play, Ogilvie, following blocks by Vince Boothe and Dwight Stephenson, zipped through the Trojans for a touchdown putting Alabama back in the game.

Major Ogilvie led Alabama rushers with 75 yards on 11 carries while Tony Nathan added 61 on 12. Nathan was involved in a significant play on the opening kickoff that was to be characteristic of Alabama's offense all day long.

Taking the opening kickoff in the end zone, Tony moved to the right and broke free through a perfectly set wall of blockers.

But what looked like a Crimson (McElroykick) Tide touchdown was halted as USC's Herb Ward, playing safety on the kickoff, made a sure one-on-one tackle at the Alabama 42. Nathan was a fake away from scoring, but Southern Cal took the fake away. It was to become a pattern.

Alabama's dreams of an unbeaten season are over but don't think for a minute the Alabama players are planning on giving up hopes for a national championship.

It's a tougher road now for sure, but it has been said many times that Alabama punts into fourth quarter the only poll that counts is the final again that big plays win, or lose, football games. The Alabama-USC game was loaded with big plays that turned the game, could have turned the game if made, etc.

One of the biggest came on the opening kickoff when Herb Ward saved a touchdown with a brilliant one-on-one tackle of Tony Nathan when it appeared Tony would go all the way.

Dennis Johnson made the tackles on Ogilvie and Nathan as Alabama tried to punch in a touchdown from the one yard line early in the second quarter. He stacked up Ogilvie and then combined with Chip Banks to stop Nathan before Tony could even begin to leap over the line...

THE ILLEGAL BLOCK could have broken the Tide's back. After forcing a USC punt that went out of bounds inside the 50, Southern Cal got the ball back. Instead of Alabama getting the ball inside the 50 trailing 7-0, SC drove down for a field goal and a 10-0 lead...

During the drive for the field goal, quarterback Paul McDonald fumbled the center snap into the air twice, and both times got the ball back himself and picked up yardage...

Southern Cal picked up big plays on defense by picking off four Jeff Rutledge passes..

Perhaps one of the biggest plays for Southern Cal came midway through the third quarter. Alabama was back in the game at 10-7 and had moved from the Tide 20 to the SC45 entirely on runs by Steve Whitman,

Major Ogilvie and Tony Nathan. BUT HERE, BAMA wanted to get it all at once. Rutledge dropped back and tried to hit Keith Pugh near the goal line. The icing on the cake, as far as Coaches will tell you time and time Southern Cal was concerned, came when Don McNeal mistimed his jump and wound up tipping an easy interception into a Southern Cal touchdown. That made it 24-7 and really put the Tide out of the game although USC tackle Keith Van Horne said after they game he didn't feel like they had it until the offense got the ball with under a minute to

> Now, three games into the season, let's take a look at what this Alabama Crimson Tide team has done.

> This is the toughest three opening games that a Bryant-coached Alabama team has ever faced. Obviously, Tide fans would rather be 3-0 but 2-1 against that schedule just ain't all that bad.

Alabama should be steeled and ready when it kicks off its conference schedule against Vanderbilt next weekend. The objective for each SEC team is to win the conference and by playing a tough schedule before the conference, you get your players mentally and physically ready.

Alabama was almost a unanimous preseason pick as the top team in the nation and it may still be by the time the bowls are over. But here are a couple of weaknesses that have surfaced and must be taken care of before a national championship can become a reality.

First, the kicking game has been glaringly weak. Tim Clark, the little freshman from Newnan, Ga., has been doing an excellent job kicking off the last two games and that problem may be solved. However, the punting has been inconsistent and was a big factor in all three Southern Cal touchdowns. The Trojans started their three touchdown drives from the Alabama 40, 39 and 46 after punts of 34, 31 and 39 yards. It was not a good day for Woody Umphrey who One play later Tim Lavender in had had such an outstanding game at Missouri.

Steadman Shealy appears to be sive back from Athens, made a great healthy. Many people wondered why interception of a McDonald pass near Shealy never returned to the game last weekend after playing one set of Freshman Bart Krout logged con-downs and leading the Tide on a 79siderable playing time at tight end in yard march. Shealy seems to still first touchdown, and must have seems to need more work on his made Coach Bryant and his staff feel blocking. Tony Nathan is still Tony Nathan carrying the football but just doesn't carry it enough. Major Ogilvie is getting better and Steve Whitman had some big runs against Southern Cal.

Don't get down on the Alabama defense because of the USC game. That is a good defense but they were up against an exceptional offensive line not to mention a back named White.

Overall, this is a good team that has a chance to be great. At any rate, it is going to be fun watching Alabama down the stretch.

It was a drive kept alive by an "illegal block" penalty on a USC 14. punt that would have turned the ball over to the Tide in the vicinity of the Trojan 40. Field position was gone, and Jeff Rutledge was intercepted by Herb Ward on Bama's final two possessions in the half. The Tide offense got to move with the wind for only 3:39.

After closing the gap to 10-7, Bama found itself marching into the headwind in the final period. On USC's first two possessions, they took over at the Tide 39 and 46. Bingo, it's 24-7, and even though Bama put another score on the board and stirred up the faithful with a closing minute punt

Lewis then got outside for his 23 yard dash, and two plays later Lamie scampered the remaining 15 yards to paydirt. Paul Engle's extra point gave Tech the lead, which they protected until intermission.

Little did the 35,000 Tech partisans know, but that was the last offensive flash the home team would show all day. The Gobblers crossed midfield just once in the final 30 minutes, and that came as time expired in the ballgame.

THE TIGERS, meanwhile, controlled the football in the second half, keeping the Tech defense on the field for 20 minutes in the final two quarters, amassing 183 of their 282 yards of total offense.

After exchanging punts twice in the third period, Auburn went 55 yards in 10 plays for the go-ahead touchdown. Running backs Joe Cribbs and James Brooks alternated carries that netted 22 yards, and Trotman connected on two passes for another 26 before hitting Brooks with a four yard scoring strike. A pass from Trotman to flanker Byron Franklin fell incomplete, giving the Tigers a 12-7 advantage.

Wood's fumble recovery in the end zone completed the scoring and accentuated a strong punting per-formance by Auburn's Skip Johnston, whose booming punt kept the Gobblers pinned down in their own territory for much of the game.

Johnston averaged 41.4 yards on eight kicks, but twice he put Tech in-

Tiger score resulting from a punt downed at the Gobbler three.

Both coaches agreed that field position hurt Tech as much as anything.

"WE DIDN'T GIVE them any field position all day," a happy Barfield

"I don't think we had good field position all day long," Dooley said afterward. "They kept us in the hole pretty good."

In a game that featured two of the country's best runners, neither was able to electrify the crowd. Auburn's James Brooks, the nation's top rusher after his performance against Kansas State, led all ground-gainers with 87 yards in 22 carries, and Tech's twosome of Lewis and Fitzgerald, who both cracked the century mark against Wake Forest, were held to just 106 yards between Offenses take a back seat as the Tigers win, 18-7

BY MARK BULLOCK

BLACKSBURG, Va .-- It was a day when the pressure was supposed to be on both defenses, but the way it turned out the defenses played so well the pressure ended up on the of-

NCAA in offensive production going into the Auburn clash, and the Tigers scored 45 points in their season opener against Kansas State. Experts were predicting a high scoring contest, which featured two of the premier runners in the country, Auburn's James Brooks and Tech's Kenny Lewis.

Neither Lewis, who was first in scoring and seventh in rushing, nor Brooks, who led the country after racing for 226 yards in Auburn's lidlifter, provided much excitement, but both defensive units gave the crowd plenty to cheer about.

"We made some defensive im-provement this week," acknowledg-ed Doug Barfield, whose Tigers held the Gobblers to just 179 yards of total offense, "but we've got a long way to go. I was very proud of our team to-day, and I want to compliment a ly as proud of his defense, which sur-rendered nine of Auburn's 18 points.

"I was pleased with our defense," we had hoped to do better offensively. Several times we had receivers open and just didn't get the ball to yardage through the first two games, them."

Barfield called Auburn's second win a "team victory," saying that "one unit took up the slack for the other one" when the pressure was on. "It took us a while to get settled down, but we knew something good would happen if we kept plugging."

Tiger quarterback Charlie Trot-

Virginia Tech was tops in the man admitted he was confused by Tech's defensive alignment early in the ballgame. "They have good technique. I am supposed to check their defense at the line and I wasn't doing a very good job of it.'

In the second half the Auburn offense was more productive, and Barfield credited that to some adjustments made at halftime. "We wanted to run the bootlegs on early downs," he explained. "We thought we'd have to throw, but we wanted to pick the times.'

Defense was really the name of the game for the Tigers, and a forced fumble in the Tech end zone provided Auburn's last score.

"It could have been a great play for them," Barfield said, "and might have done the same thing. Fortunately our gamble paid off for us."

Coach Dooley agreed.

Tiger defensive tackle Rodney Bellamy said the defensive unit "needed a good game like this. We gave them some momentum in the first half, but we got after them good and shut all that middle down good. Some people were down on the defense after last week, but today we got the game ball."

Tech fullback Mickey Fitzgerald, a 240-pounder, said Auburn was the best physical team he'd ever played against. "They just played good, hard-nosed football," he said. "Every yard I got was tough yardage. We just couldn't keep our defense off the field. It is very demoralizing to only get 170 yards on offense when we had been leading the

The 83-blitz or CT Special has been big for the Tigers

BY GARY SANDERS Auburn Radio Network

Auburn coaches may call it the 83-Blitz, but I may have to come up with something like the CT-Special. But by whatever name, blitzing Clifford Toney has worked well for the '78 Auburns.

On several occasions at Manhattan, blitzes by Tony helped hold the fort in that wild win and at Blacksburg there's no doubt that the 83-Blitz, if you will, put the game safely in the W column. I was surprised to see Virginia Tech try to throw from that deep but the Auburn defensive coaches apparantly were not. When Toney knocked Gobbler quarterback David Lamie loose from the football and Charles Wood recovered for the score, the 18-7 lead was considerably nicer than the 12-7 that had been sitting there.

Actually the credit for that particular turn of events goes all the way back to Skip Johnston's punt which walkon Danny Skutac downed deep in Hokie territory.

THEN, A GREAT play by the defensive front on first down, apparantly convinced Bill Dooley that he had to throw to get out of the hole, and thus the blitz that allowed Auburn fans to see some sunshine on a cool, cloudy day in the Virginia mountains.

When I say cool and cloudy, it was about as extreme as the type game from Manhattan. From bright sun and over 100 degrees in the flatlands of Kansas, seven days later we found ourselves in a low enough ceiling of clouds that only a skillful pilot allowed us to get into the small VPI airport.

If you wonder what it would have meant if we had not landed at Blacksburg, the Roanoke airport is only 16 air miles away but you have to drive 38 miles to get back to Blacksburg. That should tell you something about the terrain.

We had a reading at 55 degrees at kickoff and it was almost cool enough that the glassed in press box didn't completely ruin my day. (I hate glassed in press boxes!)

It was good to have William Andrews and Joe Cribbs back in action though I'll register no complaints about Ed Dubose or Foster Christy or even a fellow named James Brooks.

Brooks, by the way, got only 87 yards but if my math is any good, his 313 for two games averages out to 156.5 per game and I'll take that all the way to December.

Must comment about Frank Warren. The highly recruited young man who frankly didn't show much last year working in the offensive line, was a definite factor against Virginia Tech.

The blocked kick you probably know about, but he made several other big plays including coming from the opposite side to nail the VPI tailback for a two yard loss.

For the second week, the Tigers have done things you are not supposed to be able to do and win. At Manhattan it was the plus 500 yards the defense gave up and at Blacksburg it was missed golden opportunities by the offense in the early going.

Don't think a lot of us weren't worried that those missed opportunities earlier would come back and haunt Doug Barfield later.

Now the exhibition season is over and my friends from Big Orange country come to Birmingham. Wouldn't it be nice if we could arrange to have both the offense and the defense in high gear at the same time?

You'll pardon the pun, but it would be a "major accomplishment" to meet the Vols with all guns firing.

As a final note for girl watchers, Virginia Tech has a 1979 Miss America Kylene Barker on their cover taking a handoff from quarterback Lamie. As best I could determine they did not run that play against Auburn.

USC prove oddsmakers wrong now Tide must get to work

BY JERRY DUNCAN Alabama Radio Network

The first couple of weeks writing this column has been fun but this week it is not going to be as much fun. But contrary to what a lot of Alabama people think, the sun will still come up this week and we have now got to go ahead with the job on hand.

I thought that it was very obvious that Southern Cal was not impressed with our number one ranking. I think anytime you make Southern Cal a 12-point underdog you are just adding fuel to the fire. I think it is ridiculous to make them that big an underdog because those people have a lot of pride, confidence and they have a lot of great football players.

They knocked us around pretty good.

THE GOAL LINE stand early in the second quarter was a big factor but I don't think it was the turning point of the game. It would have been nice to have those seven points.

Southern Cal came back and our defense held them and forced a punt. They shanked the punt but we get a 15-yard penalty for an illegal block and that was a costly mistake. It started an 18 play drive that led to the field goal. I don't think the field goal was as important as the amount of time that it took. In the second quarter, Southern Cal held the ball for over 11 minutes and that pretty well shows that they dominated the second quarter.

I think the thing that impressed me most about Southern Cal was their offensive line. It is so big and strong and fast. I commented on the radio that their offense is simple. I don't mean that as a derogatory statement, it is just they run student body right, student body left, fullback up the middle and throw a pass or two.

Their tight end James Hunter killed us all day long. He did a great job, as well as the rest of the offensive line for SC. I believe the way they handled our defensive line won the ball game for them. After that, their secondary was impressive. They did an excellent job all day long covering our receivers.

We had a real problem with our kicking game Saturday. They scored three touchdowns off three short punts. That sort of thing will beat you if you are not careful.

AS BAD AS we played in the first half, we got back in the game early in the second half. We came out and got a quick touchdown on Major Ogilivie's great run. People remember Major as a great player at Mountain Brook High School but before he is finished people will be remembering him as a great player at Alabama. He just gets better and better. He has more speed than I thought he did. When he got in that secondary he left some pretty fast people behind him.

At that point, our defense was playing extremely well and we had the momentum going but we could never quite take control of the game. The rest of the way we had two fumbles and two pass interceptions and that was that.

I guess what it all boiled down to was simply that the men of Troy were just too much for us.

There are not a lot of good things to talk about from the Alabama standpoint but a couple of things did catch my eye.

I felt like several of our young people played well while they were in there. Jim Bob Harris had a big defensive play and Bart Krout really showed something at tight end. He made a great catch on the sideline and then, of course, he made a big grab and scored a touchdown. am sure that Vanderbilt will be a big underdog I'm sure that that was a thrill for him. Tim but they will come into Tuscaloosa with visions Clark, another freshman, continued to do a of an upset in their heads now that they know good job kicking off.

Now we have to regroup our forces, lick our wounds and get ready for the Commodores. I for...let's get back to No. 1.

Alabama can be beaten.

But Alabama now has something to fight

A touch of history may be working for unbeaten Tigers facing a big Vol test

BY LYN SCARBROUGH

For the first time in four seasons, Auburn finds itself at 2-0. It's been that long - four years - since the War Eagles won their first two games and entered the traditional Tennessee battle with a 1974. perfect mark.

A brief look at history will show Auburn players that they may have a chance to do something blemished Auburn's record in 1975, 1976 and 1977 Jackson, Kenny Burks) the Tigers handed Tenprior to playing the Vols. Not since 1974 have they nessee a 21-0 beating and set the stage for an been in this position.

There are many similarities between 1978 and

THAT SEASON A lightly-regarded Auburn team, coming off a 6-5 record in 1973, had defeated Louisville and Chattanooga. Led by an effective quarterback (Phil Gargis) and a stable of good outstanding season.

Auburn went on to win nine games and lead all teams from the South by ending up ranked Number Six in the country. That team annihilated Texas in the Gator Bowl and outplayed Alabama only to lose on a disputed penalty call and a touchdown that was called back.

Two years before - in 1972 - Auburn was in this same position. Again the Tigers, who had just lost Pat Sullivan and Terry Beasley, were taken lightly. They were led by an unheralded quarterback (Randy Walls) and strong runners (Terry Henley, James Owens, Chris Linderman). They entered the Vol contest at 2-0.

On a cold day at Legion Field, the War Eagles defeated Tennessee, 10-6, and paved the way to another great season. Auburn finished Number Five in the country with a 10-1 mark, including wins over Alabama and over Colorado in the Gator Bowl.

Now, it's 1978. Auburn, again coming off a 6-5 record, was picked in no pre-season Top Twenty and no one picked them to challenge for the SEC crown. Those predictions may still prove true. But, the Tigers are in a position to make things

LED BY A relatively unheralded quarterback (Charlie Trotman) and an outstanding backfield (Joe Cribbs, William Andrews, James Brooks, Foster Cristy, Ed Dubose, Willie Huntley, etc, etc), Auburn again finds itself at 2-0.

There is reason to hope for even better things

Against Kansas State, Auburn's offense was superb. With Cribbs and Andrews injured, everyone in the state of Kansas was keying on James Brooks. Still, he got 226 yards rushing and three touchdowns behind good line blocking. Trotman's passing and receiving by several players

Then, against Virginia Tech, the battered War Eagle defense took control, keeping the Gobblers backed up all day and scoring one touchdown on a fumble recovery. They were playing on the road against a very good VPI offense.

Tech had been averaging over 400 yards a game rushing. Against Auburn, they got just 120. Kansas State had amassed almost 380 passing yards. VPI got 59. And, the Gobbler offense, which had been averaging 31 points per game, got only seven. This is more impressive when you realize that VPI ran up these totals against Tulsa, which is already 4-0 this season, and Wake Forest, which LSU was fortunate to beat 13-11 at Baton Rouge.

The Auburn-Tennessee game is critical again this year. It is the first conference game. The winner will lead the SEC. For a 3-0 Auburn, playing beginning of national recognition.

AUBURN CAN NOT afford to enter the game overconfident in any way. Tennessee's young and talented squad is hungry for a win. They are ready to end an Auburn dominance which has produced seven wins in the last ten years and which has seen Tennessee win only four times in the last 15 years.

The War Eagles face a tough challenge. But, unheralded Auburn teams have a history of doing great things. If they're careful, and maybe a little lucky, this War Eagle team has a chance to write another chapter in that book of history.

A touchdown, a birthday, and an honor highlight a week of thrills for Gilliland

BY KEN FLOWERS

TUSCALOOSA-- Twenty- oneyear-olds are not expected to get wide-eyed over birthday presents, but Alabama linebacker Rickey Gilliland looked like a six-year- old with a new bicycle last week.

Gilliland was the defensive standout in Alabama's 38-20 win over Missouri and it earned him tled for being just another 'Bama Southeastern Lineman of the week honors. Gilliland learned of the award on his birthday Tuesday.

"I swear I just can't believe it." Gilliland said. "I never dreamed of anything like this at all. It is the biggest thrill I have ever had."

GILLILAND'S NEW BIGGEST thrill broke his three day old biggest thrill, when Gilliland picked up a blocked punt against the Tigers and rambled 35 yards to the end zone for his first touchdown ever.

Until this season, Gilliland had setplayer that was able to play the linebacker position, but his game against Missouri has opened doors

Gilliland was listed as a starter against Southern Cal Thursday when Alabama coach Paul "Bear" Bryant released his list of starters.

"We have four of five people capable of playing the linebacker spot and we all consider ourselves starters," Gilliland said. "We are very lucky to have such depth at the position. Not many people can claim to have the many people capable of

Coach John Brophy's Bulls will be playing host the Atlanta Flames Thursday night at 7:30 at the Coliseum. The Bulls and Flames will be meeting for the third time in the yearly preseason series. The Bulls won the first meeting and the Flames won last year.

Saturday night, the Cincinnati Stingers move to the Coliseum for a preseason game.

The Saturday night game with the Stingers will start at 8:00.

The Bulls will be putting a new team on the ice. Since last ear, many new races, ıncluding some of the top underage hocky talent in Canada, have joined the team.

This will also be the debut of Brophy as the Bulls head coach. Joining the team last year as an assistant, Brophy was named head coach when Glen Sonmor moved to Minnesota of the NHL.

Walk-on quarterback Larry Ochab never believed that he couldn't play for Gators

BY PETE KYNION

GAINESVILLE, Fla .-- Every college football team has its share of outstanding athletes, be they high school stars sure to crack the starting lineup as a freshman, sophomore sensations, or junior or senior All-America candidates. But how many college elevens can claim a 21-year old former landscaper as a possible future star?"

The Florida Gators can, and their nominee for the "How in The World Did You Make The Team" award is a walk-on quarterback who was too stubborn to believe what other people were telling him. But listen to Larry Ochab, who insisted on telling it his way, explain.

and that I couldn't run," said the 5-11, 185-pounder recalling those days in 1974. Ochab had just completed his senior season at Orlando's Colonial HS as the Metro Conference's leading passer. He had been named All-Central Florida and an honorable education but I could not afford to pay my way to mention all-American.

"But none of the larger schools showed any interest. A couple of smaller ones contacted me but State, and the University of Miami asking them if only offered partial scholarships.

"I DECIDED TO stay home and get a job," continued Ochab. "My parents had recently was in the area and stopped by to talk to me," said separated and I wanted to stay around and help Ochab. "He convinced me to come to Gainesville my mom and sister."

So Ochab went to work as a maintenance supervisor at a local apartment complex.

"I had a crew of four and we took care of the grounds. We made it the best looking apartment complex in Orlando!"

For the next three years Ochab worked and sav-"All of the recruiters told me I was too small ed, but never gave up the idea of playing quartered, but never gave up the idea of playing quarter-back at a major university. > "Ken Hatfield (former Gator assistant coach) and try out as a walk-on.

THE HOLLYWOOD-TYPE script of Ochab's comeback detours here as the 1977 season found him on the junior varsity squad playing on the speciality teams. He did get in for one offensive series at quarterback but failed to throw a pass and lost five years on his only carry. Needless to say his future status was bleak.

'After fall quarter last year I had to return home because I could not afford to stay in school," explained Ochab who went back to work at his old

"I was discouraged and really did not plan on coming back to try again, but Coach Spurrier changed my mind. He had seen films of me throwing and encouraged me to come back in the spring."

So once again the former maintenance supervisor tried his hand at quarterbacking and this time his determination was rewarded. Things began to click. Hard, fast spirals caught the attention of the Gator coaching staff and Ochab wound up having an outstanding spring, climaxed with a starting assignment in the orange and blue game.

Off that impressive spring performance Ochab was awarded a full scholarship by Gator Head Coach Doug Dickey, and four years after he was told he was too small to play, the sophomore signal-caller found himself behind center in Florida's season opener.

"IT WAS A dream come true," Ochab admitted. "Ever since I was young it has been a dream of mine to play. When Coach Dickey told me to go in against Southern Methodist I was really fired-

Someone who fought back from discouragement as well and often as Ochab surely would not let this golden opportunity pass. Making the most of the situation he completed ten of 16 passes for 161yards and one touchdown.

"I just threw it and the receivers caught it. The offensive line also gave me plenty of time to opener with SMU from Dallas to Orlando.

Surely the script to this almost unbelievable tale would not be complete unless Ochab could make his varsity debut in front of the hometown fans. Although he swears he had nothing to do with it, last week's game was a homecoming for him.

NOW THAT HE has accomplished one major goal in his life, what is left for the real estate major to do?

"I would like to be the best quarterback this team has ever had, and take the Gators to the top of the Southeastern Conference."

One may forgive Ochab for being a bit boastful about his future aspirations, but then there is that dogged determination in the man that has already helped him realize one dream. Maybe that same stubborness will reward countless Florida fans with an SEC crown.

A busted play turned to gold as the Wildcats took a heart stopping victory

BY CHUCK MALKUS

LEXINGTON, Ky .- After Kentucky football coach Fran Curci viewed the film's of his team's 25-21 victory over Baylor, Curci was happy that the Wildcats didn't give up when they made such mistakes as -- three pass interceptions, two lost fumbles, a partially blocked punt and back-toback major penalties.

"The most impressive thing was our players' staying power," Curci said. "They had early chances to fold, but they hung in there.

"We are in need of a lot of improvement, but the effort is there. We think we can clean up our mistakes.'

Curci described the win as, "an exciting game for the fans.

Curci, with a 1-0-1 record, is off to his best start since staking over the Wildcats in 1972 and is gearing his players this week for a Maryland team that he describes as a "typical Jerry Claiborne team."

Bulldog secondary pulls a big surprise and sparks Dooley's Dogs to 2-0 start ATHENS, Ga .-- All week as the game. Georgia prepared to host Clemson, a 58-3 winner over The Citadel on opening day, the question most often posed was, "Can Georgia's defense slow down the Tigers enough to possibly pull out a win?

Having lost eight starters from last year's famous 'Junkyard Dogs' defense, it indeed seemed to be the question to ask.

After all, wasn't this the Clemson team that returned most of its starters from an 8-2-1 team that went to the Gator Bowl and is led by 1977 ACC Player of the Year Steve Fuller and everybody's All-American, wide receiver Jerry Butler?

It is indeed that very same team. It is also the team an underdog Georgia whipped 12-0 last Saturday in a Sanford Stadium jam-packed with well

"I believe it was a post pattern. I reacted to the ball."

Woerner's reaction to the ball was to steal it from the hands of Tiger receiver Perry Tuttle and race 44 yards upfield to give Georgia the ball, field position, and a chance to run some time off the clock with a 12-0 lead and 6:45 remaining in the Georgia's quarterback, Jeff Pyburn, on the other hand, had enough time to get the job done.

"I would have to say this is another team win. The defense took up the slack our offense had today and we got what it took to win," Pyburn said.

"Our fumble at the (Georgia) 32 just dropped into my zone and in the fourth quarter could have been crucial but the defense rose to the occasion.'

Clemson's defense was called on to rise to the occasion' four times Saturday, as the Tigers lost four fumbles to Georgia. Two of those fumbles were converted into points on field goals by the Bulldogs' deadly accurate placekicker, Rex Robinson.

GEORGIA'S OTHER six points came on an 80-yard drive that opened the second half. Georgia used 16 home.

Georgia rover Pat Collins said after credited with breaking up passes in plays and almost eight minutes to manuver into position for Pyburn's 11-yard touchdown pass to flanker Carmon Prince.

"I thought we would have to beat Clemson like we beat Baylor last week," Georgia Coach Vince Dooley said, "I figured they would score at least fourteen points and we would have to score more than that to win."

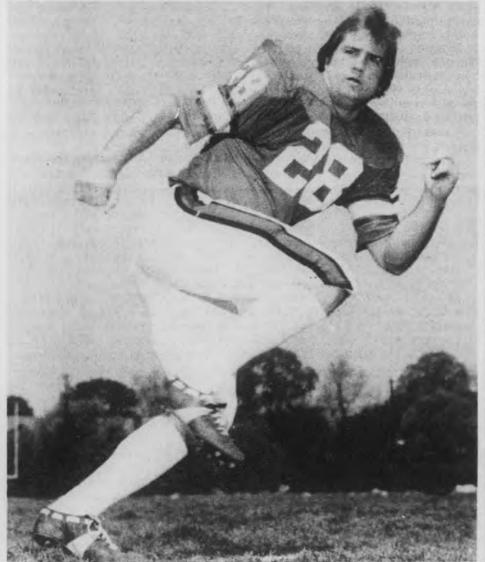

Dooley continued, "We forced a lot of turnovers today. We call them 'takeovers' if we're on defense. They (the turnovers) came from aggresive hitting where getting the ball comes as a bonus. I don't think they were necessarily miscues on Clemson's part but rather the results of our hard hitting.'

Lost in the attention given the defense was another solid performance by Bulldog tailback Willie McClendon, who carried 24 times for 120 yards through a tough Clemson defense.

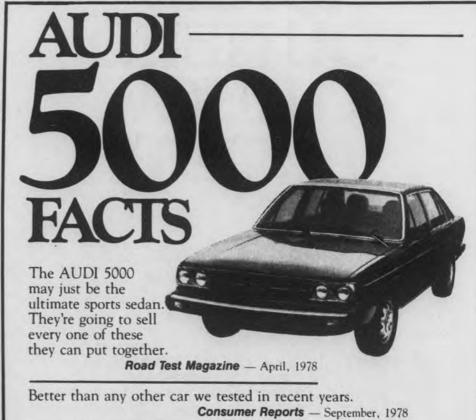

According to Dooley, McClendon is the type runner necessary to make the "I" formation work.

"THE TAILBACK HAS almost got to go over 100 yards a game to make the "I" work. I have to say that Willie and our young offensive line have really done a great job so far."

But Georgia's team must keep up the good work if they hope to remain successful as the Bulldogs travel this Saturday to one of the loudest stadiums in the South to play a South Carolina team that is always tough at

Bengal Tigers slip past Wake Forest 13-11 but get booed by the Tiger Stadium crowd

BY RON HIGGINS

BATON ROUGE--Many people had the same description of LSU's lessthan-pulsating 13-11 win over Wake Forest here Saturday night.

Most of their opinions referred to the odor the Tigers left on the field.

Tiger head coach Charles McClendon put it best afterwards when he said, "This is the worst performance an LSU team has had since I can remember.'

It was the worst Tiger performance anybody could remember. LSU stumbled, fumbled, and bumbled their way to victory. Only five Wake Forest fumbles and one interception allowed the Tigers to record their second victory in two games.

The tone of the game was set when LSU's Charles Alexander, who ended another rough night with 123 yards on 31 attempts, opened LSU's first offensive series with four consecutive carries. His first run was for nine yards, but after that, Alexander spent most of the time bouncing off people for small gains.

Missouri dominated in almost every phase of the game. And when the Rebels rose up, behind secondstring nose guard James Jordon, to stop Missouri early in the third quarter, the Tigers (2-1) went to the air behind quarterback Phil Bradley and moved swiftly to a touchdown.

Two first half fumbles by Missouri punt returner Lee Lewis were recovered by Ole Miss guard Marc Massengale deep in Tiger territory. After the first Ole Miss recovery, quarterback Bobby Garner scrambled away from a Missouri pass rush and ran 10 yards for a touchdown.

Later, after Massengale hopped on a Lewis fumble at the Missouri 23, Garner went in from one yard out to score Ole Miss' second and last touchdown of the day. Hoppy Langley gave the Rebels a 14-14 tie with :56 seconds left in the first half with his conversion kick.

However, that was the best showing the Rebs could make as the final half produced nothing.

Missouri's Jeff Brockhaus kicked a 38-yard field goal seconds after Ole Miss had tied the score and took the lead for good.

"I think our offense's inability to move the ball hurt the defense because they had to be on the field so long," Sloan said. "Our team is going to get better. That's our ray of hope. And it's a good thing we have a ray of

"There was poor tackling on our part," Jordon said. "And we got little or no help from our offense in trying to win the game. I was surprised at their strength. They were stronger than I had given them credit for be-

West End, Talladega, Walker fall in 4A

The ranks of the unbeaten 4A's continue to shrink as the big state schools meet and beat each other.

Walker, West End and Talladega were all upset in last week's games, Talladega after only one appearance in the top ten.

Walker, runner-up to Berry in state 4A championship play last year, was a strong contender for the crown in 78 until Friday, when Tuscaloosa County pulled the surprise, 19-14.

West End, perennial representative in Region Five, has some competition this year, as both Parker and Ensley remain unbeaten in region play, while the Lions fall to 1-1 after their 8-6 upset loss to Parker

And Talladega saw its perfect 3-0 record and its ninth-place ranking fall after a 35-7 pounding at the hands of region foe Emma Sansom, now 3-1.

Taking advantage of these teams' slips are Lanier, 27-3 winners over Prattville Friday and holders of a perfect 4-0 record; Parker, whose upset win over West End claimed the Thundering Herd ninth spot; and Oxford, 28-6 winners over Albertville last week.

Jeff Davis had no trouble holding on as the number one 4A with a 26-0 shutout of Lee of Huntsville. Berry also held fast to last week's position with a 31-14 win over Mountain Enterprise, fourth last week, moves up a notch after beating Fort Walton (Florida) 37-20. Johnson also moved up despite taking the week

Coffee goes from seventh to fifth after a big 41-12 win over Russellville, while Foley moves from eighth to .sixth after beating region foe Williamson 27-14. Banks, tenth last week, moves to seventh after blanking Phillips and going to 4-0 for the year.

Hamilton goes 5-0, cracks 3A top ten didn't care that a whole lot of teams in 3A were boasting of perfect records and big scoring margins. All they knew was that their Hamilton Aggies weren't in the top ten when, by gosh, they oughta be.

Well folks, this is the week. Hamilton moves into the number nine spot after another convincing win-a 30-7 defeat over Fayette boosted the Aggies' season mark to 5-0. David Shaw led Hamilton scoring Friday night with three touchdowns on runs of one and four yards and a pass of 42 yards from Shane Russell.

Fayette's only score was the first of the game and came on a 55 yard pass from Randy Newton to Mark Whiteside after a faked punt.

Top-ranked Andalusia held on to its perch with a 48-19 smashing of Henderson. Andalusia jumped out to a 27-0 lead before Henderson responded with a score. Andalusia scored once more to take a 34-7 lead into the dressing room. Reserves played Henderson to a draw in the second half. Fullback Joe Ball and tailback Sam Henderson had a big day for Andalusia, Ball rushing seven times for 100 yards, Henderson 13 times for 178 yards.

T. R. Miller took on undefeated 4A Escambia County Friday and came away with an unblemished record, downing the bigger school 20-12. Hartselle performed the same kind of feat, defeating a powerful but injury-riddled Decatur team 16-0.

Gardendale pulled off a hard-

The folks up in Marion County fought 16-8 win over rival Fultondale, while Cullman won 14-12 over area foe Hanceville, last week ranked second and undefeated.

Ariton, Verbena newcomers in 1A

For four games this season West Jefferson had made mincemeat of larger 2A and 3A schools, downing Corner (3A), Oak Grove (2A), Pleasant Grove (3A) and Warrior (2A). But last week it was 1A versus 1A when the Tigers of West Jeff met the undefeated Tigers of Meek.

Although Meek managed a hefty 20 points against West Jefferson, the Northwest Alabama team couldn't match West Jeff's 413 rushing yards, and in the end it was the same old story - West Jefferson 42, Meek 20.

Quarterback Kevin Hyatt had a hot night in a losing cause for Meek, as he threw for all three Meek scores, including a two-point conversion

Two new teams moved into the 1A top ten this week. Verbena upped its record to 5-0 with a 28-7 victory over Billingsley (last week's number ten team) to take the seventh spot. And Ariton also improved to 5-0 with a 23-6 win over Clio, giving the team from Dale County eighth position.

Top-ranked Repton continued its winning ways with another big victory, this one a 40-6 pasting of region foe Conecuh County.

Sweet Water kept its record clean with a 35-0 shutout of Leroy in a region contest, while Brantley suffered its first loss to 2A Luverne Friday night by a score of 13-6, dropping Brantley to number nine with a 4-1 record.

J. U. Blacksher went to 5-0 in moving up to fourth spot with a 34-7 victory over Frisco City, Speake has the same record after downing Cold Springs 21-0, Donoho moved up a notch after a 14-13 win over West End, which moved down to tenth spot in this week's poll.

The only new face among state 2A's this week is Plainview, which captures the number ten spot after a 15-0 shutout of Crossville. The win perfect 5-0, while Crossville falls to 3-

Top-ranked Stevenson had no trouble with South Pittsburg, a tough 3A from across the state line in Tennessee. The defending state champions rolled to their fifth straight victory in winning 34-0. Stevenson scored twice in the second quarter, fourth quarter while shutting out their visitors

Hazlewood had an equally easy time of it in downing 3A Madison County 27-0 in Gurley Friday night. Gary Brown picked up two-touchdowns in the Golden Bears' victory - one on a 45-yard run, the other on a pass interception. Quarterback Jeffrey Johnson was the workhorse Thomas Jones accounted for another in the West Jefferson attack, picking score on a keeper play, while tackle Fabian Nance picked up the fourth ries, including scoring runs of 64 and Hazlewood touchdown when he recovered a fumble in the air and ran it in for the score.

But the most impressive Hazlewood statistics belonged to the defense, as Madison County totaled just 13 yards offense in the game, including minus twelve yards rushing. Not once did Hazlewood allow the home team past mid-field, as Madison County picked up only three first downs, two of those coming on Hazlewood penalties.

Thomasville had no trouble maintaining the number three spot while taking the week off, while Oneonta put on a defensive display in shutting out Brighton 19-0, keeping the Blount County team in fourth place. Randy McKinney picked up two first-period scores for the winning Redskins, one on a pass from quarterback Edwin Bellew and the other on a one-yard plunge. Jimmy Dumas added another score in the second quarter as Oneonta hung on for its fifth straight win of the year.

Good Hope crushed Warrior 40-0 to ups Plainviews seasonal mark to a take fifth spot with a perfect 4-0 record, while Susan Moore took a 14-8 region win over previously undefeated Holly Pond to take sixth.

St. Paul's blanked 3A Alba 20-0 Saturday night to take seventh spot, while Bridgeport kept its record perfect at 5-0 with a 26-7 win over Marion County

West Morgan continues to impress twice in the third and once in the with a 35-6 win over 4A Brewer, giving the Rebels a 5-0 mark for the year and ninth place among 2A's

Greg Thomas was the big man in the West Morgan ground attack, which accounted for 242 rushing yards. Thomas picked up four touchdowns in the game, on runs of 22, 14, 25 and 16 yards, kicked three extra points and ran in a two-point conversion.

Highlighting 2A matchups this week is the region game between unbeatens Susan Moore and Good Hope.
